CARDINAL SENTENCED TO LIFE TERM

New Storm Paralyzes Wide Area in Western U. S.

Highway and Train Travel Stalled in Many Places; Threat To Livestock Grows

By The Associated Press

Storm winds and new snow swiped viciously at the Northwest yesterday and charged into the Plains disaster zone.

And another tempest gathered over the north Pacific Ocean for an assault on the buffeted West Coast.

Highway movement stopped in many areas. Trains were held up. Schools closed. Ski parties were trapped in mountain resorts. And additional families and herds faced isolation as transportation routes were blocked by ground blizzard drifts.

Hard hit were large areas of Oregon, California, Utah, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. The high winds threatened to reblock many roads opened by 4000 Fifth Army workers in the Nebraska and South Dakota distress area.

Weather Bureau Warning

A Weather Bureau warning for Nebraska last night forecast "strong northerly" winds "near 40 miles per hour with blowing and drifting snow," and occasional snow flurries. A cold wave was predicted with zero to 5 above in the north and northwest portions Tuesday, and 10 or 15 below in the north to zero in the south by Wednesday morning. The new snow swirling over eastern Navada halted all flights by Air Force planes and choked virtually every road in the region.

To the south, snowstorms blocked the "grublift" to the Navajo Indian reservation area in northern Arizona.

Temperatures skidded quickly below zero in Montana as the winds whipped up blinding curtains of snow there.

In Utah, a Federal range official said the multimillion dollar livestock industry faces disaster. There, virtually every main highway was closed after a month-long fight to reopen them since winter's first heavy snows.

"Unless we get a break in the weather, the Utah livestock industry is in danger of being wiped out," said Chester P. Seeley, range management chief of the Bureau of Land Management.

Constrasts With Report

This statement contrasted with a report made to President Truman in Washington yesterday by Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator. Fleming said original fears of sheep and cattle losses were "greatly exaggerated."

Fleming said losses at present amount to about 3 or 4 per cent of range animals, but that the figure may go higher. Some early loss estimates were as high as 50 per cent.

Two major rail lines cut off service on storm area routes. All Union Pacific trains headed north and west were flagged down at Denver. At Chicago, the Chicago & North Western line stopped West Coast train departures.

The Union Pacific reported 45 of its trains had been halted by the storm, most of them in Wy-

Mixed Race Party Brings $5 Fines To 64 Celebrants

New Orleans, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Sixty-four white and Negro men and women were fined $5 each today for making too gay at a party in a four-room French Quarter apartment.

Many of the well-dressed defendants were in the Wallace-for-President movement last fall. They included a Tulane professor, Robert J. Huot, who teaches English, and four pretty students from Sophie Newcomb, the women's branch of Tulane.

Four paid their fines. The other 60 announced they would appeal.

A Few Book Luncheon Tickets Still Available

A very few tickets for the February 9 Book and Author luncheon are still available in these book stores: Chequire House (Alexandria), Community Book Shop, David Pearlman's and the Savile Book Shop.

Some tickets will also be available at The Washington Post Building, at the counter in the lobby.

Power to Seize Struck Plants Is Urged by William H. Davis

By The Associated Press

William H. Davis, former chairman of the War Labor Board, yesterday asked Congress to authorize Government seizure of plants when a strike imperils the country's health or safety.

He also said he has never liked the Taft-Hartley Act because it has too much "police power." He advised Congress to "back off now—now that things are cool." But in that connection he urged the Senators to quit "arguing about whether it's Taft-Hartley or the Wagner Act," and consider proposals on their merits.

Davis, a New York patent lawyer with long experience in the Government, testified before the Senate Labor Committee as it dragged even further behind its schedule. Thirty witnesses remain to be heard in the next three days and nights on the Administration bill, which would scrap the Taft-Hartley Act and revise the New Deal Wagner Act in amended form.

Davis' proposal on national emergency strikes was given careful attention by the Senators, and stirred up much questioning.

He said the 80-day "national emergency" injunctions of the Taft-Hartley Act should be dropped because they hinder settlements and don't end emergencies.

He also said the Truman Administration's proposal for a 30-day voluntary cooling-off period, without injunctions, is inadequate because the American people need some "assurance" that the national health and safety can be protected.

So this was what Davis suggested instead, when a labor dispute "really endangers the country":

1. A 60-day cooling-off period, as in the Railway Labor Act. During the first 30 days of this period an emergency board would study the case and make recommendations. Davis said no injunctions are needed to enforce the 60-day waiting period. To try to create a cooling-off period by an injunction, he said, is like "putting more coal on the fire to cool the porridge."

2. Then, if the emergency still exists, the President should "take over the properties, call on every officer and every employe to remain at their jobs, and call on every citizen of the United States who has the necessary skill to serve in that enterprise if necessary."

3. Wages and other conditions should remain the same for perhaps 30 days of Government operation. Then, if a settlement is still not reached, the President "should set up a board to assess just compensation for the owner of the property and for the workers."

He said that in a real emergency, any but a "weak-kneed" President would act to save the country whether he had any legal authority or not. And he said he used to believe emergency situa-

Nurse Believes Rowell Is Man Who Blamed Police in Beating

By John London
Post Reporter

An Emergency Hospital nurse yesterday revealed that a man she believes is the cab driver who was brutally beaten at Thomas Circle told her he thought his assailants were policemen.

The nurse, Miss Mary Marra, was shown a picture of James Rowell, 48-year-old Yellow Cab driver, who was assaulted January 14, about 4:45 a. m. and went to Emergency Hospital for treatment.

"I think that's the man," said Miss Marra, glancing at the picture of Rowell which appeared on the front page of The Washington Post Saturday.

Since the three-week-old assault was uncovered by reporters a week ago, Rowell has maintained he could not recall what his attackers looked like. He has denied he thought they were policemen.

Not Identified

On Thursday, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett said he thought two policemen were "guilty as hell but I've got to prove it." On Saturday, Rowell failed to identify the two policemen in a special lineup.

Miss Marra said she was alone on duty in the emergency room of the hospital when a man resembling the picture of Rowell came in and applied for treatment, between 4:30 a.m. and 5 a.m., on January 14.

Asked how she knew what time it was, she replied: "I had just started to clean up the emergency room and I always start that at either 4:30 a.m. or 5 a.m."

Miss Marra said she asked the man for his name and address and particulars as to how he was injured. The man then asked if "this information is going to be a police record," Miss Marra said.

"I told him, yes, all our records like that go to police," she recalled. "Then he said he thought he was beaten by two policemen but he didn't want to involve any policemen, because he didn't want to get mixed up with police."

Private Physician

Miss Marra said the man, who did not give his name, said he would go to a private physician so that there would be no police report, and walked out of the emergency room.

Miss Marra said she picked up a record card when the man walked in and wrote down "walked," to

Senate Rejects Action Now On Filibusters

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

With Democrats solidly voting "No," the Senate yesterday rejected 56 to 31 a Republican move to force immediate Senate consideration of antifilibuster legislation.

Seven Republicans broke away from their party and voted with Democrats against the GOP motion to "discharge" the Rules Committee, now considering cloture rule changes to curb filibusters.

Northern and Southern Democrats alike denied the Rules Committee has unreasonably delayed action on the rules changes. Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) charged GOP "politics" and said:

"I'll handle this situation as majority leader as I think it should be handled. You're not going to push me on this."

Resolution Faces Filibuster

The Senate Rules Committee is expected to favorably report Wednesday a bipartisan resolution knocking filibustering loopholes out of the Senate's two-thirds cloture (debate shut-off) rule.

Within a week or two thereafter, it was reliably indicated, the legislation will be called up in the Senate. Southern Democrats have already threatened to filibuster the resolution and debate may go on indefinitely.

The GOP "discharge" motion was filed by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.). Knowland told the Senate that failure to restrict filibusters within the first 60 days of this session "will make certain the defeat of the entire civil rights program presented by the President."

If the Senate Rules Committee fails to report the debate curb

Two-Year Control Law Sought

'Black Market' Rents Growing, Says Woods; Asks More Power

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A growing black market in overceiling rents has resulted from failure of the present rent control law to give the Housing Expediter power to invoke criminal sanction against law violators, Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods told Congress yesterday.

Woods asked the House Banking Committee to give him power to restore some old ceilings and to rule over evictions.

An indication of the rental housing shortage, he said, is the extent to which the rent level for decontrolled housing accommodations exceeds the controlled rent level.

Woods told the committee that a recent Nation-wide survey of 44,626 dwellings on which controls were taken off indicated an average rent increase of 55 per cent. The survey, covering 1000 cities in 48 states, found a rent increase of more than 100 per cent on 8000 decontrolled dwellings, he said.

Uncontrolled hotel rents for permanent residents were shown in the same survey to be now running an average of 60 per cent more than when ceilings were in force. Last year Congress refused to continue permanent hotel rooms under rent control. Woods asked

Norwegian Envoy Asks Treaty Data

Lange Talks With Acheson; Nation Showing Firmness Toward Russia

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Undeterred by Soviet warnings, Foreign Minister Halvard Lange of Norway visited the State Department yesterday to get information about the proposed North Atlantic defense treaty.

Lange spent half an hour with Secretary Dean Acheson, and then had a longer visit with subordinate officials who have been in close touch with the Atlantic treaty discussions.

It was by no means certain that Norway would sign the treaty in its present form; her decision would depend on the answers Lange would carry back to his cabinet colleagues in Oslo.

Norway Shows Firmness

But it was apparent already that Norway was showing as much firmness under Soviet pressure as Turkey showed, in similar conditions, during the tension over the Dardanelles in 1946.

Lange told reporters that he and his aides had not talked to Acheson about the Soviet note of last Saturday, offering a nonaggression pact to Norway.

"We have come to gather information we need to submit to the Norwegian Cabinet and Parliament," said Lange, "on the question whether Norway ought to accept any invitation to take part in the preparation of the Atlantic Pact."

This was a clear sign that neither he nor his government were shaken by the Soviet note, and that they intended to go ahead with their investigation whatever Moscow might think.

Lange was equally unflustered when reporters asked him to comment on the subject of foreign bases on Norwegian soil. Norway assured the Russians last week that she would not provide bases unless attacked or threatened with attack; the Russians complained that this reply was "inadequate."

"To my mind," said Lange, "our answer on the question of bases was clear and evident."

Talk Only Preliminary

He said his talk with Acheson had been only a preliminary, and that he hoped to have more intensive discussions later in the week. American officials described today's talk as a "hello visit" in preparation for others to come.

There is no alarm here over the Soviet pressure on Norway, which is described as a familiar form of huffing and puffing from Moscow.

Officials here are certain that quiet firmness now will be just as effective in stopping the pressure as it was in 1946, when the Russians were huffing and puffing to get bases along the Bosporus and Dardanelles.

Norway, like Turkey, has a common frontier with the Soviet Union. In the Norwegian case, it is an unfortified stretch of 120 desolate miles in the far north.

As a sign of fear or displeasure at Norway's joining the Atlantic pact, the Russians could also move troops into Finland, which is at

2 More Ex-Yanks Swear 'Sally' Got Interviews for Nazi Radio

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Two more former GIs yesterday pointed out Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars as the woman who solicited interviews with them for boadcast over the Nazi radio, as they lay wounded in a Paris prison hospital.

(Their testimony was given in support of what the Government charges is overt act of treason number 5. Two witnesses to each overt act are required to prove treason. Thus far the required number has testified to 3 of the 10 acts charged to Miss Gillars.)

Another witness, Miss Inge Doman, former colleague of Miss Gillars on the German radio, yesterday told District Court that at no time did Miss Gillars appear to her to be working under force or compulsion.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin, however, it was brought out that on many occasions Miss Doman was not present when broadcasts were made.

The shapely silver-haired defendant apparently created a sensation among wounded Yanks when she appeared at the Hospital de la Pitie shortly after the Normandy invasion.

"When she came in there was a lot of whistling from the fellows," testified former Sergt. Paul George Kestel of Detroit, previously of the Thirtieth Division.

"She had a black dress with orange flowers in it," Kestel grinned reminiscently. "She was all sharped up—really something to look at—as she came in carrying a microphone."

At this testimony the 48-year-old defendant dabbed at tear-filled eyes with a handkerchief.

"The first words she said was that she was a representative of the Red Cross and asked if anyone wanted to communicate with their folks back home," the witness said.

Earphones were donned in the courtroom as a playback of the interview with Kestel, as intercepted by Government monitors, was performed.

Kestel listened smilingly. At times he turned a sly glance toward Miss Gillars, who stared straight ahead.

At the conclusion, Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., asked: "Can

Federal Reorganization Bill Passed By House, 306 to 9

Civil Service Plan

CIVIL SERVICE Commission president would be far more influential under Hoover plan. See Federal Diary, Page B-1.

Report Released

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The House last night passed the Government reorganization bill by the overwhelming vote of 306 to 9. The one-sided vote did not indicate the bitterness of the six hours of debate that preceded final action.

In passing the measure the House ignored a plea made by former President Herbert Hoover yesterday morning that it make no special provision in the measure for the military services or for other agencies.

The bill, as passed, provides that President Truman may submit proposals for reorganization of agencies within the executive branch. Unless both houses of congress vote disapproval within 60 days, the proposal becomes law.

7 in Separate Package

However, against the wishes of President Truman and Hoover, the House provided that reorganization plans for seven agencies, including the Armed Services, must be submitted in "separate packages"—in proposals including only the individual agencies named.

The six, besides Armed Services, are the Federal Reserve System, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Railroad Retirement Board, the National Mediation Board and the National Railroad Adjustment Board. The first three of these were in the bill as reported out by the House Expenditures Committee last week. The House voted yesterday to include the last three.

The reorganization legislation included authority to revamp the District government which the President has described as "cumbersome."

The measure would give the President power to institute many of the changes in the structure of the District government favored in last year's home rule bill. He would not have the power to grant local suffrage, however.

When the House tally was taken shortly after 6 p. m., one Democrat, Representative John E. Rankin (Miss.), voted with eight Republicans against the measure. The Republican opponents included such stalwarts as John Taber (N. Y.), Jesse P. Wolcott (Mich.), Dewey Short (Mo.), Noah M. Mason (Ill.), Charles P. Nelson (Maine), Joseph P. O'Hara (Minn.), Alvin E. Konski (Wis.) and Paul W. Shafer (Mich.).

Strange Split on Amendments

The House vote came on the day that Hoover submitted the first of 15 sections of the report of the Commission for Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, which he heads.

In the long arguments that preceded passage, in which half a dozen amendments were voted down, the House witnessed a strange performance—the Republicans usually voting almost unanimously against proposals urged by the last of the Presidents of their political faith, and the Democrats voting almost as unanimously to support Hoover.

Hoover's suggestions were made before the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee. He finished up his testimony with a news conference marked by a vehement attack upon "propaganda" in favor of exempting the civilian duties of the Army Engineers from reorganization plans.

Mr. Hoover fell back upon his Iowa childhood for language to express his opinion of the "propaganda drive."

He declared that "if such grasshopper bites are allowed to succeed" the whole program of reorganization might as well be forgotten. He declared that "as soon as Congress refuses to be moved by these propaganda booms, we'll accomplish something."

Hoover wasn't as insistent against giving special consideration to so-called regulatory agencies as he was about the armed services. He spoke up, though, against granting any agency privileges not given others.

He admitted that regulatory

Grain, Lard And Soybean Futures Drop

Chicago, Feb. 7 (AP).—Grains, soybeans and lard futures sold off in late dealings on the Board of Trade today. Earlier, the market had been firm. Final prices were at about the day's lows with wheat down 1⅜ to 2½ cents a bushel, corn 2 to 3 cents and soybeans 4¾ to 5 cents.

May wheat closed at $2.16 to $2.16¼ a bushel, May corn $1.24¼ to $1.24 ½, March soybeans $2.25 to $2.25½ and March lard at $12.45 a hundred pounds.

Kansas City, Feb. 7.—An estimated 19,000 cattle jammed the Kansas City stockyards today. The heavy run apparently reflected the uneasiness of stockmen due to the price declines. Cattle prices in Chicago were off 50 cents to $2.

Butterflies Valued At $70,000 Stolen From Paris Home

NYHT News Service

Paris, Feb. 7—Thieves have pillaged one of the largest butterfly collections in the world, making off with some 20,000 butterflies worth about $70,000.

The complaint to police was made by Eugene le Moult, the most celebrated of French entomologists. The thefts occurred during the summer, while he was on vacation. Le Moult has about a million butterflies stacked up in his home, and therefore did not notice the theft until quite recently, when he remarked on the absence of a prize specimen. He promptly began to check around, discovering that his property had been ransacked of the best specimens.

Upon discovery of the theft, searches began which caused recovery of 130 of the specimens which had been sold in the butterfly market.

Dewey Speech Here Tonight Holds Interest

Plans to Give Party Critique; Many Want To Know His Own Plans

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, titular leader of the Republican Party, will speak here tonight. He is expected to answer the question: What must the GOP do to end its losing streak?

He will speak at a Lincoln Day dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, sponsored by the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia and a congressional group appointed by House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr.

It will be Governor Dewey's first major political speech since he was defeated by President Truman on November 2. According to his friends, it has been "boiling up" in him ever since that stunning event. He was so eager to deliver it and so intent on having a good sounding board for it, that he let it be known he would like to be invited here on this occasion.

Interest in the speech will not be limited to the New Yorker's where-do-we-go-from-here theme. Some members of the party would like to know more about his own plans. Despite his postelection statement that he would never again seek the Presidency, they suspect that he might try and emulate William Jennings Bryan by angling for a third nomination.

This was brought out into the open at the recent meeting of the Protestants Urged To Back Program Of Education

Columbus, O., Feb. 7 (AP).—An official of the International Council of Religious Education today urged Protestants privately to finance a program of education in religion.

Dr. Erwin L. Shaver, director of week-day religious education for the International Council, which represents 40 Protestant denominations, called on public school officials to recognize such a program as part of a child's general education.

In a speech to a section of the council's twenty-seventh annual meeting, Dr. Shaver saw "dangerous trends" in recent court decisions separating religion from public education.

Export Controls Extension Planned

Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) announced late yesterday he will call for Senate action today on extension of wartime controls on exports for 28 months.

Unless Congress renews the regulations before the end of this month, they will expire.

Under the controls, the Government has the power to limit shipment overseas of steel, foods and other commodities.

Mindszenty Is Convicted Of Treason By Hungary

Communist Court Also Confiscates His Money; Other Defendants Guilty

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 8 (AP).—Josef Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced today to life imprisonment.

He was convicted of treason, trying to overthrow the republic and foreign currency speculation.

The Communist people's court also decreed the confiscation of his money.

Professor Justin Baranyay was convicted of trying to overthrow the republic.

The Rev. Ondras Zakar, the cardinal's secretary, was convicted of the same charge and of treason.

Duke Paul Esterhazy was convicted of trying to overthrow the republic and of foreign currency speculation.

The Rev. Miklos Nagy, secretary of Catholic Action, was convicted of foreign currency speculation and failing to do his duty to the government in not exposing the other cases.

The Rev. Bela Ispenky, another priest, was convicted of treason and of foreign currency speculation.

Lazlo Toth, a journalist, was convicted of treason.

Baranyay was sentenced to 15 years and to loss of his fortune and political rights and loss of his job for 10 years.

Father Zakar was sentenced to six years, loss of his job and fortune and suspension of his political rights.

Esterhazy was sentenced to 15 years, loss of his job, political rights and fortune. He was once the richest man in Hungary.

Father Nagy was sentenced to three years plus suspension of his political rights and loss of his job for five years.

Father Ispenky got life imprisonment and was reprived of his job, political rights and his fortune.

Toth, a Catholic editor, was sentencer to 10 years plus 10 years' suspension of his job, political rights and confiscation of his property.

(The United Press reported that the defendants stood as the presiding judge read the charges, then the verdicts, then the sentences.

(Mindszenty stood with his head cocked to the left, his hands clasped in front of him. He stared straight at the judge. He showed no emotion throughout).

Can Appeal Army Sentence

Under Hungarian law the defendants can appeal any sentence to the Supreme Peoples' Tribunal. A death sentence also can be appealed to the President of Hungary if the supreme tribunal approves.

All the defendants faced possible death penalties, six of them for treason or conspiracy against the government.

Prince Paul Eszterhazy, at one time Hungary's biggest landowner, was accused of black market currency deals which the indictment said he engaged in to support the conspiracy financially. This made him also eligible for death.

Hungary Monday night firmly rejected a British protest that Britain and other nations had been barred from the trial and that the trial itself possibly violated the Hungarian peace treaty guarantees of personal liberties and religious freedom.

Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk's reply to British Minister A. K. Helm charged Britain with failure to "maintain even the semblance of impartiality" prior to the trial.

Southerners Hit Bogota Pact As Hemisphere Rights Plan

By the United Press

President Truman's request for Senate approval of the Bogota Inter-American Charter drew opposition yesterday from Senators who fear it cloaks an international civil rights program.

The pact, signed last year in revolt-torn Bogota, Colombia, is awating Senate ratification.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday the charter is "fantastic, ridiculous," and that it would violate United States principles of state and municipal rights in education, labor and racial matters.

His views are shared in part by Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.). Still another Southern Senator described it privately as an "inter-American FEPC" (Fair Employment Practices Commission) touching on racial segregation issues in this country.

The opposition is not confined to Democrats. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican foreign policy leader, is said to believe that some of the larger American nations have been far too slow in ratifying hemispheric pacts which carry heavy United States commitments for defense and peace. A total of 21 states signed the charter but to date only Costa Rica and Mexico have ratified it.

The Senate committee has deferred action indefinitely in what may be the first congressional setback for the new Secretary of State, Dean Acheson. Acheson termed the treaty "a set of aspirations and principles that the American states have in common."

George did not agree. He said:

Bill Haber, Adviser on Jewish Affairs To Gen. Clay, Hoping to Get Back Home

Now that a year in Germany as adviser on Jewish affairs to General Clay is over for Bill Haber, he is hoping to get back to that big garden of his in Ann Arbor, Mich.

It's been a long war for William Haber, Ph. D., whom Pearl Harbor shocked into giving up his job as professor of economics at University of Michigan to speed to Washington and pitch into war work. World War I found the fatherless immigrant from Rumania paying his way through high school, later college, by selling papers on a Milwaukee street corner. War II saw him as "the man behind" some of the biggest wheels in the war effort here.

Yesterday, the Army published Dr. Haber's report which stressed that anti-Semitism was strong in Germany, with no easy solution in sight. His wife Fannie and sons Ralph and Alan now hope he's had enough public service for a while and will be content to go back to his economics classes and his garden at their home in Ann Arbor's suburban Barton Hills.

An abbreviated summary of the things he's done and posts he's held takes up over half a column in Who's Who. Newspapermen who covered Paul McNutt's War Manpower Commission and Jimmy Byrnes' Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion and other powerful wartime agencies remember Bill Haber as the man who always knew what was going on.

Dr. Haber won a substantial prize in college for an authoritative essay on industrial relations, and now, crowding 50, he's a recognized authority on that and such allied subjects as social security, unemployment relief, collective bargaining and public administration.

General Clay, incidentally, got to know Dr. Haber and his talents at OWM, where the general served with the high command.

Before all this, Dr. Haber kept pretty busy serving as labor director for a big clothing firm, then taking over field administrative posts with the Reconstruction Finance Corp., National Youth Administration and Works Progress Administration. He also was consultant with the Social Security Board, National Resources Planning Board, National Refugee Service and the Bureau of the Budget.

His writings on government and its many facets have been widely studied and quoted. That's another reason why it's probably a safe bet he won't be back in his garden long before Uncle Sam or someone else calls him for advice or special service.

Germans Called Still Anti-Semitic

DR. WILLIAM HABER
Reports on Anti-Semitism

By the United Press

Anti-Semitism is still strong in Germany and there is no easy remedy in sight, William Haber, Army adviser, reported yesterday.

Haber, a professor of economics at the University of Michigan, recently returned from a one-year tour of duty as adviser on Jewish affairs to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander in Germany.

He said the hatred of Jews preached by Hitler is so deeply rooted in the German character that it cannot be stamped out by any simple measure, such as passing a law forbidding anti-Semitic displays.

"The eradication of anti-Semitism must represent the spontaneous inner urge of the German people and must flow from the democratization of Germany."

Among the ways in which postwar anti-Semitism has shown itself in the western occupation zones, he listed:

Desecration of Jewish cemeteries, articles in the German press hostile to the Jews, a widespread German tendency to blame Jewish displaced persons "exclusively" for the black market, and in general, "obvious public antagonism against the Jews."

Haber praised United States occupation authorities for their handling of the Jewish displaced persons problem, and said resettlement should be completed by June 30 next year.

In that connection, he recommended lifting a ban which has prevented Jewish men of military age from going from DP camps to Israel.

He said the DP camps should be kept under United States supervision, and not turned over to German police, and that the United States should make the "strongest" representation to the International Refugee Organization to step up resettlement of Jewish DP's in Israel.

Burma Launches Big Offensive

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 7 (AP).—Burmese government forces launched a powerful land and aerial offensive today against Karen rebels fighting in Rangoon's suburbs.

Their primary aim was to crush a rebel force which has fought for a week in and about Insein, 10 miles north of this capital city.

Noncombatants, including some Britons, were evacuated from Insein before the government began its drive. They were reported to have been fired upon by guerillas.

Approximately 4000 other refugees moved afoot down the Insein road toward Rangoon waving white flags.

Eisenhower Given Leave For Defense Job Here

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Columbia University tonight gave a temporary release from duty to its president, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, so he can give full-time advice to the National Military Establishment.

Equally reliable sources said the Egyptians had "softened up considerably" since the negotiations began and that an armistice was within sight.

New Officer Strength May Be Cut 20%

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Leaders of the House Armed Services Committee have decided to present an amendment to the Army-Air Force "composition" bill cutting the proposed new authorized officer strength by 20 per cent.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) said the amendment—approved by the policy subcommittee of the group—will be offered this morning when the full committee is expected to send the measure to the House floor. The bill would authorize a 70-group Air Force and 837,000-man Army.

Under the amendment, the number of Regular Army officers will be limited to 33,500 and the total of Regular Air Force officers to 27,500—15,000 less than in the bill. The bill provides for a ceiling of 40,000 Regular Army and 35,000 Regular Air Force officers.

Several members had objected to what they called "too many officers" and the possibility that there would be an oversupply in the upper ranks.

Both services had announced they planned to expand to these new strengths gradually during the next 10 years. Reserve officers on extended active duty will be used in the interim.

At the present time, the Army has 67,000 officers in uniform—22,300 of them Regulars and the rest reservists. Air Force officers in active service total 53,000—18,000 of whom are career men.

The planned cutback in authorized officer strength will put a lower ceiling on the number of Regular colonels the Army and Air Force are allowed. The limit is fixed at 8 per cent of the total authorized officer strength, though held below this by administrative action.

There are now 2016 Regular Army officers holding the permanent rank of colonel. Under the amendment, the limit will be 2680 instead of 3200. The Air Force will be allowed 2200 "chicken" colonels, compared with 2800 under the original bill and 569 now. Present law sets the total number of Army Air Force generals at 357, and the bill would not change that.

Other features of the bill set total Army strength at 837,000 officers and men, and provide an Air Force ceiling of 502,000 officers and men manning 70 combat groups. Actual strength," under the long-range "composition' bill would be established by annual appropriations.

Probe Asked Of Reserve

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) yesterday called for a congressional investigation of the way the Army and Air Force have handled their postwar reserve programs.

She introduced two resolutions calling for such a probe and wrote identical letters to the chairmen of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees urging early action.

Declaring the reserve branches of the Army and Air Force are in "deplorable" shape, Mrs. Smith charged that the old War Department and "its successors" have been guilty of "almost unbroken opposition" to proposals for the improvement of the reserve.

Their continued failure to act—"despite the official prodding of the President"—has her puzzled, said Mrs. Smith.

Fliers Greeted In Russian at Virginia Town

Yale, Va., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—A group of citizens of this southside Virginia community who measure their distance from Russia by a generation or so, turned out today to welcome two fliers only a few months away from the Soviet Union.

Peter Pirogov and Anatol Barsov, the fugitive fliers, beamed broadly as they heard their native tongue fluently from teen-ager and oldster alike.

What do these Americanized Russians think of Barsov's and Pirogov's escape?

"It was a fine thing for them to do," said the 61-year-old O. M. Shanko, on whose farm the reception was held. "We know enough about Russia to realize it required great courage to make the flight."

As the tour of Virginia resumed today amid some small ripples of opposition from several groups, including Amvets, William Lashley, public relations director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, took cognizance of the criticism.

"The State Department, which has cooperated with the chamber in every way to make the tour possible, feels that these fliers probably will see things that the people behind the Iron Curtain should be told about," Lashley said.

"As to the objection (made by an Amvet official) that funds of the State of Virginia are being contributed to the tour this doesn't quite connect with the facts. The State is contributing no money. It's true that the Conservation Commission has lent us an automobile for the tour but we are paying for its operation."

ERP Renewal Bill Wipes Out Grant and Loan Distinction

An Administration bill introduced into both houses of Congress yesterday wiped out the old distinction between free grants and repayable loans in financing the European Recovery Program.

Under the existing act of Congress a billion dollars, or about 20 per cent of the total made available for 12 months, was earmarked for interest-bearing loans or for guarantees to private American business.

The new bill, renewing the program until June 30, 1950, tacitly recognizes that western Europe should not be saddled with further external debts, except for a few prosperous countries well able to repay.

It earmarks no new funds for loans in the coming year, and permits the Economic Cooperation Administrator to finance all of western Europe's needs by outright grants if he sees fit.

The bill authorizes $4,280,000,000 for European recovery in the fiscal year starting next July 1, and an additional $1,150,000,000 for the last quarter of the present fiscal year from April to June. It also authorizes 150 million as a carryover to keep the pipelines to Europe filled immediately after June 30, 1950.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee introduced the bill with a statement urging Europe to contribute "the utmost in self-help."

"The European countries must labor under no illusions," he said. "The United States does not possess the Midas touch. Its resources are limited. It is not a perpetual fountain of gold."

To Explain, Defend Program

The total of $5,580,000,000 is about 17½ per cent less than the $6,800,000,000 which the Administration sought for the comparable 15-month period a year ago. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman will explain and defend the program this morning at a joint public hearing of the Senate and House Foreign Policy Committees.

The new bill consists of a relatively few amendments to the existing statute.

One of them, in the Senate version, removes a requirement that the Secretary of State or the ECA Administrator must certify, in writing, that an ECA employe "is not now and never has been" a member of any subversive organization. Hoffman and his aides insist that this provision puts an impossible and unworkable load upon them.

Requires FBI Clearance

The proposed Senate bill simply requires prior FBI clearance of every new employe, and written certification that the Secretary of State or the ECA Administrator "believes such individual is loyal to the United States, its Constitution and form of government." In Hoffman's opinion, this should be enough.

Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee did not agree, however, and the bill as introduced in the House keeps the old requirement in force.

Among other changes the new bill:

(1) Wipes out the bookkeeping device whereby the Republican Eightieth Congress charged three billion dollars of this year's ECA expenditure to last year's budget surplus;

2. Provides that nations getting free grants do not have to set aside local currencies as offsets to American technical help or to American shipping charges above "world market rates;" and that "not less than 5 per cent" of each recipient country's local currency account be allocated to American use for strategic materials or for any other purpose needed by the United States.

Scandinavia Papers Hit Russia Proposal

Rejects Idea

No Attlee Bid To Truman And Stalin

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee turned down coldly in the House of Commons today a suggestion that he invite President Truman and Premier Josef Stalin to hold a personal talk here on world peace.

His statement was made in answer to a bombardment of questions.

First, Attlee said, he sees no reason to intervene in the situation as between the United States and Russia.

Secondly, he added, he has received no official communications on the subject from either Mr. Truman or Stalin.

And thirdly, "a little initiative from the other side of Europe would help a lot" in getting the world started toward a secure peace.

In addition to Attlee's statement, another government spokesman rejected the idea of inviting Russia into the Atlantic defense pact. He said it was Rusian "obstruction, suspicion and nonco-operation that had made the pact necessary."

Leftist Independent J. F. F. Platts-Mills attacked the Atlantic alliance as "an aggressive pact" and asked whether the Government would support the idea of inviting Russia to join it.

Minister of State Hector McNeil, replying for Attlee, said:

"No. And for this reason: The negotiations for the North Atlantic pact would never have been necessary had not all attempts to organize collective security directly under the United Nations been made impossible, temporarily at least, by obstruction, suspicion and the nonco-operation of the Soviet government.

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 7 (AP).—Scandinavia's non-Communist newspapers predicted today that Norway will hold out against mounting Russian pressure and make her own decision on whether to join the projected North Atlantic alliance.

Russia was given an editorial drubbing for offering a Soviet-Norwegian non-aggression pact to Oslo. Many papers said such a pact, offered last Saturday, would be valueless and some even compared Russian diplomacy with that of Nazi Germany.

The editorial attack on the Soviet union loosed by the Swedish press probably was the heaviest there since the end of the war. Oslo newspapers said Norway had no other aim than to secure her peace and freedom and wanted to study the planned Atlantic defense system.

Foreign observers in Moscow predicted that Russia's offer to Norway would be followed by offers of similar non-aggression pacts to Sweden and Denmark.

A Swedish foreign office spokesman said no such approach yet had been made to Sweden. Political observers in Stockholm said Sweden would refuse to enter into such an agreement with Russia on the ground that it would compromise the traditional Swedish policy of "no pacts or alliances with any great powers."

During the unsuccessful talks with Norway and Denmark on a Scandinavian alliance, Sweden insisted that the grouping not be tied in with either the east or the west.

The Oslo newspaper Arbeiderbladet, representing Norway's dominant Labor Party, said a non-aggression pact with Russia would not be as valuable as a North Atlantic alliance.

The liberal Dagbladet and the Norwegian Journal of Commerce and Shipping said separate non-aggression pacts are superfluous since the United Nations Charter, to which both Russia and Norway subscribe, insists upon nonaggression.

The Norwegian Communist newspaper Reiheten said if Norway joins the Atlantic pact she would be placed in the "front line in a possible imperialistic war." Pravda, in Moscow, referred to the North Atlantic pact as "the most important lever for preparing a new world war."

their mercy politically and militarily.

But even this kind of demonstration, outwardly so easy, was not expected in informed quarters here. Reports from Scandinavia showed not the slightest sign of Soviet military activity on the Finnish border, and the Finns themselves were not alarmed.

Officials here do not minimize the difficulties that faced the three neighboring Scandinavian countries in the recent conferences on mutual defense in the north.

Sweden Clings to Neutrality

All three countries were anxious to keep their old ties intact if possible, yet Sweden clung stubbornly to a concept of neutrality which Norway and Denmark, with their memories of Nazi occupation, could no longer accept as their own.

Some officials here would still like to see the three northern neighbors make a mutual assistance alliance, of the kind Sweden actually proposed, whereby an attack against one would be regarded against all.

But as a corollary to such a northern alliance, they also would like to see Norway and Denmark join a wider community of the Atlantic nations, even if Sweden chose to stay neutral. This is believed to have been what the Norwegians proposed to their Swedish neighbors last month, but the Swedes refused.

Before going to see Acheson yesterday Lange met at the Norwegian Embassy with the Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffmann,, and the Swedish Ambassador, Erik Boheman. Both envoys, with Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, had attended the recent defense meeting in Scandinavia.

The Danish and Swedish Ambassadors had sought interviews with Acheson as soon as they returned to this country last week, but tentative appointments for yesterday were postponed.

Soviet Reported Building Big Air Raid Shelter Near Berlin

Berlin, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Russians were reported today to be building a huge underground air raid shelter outside Berlin and strengthening their secret police force.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf said the 370-room shelter is copied after the bunker in which Hitler is believed to have died. It is near completion and will be so big the entire Soviet military staff could occupy it, "cut off from the outside for many weeks," the paper said.

The refuge is in a dismantled ball bearing plant in Ruedersdorf.

The American-licensed newspaper Der Abend reported the Soviets have brought in more secret police and doubled the staff at the Frenzlauer street prison in Berlin.

Meanwhile, German Social Democrats charged that Soviet secret police had imposed a "terror regime" in the Russian zone of occupation.

"The Soviets have reestablished in their zone the successful terror regime developed by the Nazis with an almighty secret police, and concentration and forced labor camps," the report continued.

Red-Licensed Papers Irked by Truck Blockade

Berlin, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The United States and Britain clamped their "counter-blockade" on truck traffic with the Soviet zone today and Soviet-licensed newspapers denounced the move as a "provocation."

Western German police, guarding checkpoints along the Soviet zonal border, said little or no traffic showed up to provide a test for the new ban, which prohibits truck traffic "to, from, or through" the Soviet occupation zone. A similar ban on rail traffic is expected to be announced in the near future.

At the Czech border, however, German police said they expected an increase of traffic.

West Hopeful On Austria

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Diplomatic quarters revealed tonight that Russia had appointed K. V. Kissilev, top-flight diplomat and expert on Austria, to sit in on negotiations for the Austrian peace treaty starting Wednesday.

Western diplomatic quarters hoped the appointment indicated Russia was going into the new treaty discussions willing to cooperate with the representatives of the United States, Great Britain and France.

A previous attempt to write the treaty broke up last May when Russia insisted on Austria yielding territory and 150 million dollars in reparations to Yugoslavia.

Kissilev formerly was political adviser to the Russian commander in chief in Austria, where Eastern and Western delegates have enjoyed better relations than in any other occupied area.

Nanking Agent Confers With Red General

Shanghai (Tuesday), February 8 (AP).—A wartime Nationalist guerilla leader has crossed Chinese Communist lines north of Nanking to talk peace with the Reds, the North China Daily News reported today.

The British-owned newspaper said Gen. Li Ming-yang saw acting President Li Tsung-jen in Nanking January 29—Chinese New Year's Day—before cossing the Yangtze and going north.

The guerilla leader is a personal friend of both Li and Red Gen. Chen Yi, whose victorious armies are reported regrouping just north of the Yangtze.

The Daily News, quoting "competent authorities," reported Li Ming-yang is now conferring with Chen Yi at Huaiying, on the Grand Canal about 200 miles northwest of Shanghai. Li and Chen were comrades-in-arms against the Japanese during the war in northern Kiangsu Province.

Parley at Peiping

From Peiping, Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Moosa reported three members of the Nanking unofficial peace delegation were received today by Gen. Yeh Chien-ying, Communist director of the military control committee for the Peiping area.

Moosa said that, although the mission has little or no power, it would likely get "a pretty good idea whether the Reds will budge from their present stand on the so-called 'war criminal' list which now is the main obstacle to a general settlement."

The Reds have demanded the detention of Chiang Kai-shek and other Nationalist leaders on their list as a prerequisite to a settlement.

Exploiting Charged

There was growing evidence Monday night of a split between Acting President Li and Premier Sun Fo's cabinet on whether to surrender to the Reds or attempt a finish fight.

Sun, heading the refugee cabinet in Canton, declared yesterday the government would continue the war if honorable peace negotiations failed. He expressed suspicion the Reds were exploiting the government's peace pleas as a means of furthering their war successes.

Royall Leaves On Korea Tour

Tokyo, Japan, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Army Secretary Kenneth Royall went by plane to Korea today after completing a one-week inspection tour of Japan and predicting a triumph of democracy over communism.

Before he left, the United States Chamber of Commerce recommended to him that control of civilian business in Japan "be returned to civilian authority as soon as possible."

Dennis McEvoy, president of the organization in Japan, said the United States Army is not an adaptable agent in buying and selling.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson, who is accompanying Royall, told newsmen there was a feeling in high American quarters that the Japanese Public Service Act had "gone too far in some fields."

Indonesians Claim Victories

Batavia, Java, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Indonesian guerillas have intensified operations throughout Java and part of Sumatra, and forced the Dutch to retreat "at various places," the Republican underground radio claimed today.

The Dutch high command, however, reported earlier that Dutch troops were successfully continuing mopping up operations against guerillas throughout Java, and that "large scale" military operations were continuing in Sumatra.

The Indonesian broadcast claimed Dutch troops in central Java were "pinned down" around the big cities, and that guerillas attacked other units moving south of Jogjakarta, inflicting heavy losses.

It said the population of Jogjakarta was alarmed by rumors the Dutch were preparing to destroy the former Republican capital if forced to evacuate under the four power Security Council ruling.

Indonesians Are Wary On Dutch Peace Plan

Batavia, Java, Feb. 7 (AP).—Dutch efforts to short-cut United Nations proposals and employ a plan of their own to settle the fighting in Indonesia were received cagily today by the Indonesians.

Informed but unofficial sources said a group of Indonesian leaders declined to say "yes" or "no" to the Dutch plan. The Indonesians said The Hague first should announce officially what it intends to do about U. N. Security Council orders to give Indonesia self-rule and other concessions.

Netherlands officials withheld official announcement of terms.

German Tells Of Sabotage

Munich, Germany, Feb. 7 (AP).—A 29-year-old German fugitive from a Russian zone uranium mine said today organized resistance groups are sabotaging industry in the Soviet zone.

Emil Walter displayed scars left by what he said were Russian torturers. He said they tried to make him betray members of the group taking part in sabotage.

He said in an interview he had just escaped from a uranium mine where he had been sent after the Russians caught him and another worker sabotaging a light tank factory.

Walter said he was employed first at a jet aircraft factory in Halle-Baale. The factory was later dismantled and the buildings blown up by the Russians.

Walter said that in every plant resistance groups have formed secretly and, despite close watch, have managed to indulge in sabotage.

"They moved me to a light tank factory after the airplane plant was dismantled," he continued. "A comrade and I were finally caught dropping a motor to the floor to break it."

He said a favorite form of sabotage was to steal vital parts which are hard to replce.

'Curtain-Up' Peace Talks Are Proposed

By Bert Andrews
NYHT News Service

A proposal that the leaders of the United States, Great Britain and France agree to a peace meeting with Prime Minister Stalin on condition that the proceedings "shall be made known fully and factually to the Russian people" was advanced yesterday by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.).

Senator McMahon, who made his address in the Senate on his own and without consultation with the White House, declared that such a conference is "vitally urgent," but added:

"The greatest peace menace in the world is the iron curtain rigidly maintained by the Soviet government. . . . If the Russian people were to know the truth as to our aims and purposes and intentions, I cannot believe that they would ever be led into a war of aggression upon us or upon any of the nations of Europe."

His plan envisaged direct radio talks by President Truman and the heads of the French and British governments to the Russian people on the eve of formal negotiations, the talks to "set forth plainly the proposals of the democratic government."

Guarantees for adequate translations into the Russian and other Soviet languages.

An invitation to Stalin to address the American people and the people of Great Britain and France either by radio or through the press, with a similar guarantee of adequate translation.

Senate Resolution Hits Treason Trial

By the United Press

Five Republican Senators yesterday sponsored a resolution calling on the Senate to condemn as "unjust" the arrest, imprisonment and trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary.

It was introduced by Senator Styles Bridges (N. H.), and cosponsored by Senators Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge jr., both of Massachusetts; H. Alexander Smith (N. J.), and Charles W. Tobey (N. H.).

Representative Andrew L. Somers (D., N. Y.), took a more direct approach. He cabled Deputy Premier Matyas Rakosi of Hungary that if the Cardinal is "murdered . . . I shall create within your country an underground movement which will mean the eventual destruction of your government as now composed."

Bridges said the trial should stand as a reminder to Americans that "we have fallen down pitifully in what we intended would be our moral leadership in the world.

"I see only one real source of hope for avoiding a clash of arms," he said. "It is an uncompromising stand by our own Goverrment and our own people for justice and decency."

Senate Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers (Pa.) denounced the trial as an "inhuman spectacle" and recommended that the United Nations investigate "Hungarian justice."

Catholic World Raises Despairing Protest

By The Associated Press

The Catholic world outside the Iron Curtain raised despairing protest yesterday against the treason trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in Communist Hungary.

Some members of the Protestant clergy have joined in the crescendo of indignation aroused by trial of Hungary's Roman Catholic primate. In New York Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, executive director of the American Jewish League against Communism, urged formation of an interreligious movement in the cardinal's behalf "before it is too late."

In Moscow the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said "the imperialist press" had prepared for Cardinal Mindszenty a "martyr's crown of thorns."

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told a deputation from Parliament that Hungary's handling of the case "is utterly repugnant."

Pope Has No Comment

Some Vatican sources were reported to believe that Cardinal Mindszenty would be sentenced to death. The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, said, however: "We do not despair." The newspaper declared the record proved the primate "morally and civilly innocent."

Pope Pius XII refrained from comment.

In London 6000 persons prayed for Cardinal Mindszenty at a mass meeting. Some 24,000 persons for whom there was no space in Albert Hall, the meeting place, were sent to their churches to pray. The Duke of Norfolk addressed the meeting.

U. N. Debate Possible

Chilean Delegate Hernan Santa Cruz disclosed at Lake Success, N. Y., that he may raise the subject of the trial in debate before the United Nations Economic and Social council.

Dutch Catholic deputies introduced a resolution of protest against the trial in their Parliament.

The Canadian government has protested to Hungary against the arrest of the Cardinal and persecution of other Catholic leaders.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Polling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union, called the trial "rape of justice."

Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York wired Secretary of State Dean Acheson to try to prevent the "lynching" of Cardinal Mindszenty.

ment as a highly adverse act directed against the Hungarian republic (and) as an attempt on behalf of the British government to render assistance to the fascist enemies of the Hungarian democracy," the note said.

Helmeted police with tommy-guns in the crooks of their arms patrolled the streets, but there were no crowds.

The Hungarian press continued its campaign against the cardinal.

Tuesday's session will be the final act in the historic courtroom drama which began last Thursday with the cardinal's confession "in principle and in detail," but his denial that he had ever taken part in a plot to overthrow the government.

U. S. May Protest Trial Of Cardinal for Treason

The United States yesterday was reported considering a protest to Hungary against the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty on charges of plotting against Hungary's Communist regime.

Any formal diplomatic action decided upon probably will not be taken until after sentence is passed, authorities indicated.

you identify any voices in the recording?"

"My own and the defendant's," replied the witness.

A similar story was told by another former soldier, John Lynskey, 30, of Pittsburgh, who walked haltingly to the witness stand with the aid of two canes—the result of wounds during the Normandy action.

After identifying Miss Gillars, the youthful-looking, slim veteran told how she came into his ward wearing "a Red Cross pin."

Speaking of the recorded interview, he said: "I didn't know what to say and she helped me along."

"There was an air raid siren broke loose and she said she guessed it wasn't fun to be lying in bed," Lynskey continued.

After the interview, Lynskey testified, "I specifically thanked her for the Red Cross. I thought it was doing a very good job at that time."

(Lynskey's and Kestel's interviews contained commonplace messages to their loved ones, telling them not to worry.

(At the conclusion of the recording, the voice Lynskey identified as Miss Gillars' told the mother of another soldier interviewed:

("And so, Mrs. Pansy, if you are listening in tonight, you heard your son's voice. You also heard how difficult it was for him to speak (pause) his coughing (pause) and all of that, which of course was the result of having got this (pause) bullet in the throat. . . .")

Blonde, statuesque Miss Doman, who told the court her stepmother was Metropolitan Opera Star Elizabeth Rethberg, followed the former soliders to the stand.

A former announcer for the German radio, she had identified Miss Gillars' voice in a number of recordings.

"Was there ever an occasion when it appeared she was working under force or compulsion?" Kelley asked.

"No, sir," replied the witness.

Laughlin, who in lengthy cross-examination had been demanding of witnesses whether they were working, how they lived, and how much money they were getting as fees for testifying, demanded of Miss Doman:

"Have you been promised you might get a stage contract?"

"I have no interest in the stage," the witness replied evenly.

At another point, Laughlin demanded suddenly: "By the way, Miss Doman, were you anti-Roosevelt?"

Asked by Laughlin about specific broadcasts, the witness admitted she did not know if the defendant had "anything to do with them."

Brought here from Germany to testify, Miss Doman said she had been earning $200 a month as a governess for a family in South Carolina.

A defense witness, Emil Beckmann, who, according to Laughlin, will testify that Miss Gillars was under duress when she broadcast, yesterday was reported ready to emplane at Heidleburg for this country. A second witness also supposed to be ready to testify that Miss Gillars was in fear of her life had not yet been located in Germany by Government agents.

Slated to testify when the trial resumes at 10 a. m. today before Federal Judge Curran are Michael Evanick of New York, a former soldier supposedly given cognac before being interviewed by Miss Gillars, and Hans von Richter, former German radio official who is slated to tell of meeting Miss Gillars hiding in Bavaria after the Allied victory.

oming. Some were held up outside of the storm area.

The storm made air lines shift routes but did not stop planes.

In Idaho, all main highways were clogged or opened only periodically behind snow plows as wind shipped up to 1 foot of new snow into drifts. U. S. Highway 30, main East-West artery through southern Idaho was blocked at a half dozen places east of Boise. All North-South roads were barred to traffic. Schools in Pocatello and many rural areas were closed.

State of Emergency Declared

Gov. C. A. Robins proclaimed a state of emergency in Idaho in order to obtain Red Cross and Federal help in relief work.

Oregon took stock of the worst snowstorm of the winter. Here, too, transportation was snarled and scores of public schools were closed. Union Pacific trains for the East were cancelled at Portland. U. S. Highway 30 was blocked between Union and Baker. Pacific Highway 99 was choked north of Grant's Pass after two big plows broke down. Buses were held up at Pendleton and Medford. All schools in the Klamath basin were shut. Mororists were asked to stay home.

In California, U. S. Highway 40 was closed through Donner Pass by huge drifts. Snow continued to fall in some of the mountain areas of the coast, and central California had heavy rains.

Weathermen said it was too early to assess the storm moving in from the Pacific. It was expected to reach the coast Tuesday.

Relief Squads Are Busy

Fifth Army headquarters in the Wyoming-South Dakota-Nebraska emergency road-opening operation reported 3498 miles of roads cleared in a 24-hour period, bringing to more than 13,000 miles the highways opened since January 29.

Since that date, when the Army took over direction of the relief work, nearly 750,000 cattle and sheep in urgent need of hay and water were reached, and more than 26,000 persons dug out of snowbound farms, ranches and communities.

The Army reported that weekend snows and ground blizzards closed all roads previously opened in Wyoming, however. Some roads in the Alliance and Chadron areas of Nebraska were blocked again.

Near Window Rock, Ariz., a food package dropped from an airlift plane killed an Indian woman, Supt. James M. Stewart of the Navajo Reservation reported.

Somewhat milder weather reached the Midwest yesterday after subzero temperatures spread east from the plains to the Great Lakes region Sunday night. There was sone light snow in New York and New England and rain in the Southeast. Temperatures eastward from the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley were mild.

Unlimited Amount Authorized for Relief

President Truman yesterday authorized the Interior Department to spend unlimited funds to open roads and provide other relief for Western blizzard areas.

The action was announced by Assistant Secretary of the Interior William E. Warne.

Builders' Fears of Public Housing Program Declared Groundless by Commissioner Egan

Private builders have nothing to fear from a public housing program for low-income families, Public Housing Commissioner John Taylor Egan told the Senate Banking Committee yesterday.

He testified on the public housing and slum clearance provisions of the Administration's housing bill.

Meanwhile, Administrator Raymond M. Foley of the Housing and Home Finance Agency launched yesterday his Nation-wide economy housing program to aid the "little man" in the lower brackets of the middle income group.

65 Conferences Called

Foley announced that conferences would be held in 65 key cities this week of all segments of the home building industry to break the bottlenecks preventing the building of good homes at less than $10,000.

The Federal Government, Foley said, will give every cooperation to private enterprise in a concerted effort to lower the cost of housing.

Raymond C. Smith, assistant chief, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, told the Banking Committee the Department of Agriculture indorsed the farm home provision of the Adminstration bill.

Farm Needs Cited

The need for better housing is even more acute on the farm than in the city, Smith declared, although he said conditions had improved somewhat with the recent higher farm incomes. He declared:

"In April, 1947, for example, 67.3 per cent of rural-farm dwellings lacked running water, while only 4.5 per cent of urban dwellings lacked this facility; only 20 per cent of farm dwellings had private bath and flush toilets, while about 84 per cent of urban dwellings were so equipped; about 60 per cent of farm dwellings and 98 per cent of urban dwellings had electric lights. About 10 per cent of occupied rural-farm dwellings were overcrowded, and less than half of this percentage of urban dwellings. Whereas 83 per cent of the urban housing units possessed all designated modern facilities, such as lights, running water, bath and flush toilet, only 19 per cent of farm dwellings were so well provided."

'Black Market' Rents Cited

that the power to control these permanent residents be restored.

Removal of rent control, Woods warned, would be a serious blow to the nation's economy.

Wolcott Airs Views

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), ranking minority member of the committee, told reporters that so far as he was concerned he favored only a six monthss extension of rent control until it can be seen what effect dropping prices and employment may have.

Wolcott added, however, that he supposed the Democratic majority would brush aside his objections and push through the Administration bill anyway.

The growing black market is largely due to his agency's lack of authority to bring treble damage actions, to apply criminal sanctions, and to regulate evictions, Woods told the committee.

Tenants, he said, are generally afraid to bring action against landlords for fear of being evicted.

"From my association with rent control for the past six years on every level of operation, including the area office, the regional office, and the national office, I am absolutely convinced that the key to effective rent control is adequate eviction control," Woods said.

Realtors Hit Controls

Meanwhile the Realtors' Washington Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards issued a statement declaring that rent control drives housing off the market, resulting in fewer apartments and houses for rent.

Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) said spokesmen for landlords and tenants will all have an opportunity to air their views before the hearings close. The committee expects to given full details on a movement by some Tulsa, Okla., landlords to withdraw rent property from the market altogether in protest against controls.

Woods asked the committee for:

1. Two-year extension of controls.
2. Authority for the Housing Expediter to bring treble damage actions, apply criminal sanctions against wilful violators, and regulate evictions.
3. Recontrol permanent dwelling units in hotels and housing units not rented for a 24-month period.
4. Limited decontrol of converted homes only.
5. Authorization to recontrol areas and establish controls in new areas.
6. Emergency Court of Appeals review of the Housing Expediter's decisions only on complaints filed by rent advisory boards instead of the present automatic referral in case the expediter overrules the board.
7. Elimination of the present provision for so-called "voluntary" rent hikes up to 15 per cent.

Bogota Pact Is Opposed

"It would upset a good many State and municipal laws regarding education, labor and other matters. I am surprised at the scope of the thing and its details amount to almost the regulations of a local police force or town council."

The charter seeks to codify inter-American organizations which have developed over the last 60 years and it would pledge all American states to regard an attack on one as an attack on all. But it also included these provisions which drew fire from the Senators.

1. "The American states proclaim the fundamental rights of the individual without distinction as to race, nationality, creed or sex.
2. "Higher education shall be available to all, without distinction as to race, nationality, sex, language creed or social condition."
3. Member states would pledge themselves to elimination of discrimination in employment practices and in fostering "spiritual growth."

Power to Seize Plants Is Urged

tions could be left to the President's power to act.

But Davis now has "reluctantly" changed his position and believes Congress ought to "make it perfectly plain" that the President should "act first and report to them later."

Said Davis: "The way it looks to one elderly citizen is like this . . . the American people are not satisfied to have a dispute go on in Congress over the President's powers in a national emergency. If a statute is necessary, then for God's sake let's have the statute."

Last night Davis was questioned for hours by Republicans.

Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) asked him opinion of various T-H provisions, one by one.

When they came to the provision that permits unions to be sued in Federal courts for breach of contract, Davis said:

"Senator, that's the rottenest provision ever put in a statute of the United States that I'm acquainted with . . . it violates States' rights . . . it may be constitutional—I don't think so—but I know it's unnecessary, it's thoroughly un-American, and it was put in the act, in my opinion, in a vengeful spirit."

Senator Taft quickly denied this.

On the other hand, Davis favored the Taft-Hartley provisions which require a union to bargain and require both unions and employers to notify each other 60 days before ending or changing a contract.

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) said meanwhile in a talk prepared for broadcast that the greatest fault in the Taft Hartley act "is that it shifts the basic relationship between unions and employers from a friendly effort to find common ground to bickering legal proceedings.

"In President Truman's proposal," he added, "we aim to restore the practice of collective bargaining."

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, read a short statement at the start of the morning session. Before any questions were asked, he was dismissed in order to make way for Davis. Denham will come back today to be questioned.

In his statement, he said in cautious language that the Taft-Hartley Act is "basically sound" though "not perfect." And he said the Taft-Hartley system of having the general counsel independent of the five-man board has increased the "good will" and "reputation for fair dealing" of the NLRB regional offices. Denham controls those offices.

'Government Girl' In Post Contest To Become Model

Miss Gini MacNaught, who won the Washington Post's "Government Girl" contest just a year ago on February 8, 1948, will take off today for the modeling career she's always dreamed of.

Miss MacNaught, a secretary for the Veterans Administration, leaves her Government job to become a model for the Ford Agency in New York City. Her first assignment, says the slender brunette, will be posing cruise clothes for Vogue magazine on an all-expense-paid trip to Florida.

The 21-year-old contest winner, whose address here has been 4615 21st st. nw., was the model for "Beverly" in the Mary Worth comic strip episode dealing with a Washington Senator last year.

Industrialists Fear Slump

Boston, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Associated Industries of Massachusetts, representing more than 2000 manufacturers, reported yesterday "marked retrenchments in industries . . . which indicate our industrial economy is facing depressive conditions."

The report was submitted to Gov. Paul A. Dever with a request that he and the Legislature "study all problems . . . to protect the industrial well-being; to stop further migration and help . . . keep us in a competitive position."

The manufacturers' group said a survey showed 124 manufacturers went out of business in 1948, idling 13,370 workers.

Just tell in 25 words or less why you like "Chicken Every Sunday." It's really very simple. Everybody likes "Chicken Every Sunday," but for inspiration we suggest you call HObart 3884 and order one of Haje's "Chicken In the Rough" dinners and just tell the truth. For instance, "I like Chicken every Sunday because crisp golden, chicken is that extra treat I want Sundays. I can really enjoy Haje's chicken because I don't have any of the bother of preparation." It's as easy as that.
HERE'S THE WAY TO ENTER! Get an entry blank at Loew's Capitol Theater, or from any cashier at Haje's, or from their delivery boys. Write in 25 words or less why you like "Chicken Every Sunday." Print your full name, address and phone number on the entry blank. Then send your entry to the "Chicken Every Sunday" Editor at Loew's Capitol Theater, or give it to one of Haje's cashiers or delivery boys.
CONTEST OPEN TO any resident of greater Washington, except employes of Loew's, Haje's, their advertising agencies and their immediate families.
70 Winners
20 winners will receive Chicken Every Sunday for 3 for a whole month, delivered by Haje's each Sunday.
50 winners will receive two guest tickets each to Loew's Capitol Theater.

LARGEST FINANCIAL INSTITUTION IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL
"I have not a hundred dollars which is not deposited with Corcoran & Riggs . . ."

AMOS KENDALL, Postmaster General in Jackson's second administration and publisher of a Washington newspaper, wrote the above words in 1841 — the year following the formation of the partnership of Corcoran & Riggs.
Although possessed of only modest means at the time, Kendall early saw the possibilities of Samuel Morse's telegraph and subsequently made a fabulous fortune as one of the leaders in its commercial development.
The same unerring foresight evidently prompted his patronage of the young banking house which, 108 years later, would occupy the position of "Largest Financial Institution in the Nation's Capital".
For more than a century the RIGGS banking tradition has been a bulwark in the economic life of Washington and the Nation.
In President Andrew Jackson's first administration, Kendall was unofficial advisor and member of the so-called "Kitchen Cabinet".

AFL Asks End of Discriminatory Practices In Paying U. S., Other Canal Zone Workers

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Miami, Fla., Feb. 7.—The American Federation of Labor called on Congress to end its discriminatory pay system for Panama Canal Zone employes.

The AFL executive council, in session here, issued its statement following a long investigation of labor conditions of some 5000 Americans and 25,000 other Federal employes in the Canal Zone.

The non-American workers—also known as silver rate and local rate employes—are for the most part Negroes and citizens of Panama and Jamaica; these are paid substantially less than the American citizens who are white.

Equal Pay for Equal Work

The council urged that the United States agencies operating in the Canal Zone be directed to pay equal wages for equal work "whenever done by people who are qualified by training or apprenticeship regardless of their nationality, race or color.

In suport of its move to eliminate discrimination in labor standards, the AFL called on its union affiliates to go out and organize the non-American working population. Without saying it in so many words, the AFL in effect urged those of its unions drawing the color line to lift the bars in the Canal Zone.

William Green, AFL president, pointed out that it was contrary to the policy of the parent American Federation of Labor for affiliates to refuse membership to Negroes. There's been a "little" change in the attitude of those that still maintain such a ban, Green said.

The council asked for immediate increase of the minimum wage for "local rate" employes from the present 26 cents an hour to the American minimum of 40 cents an hour; immediate equalization of pay for skilled non-American workers; and gradual equalization of pay for the semi skilled colored employes.

The council also recommended that Congress quickly adopt legislation to improve the housing facilities for both groups of workers. Housing conditions for American workers are "very much deficient," and for non-Americans "far below decent standards," the council commented.

Investigation of Canal Zone conditions was made by a joint committee of the AFL and the Inter-American Confederation of Workers.

The Building Service Employes Union today asked the AFL council for aid in obtaining more flexible administration of the national rent control laws.

William McFeteridge, union head, said that the way rent controls now operate serves to freeze wages for elevator operators and other building employes. McFetridge emphasized his union was for rent controls, but that relief might be obtained through less red tape in permitting rental increases for increased operating costs.

Big Navy Plane Ends Round Trip Across Country

San Francisco, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Constitution, giant Navy transport plane, completed its inaugural transcontinental round trip early today, arriving at nearby Moffett Field from Washington.

Because of strong headwinds the time of the return flight to the West Coast was almost double that of the eastward trip Thursday.

It took 18 hours and 8 minutes to return, including an hour-and-a-half stop at Olathe, Kans., where the plane refueled.

Thursday the Constitution made a nonstop trip East in 9 hours and 35 minutes.

The plane carried 81 passengers and 19 crewmen from Washington to Moffett, the largest number ever to make a transcontinental flight. Thursday there were 72 passengers and 18 crewmen aboard.

Senate Confirms Nomination Of Donaldson as Postal Chief

By The Associated Press

The nomination of Jesse M. Donaldson, career postal employe, as postmaster general was confirmed by the Senate yesterday.

It also confirmed these other nominations from President Truman:

Dean Rusk to be an Assistant Secretary of State.

William McChesney Martin, jr., to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Frank A. Southard, jr., of Ithaca, N. Y., to be executive director of the International Monetary Fund.

Donald F. Carpenter of Connecticut to be chairman of the Munitions Board.

Karl T. Compton of Massachusetts to be chairman of the Research and Development Board.

Meanwhile President Truman yesterday formally nominated Mon C. Wallgren, former Governor of Washington, to the chaimanship of the National Security Resources Board.

The President sent Wallgren's nomination to the Senate along with a list of other officials now serving in their posts under recess appointments. Practically all of them had been given diplomatic posts or position in international organizations.

These included the nomination of W. Averell Harriman, roving Ambassador of the Foreign Aid Program, as United States representative on the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

Another nomination was that of John J. MacDonald of Missouri as United States representative on the Truce Commission for Palestine.

James Grover McDonald was named special representative of the United States to the provisional government of Israel and mentioned as possible first Ambassador to that country.

Reds Refused Use of Secret Court Papers

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A Federal jurist today barred defense use of confidential government court papers in the trial of 11 high American Communists.

Admission of the papers, Judge Harold R. Medina ruled, would reveal "all details of the administration of justice . . . to those who, perhaps, may misuse them in some way."

The documents are working papers and other memoranda of the administrative office of the United States courts.

Defense counsel had subpenaed the papers as part of their attack on the jury-picking system in the New York Federal district. This method, they contend, discriminates in favor of the rich and against the poor and members of minority groups.

Because of the alleged discrimination, defense attorneys argue, the indictment against their clients, all members of the American party's national committee, should be voided. They are charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the United States Government.

Regarding the government papers the defense last week subpenaed Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the United States courts, and Leland L. Tolman, assistant chief of the office's division of procedural studies and statistics.

Chandler told the court there was no objection to the use of a report made by Tolman in 1940 and 1941 on the jury selection methods used in this district.

Earlier, counsel for three CIO unions, protesting the jury-picking methods here, was granted permission to file court briefs at the trial.

The three unions are the International Fur and Leather Workers, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers Union.

House Passes Federal Reorganization Bill, 306 to 9

agencies such as SEC, ICC, etc., had certain "quasi-legislative" and "quasi-judicial" functions, that couldn't be changed by executive order. But he added that they also had administrative functions some of which he felt should be revised.

He also declared that they shouldn't have special treatment because of their "quasi-legislative and judicial" functions, because similar functions are possessed by regular Government departments —such as the Commodity Exchange Authority in the Agriculture Department.

He said the "worst case" of any so-called regulatory agency which should be subject to reorganization was the Maritime Commission. It was "totally undesigned for the enormous business ventures thrust upon it," he said, with the result that the whole operation "fell on its side."

Terms Exemptions "Disastrous"

"It would be a disaster," Hoover declared, "to exempt any executive agency from this bill." Again he mentioned with emphasis, the Military Establishment, including the Army Engineers, which he said made up from one fourth to one third of his commission's report.

His comments about the "propaganda drive" to exempt the Army Engineers, brought considerable response from the Senate Committee. Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) reported that the clerk of the committee had told him that 2000 telegrams in favor of exempting engineers from reorganization plans had been received. Others told of "tremendous pressure" with Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) reporting he had received 57 telegrams yesterday, which he was willing to show to any member of the committee.

(Taylor, Wallaceite candidate for Vice Presiden. last November, told Mr. Hoover how much he admired him, and added that he "was sorry" he had said unkind things about him in the past. Hoover squeezed out a small smile.)

'Evidence of Confusion'

"My strongest urge," Hoover said, and repeated in substance several times, "is not to exempt the military arm of the Government." He indicated changes in the Army Engineers setup will be recommended and added that "evidence of confusion and reasons for the changes" will be submitted in his report.

He said that only about 200 Army engineers are engaged in the civil functions of harbor construction, flood control, bridge building, etc., compared to 2500 to 3000 civil engineers.

He declared that the training such civilian activities provided was of no value for military operations, and added that "perhaps because I happen to be an engineer it appeals to me more than to other persons.

He said that the Secretary of Defense had virtually no control over the agency, and declared that "it is an intolerable situation when administrative agencies are independent of the executive arm." The President's power over the Army Engineers extends "through the Secretary of Defense," and consists of only the power that the latter possesses.

Mr. Hoover declined to estimate how much savings could be accomplished under his reorganization plan. He said heads of the task forces working with his commission has estimated "many billions." He thought perhaps it might total around three billions a year, if the plan is not too greatly changed.

Amendments Defeated

Among amendments the House beat down in passing the bill, were:

1. By Representative Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) to provide for separate measures in reorganizing any so-called "quasi-judicial" agencies—by 151 to 86.

2. By Representative Dwight L. Rogers (D., Fla.) to provide that no change can be made in the Army Engineers except by affirmative vote by both Houses—by 143 to 82.

3. By Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) to limit the measure to President Truman's term expiring January 20, 1953—by voice vote.

4. By Representative Boyd Tackett (D., Ark.) to knock out all exemptions, including armed forces, and regulatory agencies—by 142 to 95.

The House, with a laugh, passed an amendment by Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) to give the President power to "terminate" the affairs of any agencies abolished under the law, instead of "winding up" the agencies.

The first of the 15 Hoover Commission reports was delivered to the House at noon. It called for broad new powers for the President over his official family. It included a proposal that 65 departments and agencies be squeezed into one-third that number

The report didn't list the agencies it wants merged or eliminated. But a task force had recommended stripping the Army Engineers of the river development plans.

Other Recommendations

The recommendations also included:

1. Creation of a staff secretary in the White House to keep the President informed on issues pending or that may develop.

2. Establishment of an office of personnel in the White House to advise the President on Government employment problems.

3. Replacement of the President's Council of Economic Advisers with a single adviser. This chief adviser and his aides and office force would be a part of the White House staff.

4. More orderly grouping of Government work into major departments, with "line of command" from the President down.

5. Direct an enlarged presidential control over the National Security Council and National Security Resources Board, with lessened military influence in the former.

6. Simplification and coordination of Government work outside Washington.

Arlington Man Pleads Innocent In Shotgun Death

William E. Warren, 33, of 1627 S. 13th st., Arlington, yesterday pleaded innocent to a charge of murder in the shotgun slaying of Luther T. Tillman, 36, on Friday night.

Following the pleading in Arlington County Court, Warren's attorney, John Paul Jones, asked that his client be given a psychiatric examination.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Brown said he has not yet determined whether or not there will be time for the examination before the grand jury meets February 21.

Warren voluntarily surrended to police Saturday evening after Tillman, a truck driver, was found dead in his automobile from the shotgun blast.

D. C. Merci Gifts Split With Hawaii

Crate after crate of gifts sent to the District of Columbia by the people of France were unloaded yesterday from the Thank You Train—but Washington will have to wait until late today to find out what's in them.

When the 49 boxcars for each State and the District arrived in the United States, loaded with nearly a million dollars worth of art works, family heirlooms and sentimental gifts, it was discovered that the French had overlooked Hawaii, one of the contributors to the Freedom Train load of food sent from the U. S. to France.

The National Capitol Merci Train committee, in charge of the Washington boxcar, agreed that half the gifts earmarked for the District should go to Hawaii.

The French boxcar, a "40 and 8", will be kept here. Committee members expressed the hope that it may be placed in the Smithsonian Museum.

The crates will be unpacked today, catalogued and placed in the display windows of Woodward & Lothrop for a week's exhibit.

Senate Defers FilibusterFight

Wednesday. Knowland told reporters he will file another "discharge" motion Thursday and again put the Senate on record.

Senate Rules Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.), coauthor of one of the proposed filibuster curbs, asked the Senate to judge "whether a committee which conducted hearings and completed them in less than 10 days is derelict in its duty."

Hayden charged the same committee under Republican control held hearings for more than 20 days and let the proposal die on the Senate calendar after 15 months of inaction.

Pressed by Republicans, Hayden refused to say flatly that his committee will report the filibuster curb Wednesday.

"I simply do not prophecy; I do not engage in predictions," said Hayden. "In that way I keep myself 100 per cent correct."

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebra.) suggested the vote on Knowland's motion be postponed until Thursday. By that time, he said, the Rules Committee may have acted favorably, making a "discharge" vote unnecessary. Lucas, however, refused to agree.

Senate Majority Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), who personally advocates strict majority vote cloture, supported Lucas' contention that the committee has acted diligently, and said he expects committee action Wednesday.

Lucas Sees 'Politics'

Under questioning by Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), however, Myers agreed that "the sooner we consider it the better if we expect to get action this session."

Calling the Knowland motion "political poppycock," Lucas said: "This overzealousness and enthusiasm is in sharp contrast to the Republican lethargy of two years ago."

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) replied that the Democrats made "fine speeches" on civil rights but the country expected "action."

Morse charged Democrats "dare not bring up civil rights legislation because they know it would split that (Democratic) side of the aisle wide open." Like Knowland, the Oregonian argued that a filibuster has to be broken early in the session because it is impossible to do so near the end of a session.

Lucas retorted that it "ill behooves" Republicans to talk about party unity after their sharp National Committee split in Omaha, Nebr.

"We're talking about civil rights, not unity or disunity," came back Wherry. "It shows a party's alive to have a little disunity now and then."

The seven Republicans who crossed party lines to oppose Knowland's discharge motion were Senators Forrest C. Donnell and James P. Kem (Mo.), Zales M. Ecton (Mont.), William H. Langer and Karl Mundt (N. Dak.), Clyde M. Reed (Kans.) and Arthur V. Watkins(Utah.)

Dairymen Urged To Back Peace Aims for Security

More than 1000 members of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, Inc., attended the twenty-ninth annual banquet of the association yesterday in the main ballroom of the Statler Hotel.

The feature address of the luncheon banquet was delivered by Robert Lee Humber of New York, chairman of International Committee for Peace, Inc., who urged the dairymen to support world government now as the only means of avoiding "annihilation" and achieving security.

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, acted as toastmaster and Justin Lawrie served as master of ceremonies. The banquet closed with dancing acts and community singing.

Man Saves Cripple, Dies In Fire to Aid Others

Kinston, N. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Zack Potter, 38, saved a cripple from burning today, then returned to a flaming shanty to help three other men. All four died.

Amos Moore, the cripple, said Potter carried him to safety, then rushed back into the wooden structure. His clothing caught fire. He never reached the three. His body was found 20 feet from the shanty where he fell with clothes ablaze.

Dewey Speech Awaited With Interest

Republican National Committee in Omaha. One of the arguments flung at Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr., was that he might try to use the party machinery to make Dewey the GOP standard bearer again in '52. Scott, the Governor's choice for national chairman last June, held on to his post by the narrow vote of 54 to 50.

With Governor Dewey when he comes here today will be two of his most faithful lieutenants — Paul Lockwood, his secretary, and James Hagerty, his press officer. Hagerty said in Albany that if the weather is fair today, the party will come to Washington by plane, arriving about 1 or 1:30 p. m. If the trip is made by train, they expect to get in about 2:30 or 3:30 p. m. They will make their headquarters at the Mayflower.

Governor Dewey has been reported as saying in private conversation that the Republican Party can never hope to win unless it can disabuse the public mind of the idea that it is dominated by big business. His friends say that he feels the thing that most contributed to his defeat was President Truman's campaign cry that the Republican Party was the party of "special interests" and the Democratic Party of "the people."

Other Republican orators will be on the air with Lincoln Day speeches throughout the week.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan will speak in Detroit at 9:30 p. m. Thursday and his speech will be carried by the NBC network.

Three national broadcasts have been arranged for Saturday. Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado will be heard on ABC at 10 p.m. House Republican Leader Martin will be on the Mutual network at 7:30 p. m., and Republican National Chairman Scott will be on CBS at 10:45 p. m.

Boy Scouts Open 2-Year Member 'Crusade' Today

More than two million Boy Scouts of America will celebrate their thirty-ninth anniversary today by launching a two-year "crusade" to increase their membership and enlarge the scope of scouting activities.

In a message to the Scouts, President Truman, who is their honorary president, challenged them to achieve maximum results to "strengthen the arm of liberty."

Twelve Eagle Scouts, outstanding among their number scattered across the Nation, will arrive in Washington today to take part in week-long ceremonies launching the crusade.

Nurse Tells Of Cabbie Case

indicate how the patient had come into the hospital.

"That's all I wrote on the card and then I threw the card away when he said he was going to a private physician," Miss Mara said.

Rowell has said he went to Emergency Hospital after the fracas but left the hospital because he could not get treated promptly, that the nurse on duty kept asking for details.

James G. Capossela, superintendent of Emergency Hospital, confirmed that the nurse told him that a man had walked into the emergency room on January 14 and refused treatment when he learned hospital records would be seen by police.

Capossela said Miss Marra had told him, a day or so after the incident, the man had walked out because he thought he had been beaten by two policemen and did not want to get "involved" with police.

"I get all reports on police cases the next day or so," Capossela noted. "Miss Marra said she thought it was Rowell and I do too, but I'm not positive."

Rowell has told reporters that he later went to Garfield Hospital for treatment. Records at Garfield Hospital state Rowell came in for treatment at 6 a. m. on January 14. He was treated for head and left arm injuries. He was told to return for X-rays but did not, a hospital official said.

Rowell has told reporters that while he was at Garfield Hospital he was contacted by police. The report carried at the Second Precinct station house states that about 4:45 a. m. Rowell "was attacked by two unknown white men."

Strange Will Not Comment

Capt. Clyde N. Strange, head of the Second Precinct, yesterday refused to affirm or deny that he interviewed Rowell sometime on January 14.

In answer to questions, Strange refused to say whether Rowell had given him the license number of the car the attackers used, and whether the tag number was assigned to a police car.

"I'm not giving any information," said Strange. "I don't have to divulge that."

"I'm not doing any talking on the phone," the captain replied to further questions. "How do I know if you are a reporter or not or if you're making a recording of this?"

The reporter offered to talk with the captain in the captain's office and produce credentials to establish his name and his standing as a reporter for The Washington Post. The captain said he was too busy to talk in his office.

"Regulations forbid anyone to interfer in anyone else's case," the captain further observed, pointing out that Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, had been placed in charge of the investigation on January 29.

Asked for details about two Second Precinct policemen, Privates M. W. McClanahan and D. F. Reid, who said they passed by the beating scene after hearing a commotion, Strange said he had forwarded a report to Inspector Bryant.

Neither Bryant nor Police Chief Barrett would comment on whether they had received such a report, and if so, what it contained. Nor would they comment on whether they had received a report on any interview Captain Strange may have held with the cabbie, Rowell.

"The case is still under investigation," said Barrett, "and I refuse to discuss it at this time." He claimed he was "misquoted last week" but refused to say when except that it allegedly occurred "in several instances."

Barrett also replied, "No comment" to the following questions:

Q. Having said last week you would not hold a lineup with the two policemen you named in the beating case for identification by Rowell, what made you change your mind?

(Barrett had said he thought Rowell had been persuaded not to identify his assailants.)

Q. Since Rowell did not identify them, have you changed your mind about thinking they are guilty?

Q. Having learned that the two policemen are recorded as having been at No. 13 Precinct making another arrest at 5:15 a. m. that day, do you think they could have been at Thomas Circle at 4:45 a. m. when Rowell was assaulted?

This last question referred to police records discovered by a reporter Saturday. These indicated the two policemen named by Barrett were busy making another arrest at the time, or shortly after the time of the Thomas Circle incident. The arrest was booked at 5:15 a. m. at the Thirteenth Precinct Station.

Rowell, a former clothing salesman, has been driving a cab since last May, he has said. According to Police Chief Barrett, Rowell has no police record.

Rowell said he paused on his way into the drug store at Thomas Circle to watch two men slapping a third man.

When he came out of the store, Rowell said, he was accused by the two men of having phoned Second Precinct police. Rowell said he was then beaten, forced into a car by the two men, driven around the block, and let out.

Witness Tells of Mystery Car Near Glen Burnie Death Scene

Baltimore, Feb. 7.—A mystery car that turned up twice at a lonely gravel pit near the clearing where a Glen Burnie couple, slain that night, was found went into the testimony at Thomas Alexander Edwards' murder trial today.

The defense also produced testimony that contradicted the State's murder theory and Edwards' confession the prosecution submitted on how red-haired, 18-year-old Mary c. Kline died.

She and her escort, John Mahlan, 25-year-old postal worker, were found shot to death in the clearing off Chesterfield rd. sev-days after disappearing on September 17, when they went for a ride together.

Edwards was described by defense character witnesses as an easy-going, pleasant fellow who did not drink or smoke or brawl.

The main defense efforts were directed at showing that the 23-year-old Anne Arundel County man's confession to police could not have been a true statement.

They Add Up to a Brighter Future for the South

"Look Ahead—Look South!"

Last year the Southern Railway System repeated this invitation to industries over 43 million times in advertisements in the nation's leading magazines.

Why are we "telling the world" about the South year after year? Because every new factory that sets-up-shop here means more jobs...more business for local merchants... more dollars to spread across the South and into our homes...and more traffic for the Southern.

Along our lines, in the past several years, new industries have "come South" at the rate of more than one a day! And they keep coming!

When the bookkeepers of the future total their accounts, we believe they'll find that our efforts and enthusiasm have added up to greater things for all of us... to more opportunity for our youngsters... to a brighter future for the Southland.

High Court Grants Marzani Rehearing

Wolford Defense

GI Purposely Froze Feet, Officer Says

Fort Meade, Md., Feb. 7 (AP).—Capt. Samuel H. Wolford took the stand in his own defense today, and testified that American Army prisoners in his solitary confinement block "looked all the same to me."

Wolford, a native of Clear Spring, Md., is charged with neglecting his duty and "cruel, unjust and inhumane" treatment of prisoners at the Wurzburg, Germany, disciplinary camp.

The captain told the court-martial he could not remember any particular prisoner confined to the Wurzburg solitary block, of which he was the commanding officer.

He was asked if he remembered seeing the three former solitary inmates who have appeared as prosecution witnesses. His reply was "no."

Asked about Pvt. Joseph Suggs, one of the witnesses who attributed amputation of both his feet to frostbite suffered when in solitary for a week, Wolford said he thought Suggs froze his feet "intentionally, in order to go to the hospital."

Furthermore, the captain testified, he was not at Wurzburg from January 2 to 9, 1947, the week Suggs was committed to solitary. He said he went to Bremerhaven to pick up his automobile, which had been shipped from the United States.

The defense rested its case, and Lieut. Col. William C. Fitzhugh, chief prosecutor, said he will sum his up Thursday morning, when he will recall Suggs to the stand.

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to reconsider its decision upholding the conviction of former State Department employe, Carl Aldo Marzani, convicted of concealing Communist affiliations.

Granting a petition to rehear the case, the high court will review the action it took on December 20, when it reached a 4-4 vote which affirmed the lower courts' decisions on Marzani's guilt.

At that time, the high court wrote no opinion in the case, and Justice William O. Douglas took no part in the decision.

It was announced yesterday that Justice Douglas also took no part in voting on the petition for a rehearing, and it is believed likely that he will not participate in the rehearing either.

Sees State of Confusion

In seeking the rehearing, Marzani's attorneys said the equal division of the high court "leaves the law in a state of confusion."

Whatever Justice Douglas' reasons for disqualifying himself from the case originally, they said, "petitioner is completely satisfied that if Mr. Justice Douglas were to reconsider his nonparticipation and agree to hear and decide this case, petitioner would be accorded a scrupulously fair hearing and decision, and therefore, unconditionally and unqualifiedly waives any possible objection that might be raised to such participation."

Urge Jackson to Participate

At the same time, Marzani's attorneys noted that Robert H. Jackson was not on the bench during oral arguments of the appeal on December 8 and 9 and urged him to participate at the rehearing. The voting alignment in the previous 4-4 decision was not disclosed.

Marzani, 36-year-old former Office of Strategic Services worker before joining the State Department, was sentenced in District Court here to one to three years in prison for making false statements to the Government in denying Communist connections.

2 Child Rapers Given Stays Of Execution

Two convicted child rapers who were sentenced to die were given stays of execution yesterday in District Court.

The delays were granted in order to give the defendants a chance to try new appeals.

Execution of Theodore M. Holmes, 22, was postponed from February 15 to March 15. Death of John H. Hall, 34, put off from February 18 to February 25.

Bar Association To Hear Holman

Frank E. Holman, president of the American Bar Association, will address members of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia at their regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Mayflower Hotel.

Invited guests to the meeting, designated American Bar Association Night, include chief judges of the District of Columbia courts and chairmen of the Judiciary Committees of the House and Senate.

Tickets Adjusted

Blame Snow For Parking Violations

Police adjusted traffic tickets for four motorists last week, after the motorists blamed the snowstorm for the violations.

A ticket for parking over 18 hours was changed to a warning for Edward T. Cohen of 1734 Pennsylvania ave. se. because his car was stuck in the snow, according to the list of adjustments.

John W. Schultz of the Army-Navy Club, was warned for parking less than 10 feet from a fire hydrant because the hydrant was covered with snow, while Kenneth Ruehl of 28 Maryland ave., Parkland, Md., was warned for parking more than 6 inches from the curb because the snow was piled up at the curb. Elmer Selby of 908 F st. ne., was warned for parking less than 10 feet from a fire hydrant because his car was stuck on the ice.

A warning for parking in a "no parking from 7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. zone, was given to John R. Berryman, a Deputy United States Marshall, who was on official business, while Sidney Epstein, a reporter for the Times Herald, was warned for parking in a "no parking at anytime" zone, because he made an emergency stop, the list reported.

Traffic tickets were canceled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity: Ali Fahim, Egyptian Embassy, parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; John F. Parkinson, Canadian Embassy, parked in a "no parking from 2 to 7 a. m." zone; M. Henri Lebousse, French Embassy, parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; Antonio F. Cañero, Argentine Embassy, parked in a "no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; Kristian von Sydow, Swedish Embassy, parked in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone.

Defendant Chooses Jail Wait For Manslaughter Sentence

Bennie Lee Griffin, 36, who pleaded guilty last Friday to involuntary manslaughter in the death of a 65-year-old man, agreed yesterday to go to jail pending pronouncement of sentence February 25.

Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy recommended that Griffin call in his $2500 bond and await the sentence in jail. The auto mechanic took the step voluntarily.

Judge McCarthy said his sentence February 25 will depend on a probation report due then. However, he said he would entertain a motion to suspend the sentence.

Under Virginia law, the time Griffin serves in jail between now and February 25 will be deducted from any possible term, court officials said.

Griffin, 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, pleaded guilty to striking Audie Carroll, 829 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, on November 5 after an argument over a $50 traffic accident involving their cars. Carroll struck his head on the pavement when he fell. He died four days later.

Britons Ponder Churchill's Role In Council Plan

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill, who has been one of the most vigorous campaigners for European unity, may not be given a role in the proposed Council of Europe because officials feel that he might "steal the show," informed sources said today.

What to do with Churchill has become a major problem of British officials planning the new regional organization. His name comes up every time the planners start talking about who will represent Britain in the council.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Army Reveals Death of Famed Carrier Pigeon

Fort Monmouth, N. J., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The United States Army Signal Corps announced with regret today the death of Blackie Halligan, described as the "outstanding carrier pigeon hero of the Pacific war theater during World War II."

The pigeon was cited and decorated after being wounded by Japanese flak on Guadalcanal while successfully carrying back to headquarters a patrol message that led to the extermination of 300 enemy troops.

Blackie was retired to Fort Monmouth where, the Signal Corps announced, he fathered three pigeons who are now being trained as carriers.

More Haste, Less Speed

If the Senate Labor Committee holds to its announced schedule, hearings on the proposed substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act will close on Thursday. It is now unmistakably evident that the committee cannot in the next three days hear more than a small fraction of the witnesses demanding an opportunity to state their views. Nor will it have before it all the information it will need for the delicate task of rewriting the law controlling labor-management relations. A Senate committee cannot act on so momentous an issue with such haste without opening itself to the charge of substituting the rubber stamp for full inquiry and legislative deliberation.

This unreasonable haste will not work to the advantage of labor, the Administration or the committee. No organic labor-management legislation can work well or last long unless it wins general public support, and that will be forthcoming only if the public believes that the legislation has been shaped with deliberation and in a spirit of sensible compromise. The Administration ought to be aware of the fact that legislative tempers are already frayed because of this unreasonable haste. Thus the Executive-legislative unity that is so essential to carrying out the President's program is in danger of being undermined for no good reason. Another week or 10 days of hearings would go a long way toward convincing both legislators and the people that the Administration is seeking legislation in the public interest and not merely to pay a political debt.

Partners Or Allies

Only in the last few weeks has it dawned on the world that the United States and the Soviet Union are locked in a deadly struggle for allies in the next war. This is the lesson of the tug-of-war over Norway. The Soviet refuses to accept the Norwegian answer as the clarification that it sought of Norway's stand on the Atlantic Pact. And assuming that Moscow had any right to call for any such clarification, the answer was indeed cryptic. Norway said she would not permit the establishment of foreign bases on Norwegian soil "as long as Norway is not attacked or subjected to threats of attack." Russia rightly construes the explanation as leaving the Norwegians a free hand to determine the conditions which would persuade them to put bases in Norway at the disposal of the United States.

Moscow, however, chooses to ignore the fact that Norway is already bound solemnly under the United Nations to keep the peace. If the Soviet would be reassured by another pledge, it is doubtful whether Norway would. For nonaggression pact in the Soviet lexicon has become the entering wedge of aggression. Cases in point are all the peace treaties that Moscow signed with the Balkan states. The fate of Czechoslovakia, in particular, makes a mockery of the Soviet request. Before the war the Soviet was the first to recognize that a nonaggression undertaking by Nazi Germany meant nothing, and first Litvinov and then Molotov insisted on spelling out all the phases of aggression, both internal and external; and then demanded guarantees. Stalin has taken a leaf out of Hitler's copybook. The plain fact, as the world no less than Norway sees it, is that as a result of Soviet postwar actions there is absent in relations with the Soviet Union the basic ingredient of what is, now called a nonself-operating agreement, viz, good faith. It could thus be taken for granted that even if Norway were to sign a nonaggression pact with Soviet Russia, she would not thereby be deterred from seeking closer association with the Atlantic nations.

However, the occasion might be taken to reexamine the nature of the particular kind of Atlantic association under discussion. Why limit the association to a military alliance providing for the acquisition of bases, for arms consignments, and for a pledge to wage war together? If we feel a sense of association with western Europe, why not offer an association for peace as well as for war? Metternich said after the Napoleonic wars that "a unifying idea" was the foundation of postwar reconstruction and pacification. The "unifying idea" of his day was legitimacy of government. Today it is freedom and union—as the free peoples all recognize in their dreams, though their governments are not guided by it. Specifically, before this country sets its hand to a military alliance, and embarks on a course that all history teaches will infallibly lead to war, let us issue a call for a constitutional assembly for the consideration of a grand Federal Union.

Such a call from the United States—the "music maker" for the free world—would lift the present discussions onto a new plane. It would reach peoples as well as governments, and inspire them to lift up their voices in an irresistible demonstration. In their hearts they want to relate themselves to other peoples. They know that distance has been annihilated, that what affects one affects everybody; yet they see their governments building up vested and nationalistic interests in such things as fighting currencies, state trading systems, and other forms of anarchy. It must seem to them defeatist as well as senseless. They cannot be encouraged, either, by the spectacle that this reversion to pathological nationalism is being financed under ERP, though, to be sure, the ERP ideal is eventually to create interdependence out of a sturdier independence.

Is it not remarkable that the first thing to be forgotten in time of peace is our war aims? Cannot we see that in all the postwar schemes of pacification and reconstruction, we have undershot the mark? Partnership is the effective alliance, and the only one. Before the reaction to a mere military alliance gets altogether crystallized, an effort to realize the aspirations of the men who have had to fight a couple of world wars in the last 35 years ought to be explored, and the idea of a great community taken out of the hearts of mankind and given some form and substance.

Simplified Government

Nothing revolutionary or even very drastic is recommended in the general report of the Hoover Commission. Rather, it is a plea for orthodox, common-sense organization of the executive branch in the interests of simplicity, economy, and better public service. In this first comprehensive report, which is concerned more with objectives than with details, we can detect no attempt to recommend changes of policy along with organizational adjustments. The commission appears to have held closely to its function. Its numerous recommendations are designed to enable the executive branch to carry out more effectively and economically whatever policies Congress and the President may adopt.

The commission is concerned, however, with lines of authority as well as organization. On the organizational side, its chief effort is to bring order out of the existing confusion. Its foremost finding is: "The executive branch is not organized into a workable number of major departments and agencies which the President can effectively direct, but is cut up into a large number of agencies, which divide responsibility and which are too great in number for effective direction from the top." Aside from the "independent" regulatory agencies, there are 65 departments, administrations, agencies, boards and commissions doing administrative work. The President cannot possibly supervise such a conglomeration of separate units. The first essential step, therefore, is to bring these floating ribs into an orderly organizational pattern.

The commission suggests that the number of agencies reporting to the President be reduced to about 21 or 22. That will doubtless mean the creation of several new departments, although details of the departmental structure to be recommended are not yet disclosed. While the commission strongly urges that each "cohesive grouping of activities" be brought together into a department, it apparently has no intention of disturbing such naturally separate agencies as the Atomic Energy Commission.

The creation of new departments, with consequent enlargement of the Cabinet, has sometimes been opposed in the past on the ground that it would make the Cabinet an unwieldy body. The commission points out, however, that the Cabinet is not now an effective body of advisers to the President. Nor does it have a collective responsibility for Administration policies. As a practical matter, the President today seeks advice in special spheres of policy-making from Cabinet committees composed of the department heads immediately concerned with foreign affairs, agriculture, labor-management relations or whatever area of national policy he may be dealing with. As this sensible practice is extended, the danger of the Cabinet becoming unwieldy can be put aside.

Strengthening of the President's office is also recommended. The Council of Economic Advisers, the Bureau of the Budget, the National Security Council and the National Security Resources Board would undergo varying degrees of reorganization to make them more effective administrative tools in the hands of the President. In addition, he would be given a staff secretary and an office of personnel, whose head would be chairman of the Civil Service Commission. Apparently the chief job of the latter official would be to aid the President in finding administrative talent in the Federal service and in establishing progressive personnel policies.

Along with these organizational changes, the commission asks for greater authority for the President and administrative heads to carry out their respective functions. The President would be allowed to name officials in his immediate "office" without senatorial confirmation. All Cabinet officials would be given discretion in assigning work in their departments. Only three department heads and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs now have that discretion. Often efficiency and economy are hampered by rigid legislative directions to bureau chiefs. The commission makes the reasonable assumption that each department head will know best how to operate his department in the public interest and strongly urges that he be given a chance of doing so. The effort is to broaden the sources of information and advice to executive heads while narrowing administrative responsibility to single individuals.

Certainly in their broad outlines the reforms here recommended are sound and progressive. The late Chief Justice Hughes used to say—and Mr. Churchill says the same thing in Their Finest Hour—that one of the greatest mistakes the people could make was to deprive their servants in public office of the authority necessary to do effective work out of fear that such authority might be abused. As we see the Hoover Commission report, it is a candid recognition of the fact that big Government is here to stay and a well-reasoned plea that Government be given the straight lines of authority and simplified organization it will need to serve the people in accord with their demands.

East Vs. West

Before the recent 19-nation conference at Delhi took place, there were many approaches to Premier Nehru to keep the conference restricted to Indonesia, not to adopt a hostile attitude toward Western union, and to cooperate with the Security Council. Our own Ambassador, Mr. Loy Henderson, participated in, if he did not head, the representations. As the conference turned out, Premier Nehru behaved impeccably. The resolution which the delegates adopted and sent to the Security Council was an eight-point program for the settlement of the Indonesian question. In several respects the subsequent resolution of the Security Council departed from it. But that will not disturb the Indian Premier so much as the decision reported from London that the five members of Western union have decided not to support sanctions against the Netherlands. If correct, the decision is, to say the least, premature, and we say this without prejudging the case. In effect it gives the Netherlands a veto power by proxy. Clearly it undermines the resolution of the Security Council itself, and, finally, it is a slap in the face of the United Nations. If this is the way that Western union intends to play ball with Asiatics, the future is dark indeed, and no East-West understanding is possible.

Several times we have suggested that Western union seems to be degenerating into a mere diplomatic concert for the protection of colonial interests. We did not think that the concert would be expressed so blatantly. It is neither prudent nor honest to ask Nehru one day to rely on the judgment of the Security Council and the next day to treat that judgment of the Security Council as of no account and to prejudice it. The question is whether the United States intends to be involved in such politics. The ferment in Asia requires a different brand of statesmanship, an American brand, and we hope that the new administration in the State Department will supply it. The United States cannot afford to be either merely negative in Asia or to tie itself to a defensive bandwagon of the colonial powers. Incidently, what seems to be going on now in London is something new—new because the initial reactions in London when the Dutch took their police action is in marked contrast to the "sympathy" which is now being freely expressed there for the Dutch in their "predicament."

Apprehension

The apprehension in New York of Sam Carr, one of the two key Canadian members of the Soviet spy ring that operated north of the border during the war, adds a feather to the FBI's cap. How the G-men picked up the three-year-old trail we have no idea, and they, of course, are not saying. Carr disappeared in 1946 when the Canadian Royal Commission was just about to serve a subpena on him. He is supposed to have been in Mexico at least part of the intervening time, and apparently was collared very shortly after he showed his face in New York. The FBI deserves a bouquet for a deft and competent piece of work.

In contrast, the Washington Police Department's operations in the field of political surveillance excite a deep apprehension. The Special Investigations and Missing Persons squad is the custodian of a 15,000-card index file and a 5000-item file of dossiers on persons and organizations in Washington and elsewhere connected in some way with Communist or other activities the Red Squad suspects of being politically improper. A person's name can get on the list in many ways. If he is identified as a regular participant in Communist Party affairs it will be writ large in the file. If his car was parked in the vicinity of a meeting which the police suspected of being too far Leftist, even though he was not at the meeting and knew nothing about it, his name might also be listed.

Vigilance is forever the price of liberty, but we should feel much better protected in that liberty if this work were left to the FBI. It is not police business, except as aides of the FBI in specific cases.

Recession Note

At the beginning of February the volume of money in circulation dropped to the lowest level since February, 1945, and was 568 million dollars below the level of a year ago. This downward trend of circulation is being attributed to a variety of causes, such as reduced consumer spending, payment of income taxes out of cash, and price cuts that to some extent reduce the need for cash. Layoffs of workers and a return flow of hoarded money into banks are also cited as contributory causes of the current decline in monetary circulation. In general the contraction is part of the evidence of a relaxation of inflationary pressures. Since there has been an accompanying rise in savings deposits, indicating an increased disposition to save rather than spend money on consumer goods, business analysts are wondering how these changes will affect the volume and character of spending in the months ahead.

AMA Assessment

I learned recently that at a meeting of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, efforts were made by many physicians present to ascertain from the general manager of the American Medical Association whether the much-talked-of $25 "assessment" of the AMA was compulsory or was voluntary.

I am told that no clear statement was obtained from this official. Consequently, I think it may be of interest to Washington physicians and to the public to learn of an event in Boston which seems to settle the question.

Recently, bills for the $25 were sent to the members of the Massachusetts State Medical Society, by the appropriate official of that society acting, it was stated as an agent of the AMA. Shortly thereafter, at a meeting attended by several hundred physicians in Boston, that official of the society, after pointed questioning, stated that payment of the assessment was not obligatory.

There are many physicians throughout the country who do not favor the creation of this large fund to be used for political purposes to prevent the development of a national health program. However, they fear that persecution by the powerful American Medical Association may come to them if they refuse. It is important to broadcast the information which the American Medical Association has been attempting to keep hidden, namely, that the payment of the assessment by the individual physician is not obligatory, so far as the American Medical Association is concerned. I suppose that State or county medical societies could vote to make it obligatory on their members, but the Massachusetts State Society has not done so.

Power Politics

This Nation was awakened from its long illusion concerning weltpolitik in 1941 and has participated with growing vigor in power politics ever since. After all, only through power politics are we able to struggle to protect ourselves against potential assailants and imperialists.

Unfortunately the belated awakening of Americans to the reality of their situation has not freed them from their habitual naivete and wish-dreams. Consequently we have led with our left foot in Palestine and China and to some extent are frustrating and obstructing our own program in western Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Only by discovering the obvious, the strategic factors in the sphere of power politics, can a concrete and specific answer be made to Russia's bid for world power. The strategy is of three parts—interrelated:

1. Invite the foreign offices of England and France to consider the desirability of continued reparations by the former axis powers to Russia; 2. Offer a detailed plan of rearming Germany to be integrated with the larger scheme of military alliances of the Western powers; 3. Demand of the Western powers that all occupying forces in Germany and Japan, military and civil, be withdrawn within six months after reparations to Russia are suspended.

Here in essence is the only language in weltpolitik the Kremlin can understand; we will be well advised to consider it before the west bankrupts itself through the failing expediencies which bring no promise of peace.

Here in essence is a broad plan of calculated risk that can upset the delicate balance of the terribly overburdened Soviet economy and throw into discard her so-called "plans" for economic expanion. Soviet reaction, as expressed by Soviet propaganda from the Kremlin, will be of little interest to any save its own creators, but the shift of political initiative from the U. S. S. R. to the West can easily revive morale and give all the Western powers some prospect of negotiating a peace with Russia resting on the solid foundation of realism that will last through at least another generation. Segregated Boys' Clubs

The Police Boys Clubs are doing a good job for some of the boys and deserve the support of the citizens. But it is a sad and tragic circumstance that a semipublic organization operates on a racial basis that denies club activities to thousands of young boys just because they are nonwhite.

There is only one club for all the colored children in Washington. There are five or six for white boys, yet based on school population about a third of the children of the city are colored. This one club for colored boys is located at 12th and U sts. nw., a few blocks from the YMCA and most of the uptown theaters. A colored boy who lives in Northeast, Southeast or Southwest, must pay 26 cents and ride hours on the streetcars even though he lives close to a Police Boys Club.

Colored and white policemen are integrated in the various precincts. There is no moral justification to keep young boys, in whom there is a minimum of prejudice, from working and playing together.

"Teachers' Sick Leave"

The teachers of Washington are very much interested in your editorial of January 28, in which you commended the new sick leave plan, to be introduced into Congress.

It is true that, under this plan, a teacher with many years of service could accumulate and borrow considerable sick leave with pay, for one year. But what about the next year and the year after that?

This plan, moreover, is not entirely an addition but partly a subsititution for something teachers already have. The present plan of hiring a substitute for as many as 60 days a year, with part of the teacher's salary has never been entirely satisfactory by itself. Still, it has helped some. More important still, it has never cost the taxpayers of the District a dollar. It is difficult to see why the present plan of hiring a substitute at the teacher's expense must be entirely discarded, because some sick leave with full pay is granted DON B. GOODLOE.

Streamlined Wives

"Most housewives should be fired because of inefficiency," quote Gideon M. Varga, industrial engineer and lecturer on work simplification at Columbia University. How right this fearless man is!

As to ironing while sitting down, this writer knows of a better way of saving energy. Why iron at all? Once or twice a year will suffice, preferably standing to do a good job. When cooking, cook enough potatoes to last for the week, using in various ways, served hot and cold in salads.

Boil or bake onions with skins on, and that goes for carrots too. Eliminate peeling vegetables. If potted flowers grace the rooms, try keeping water containers nearby (out of sight) filling once a week. While performing housework, employ all of the exercises needed to keep a girlish supple figure. Stop occasionally to execute a dance step. Keeping house is fun and interesting done in the Varga Way!

Bishop Oxnam's Charges

The pronouncements of Bishop Oxnam and other dignitaries of Protestants and other American United for the Separation of Church and State reported recently follow a formula which is familiar to any student of propaganda analysis. The recipe is a simple one, a blend of two time-tested fallacies. In the present instance, this is done by asserting that the speaker's theory of the proper relationship of church and state is the true one, consecrated in the Constitution and endorsed by the good sense and upright instincts of all 100 per cent Americans. Then stigmatize all who venture to disagree with the speaker as conspirators, ready to tear the Constitution to tatters and whisk us all back to the darkness of the Middle Ages.

Does the First Amendment impose the sort of separation of church and state for which the POAU is arguing? Is the maintenance of this sort of separation wise public policy?

The proper relation between church and state poses an important problem. A solution is not made easier by invective, recrimination, and the resuscitation of outworn prejudices. On the other hand, reason and Christian charity might prove a better approach to the problem.

WM. B. PRENDERGAST.
Annapolis, Md.

In the letters of February 2 denouncing Bishop Oxnam, a great deal of confusion of thought, and misunderstanding of what the Bishop said is evident to even a casual reader. If Mr. Joseph Gedra had heard the speech in question he would know that Bishop Oxnam stands for religious liberty for all.

In the light of our American tradition and principles of church-state relations developed over the years, no group of religionists has a right to have its religion taught in the public schools, and no group has a right to Government support of its church-operated schools.

From his utterances, Bishop Oxnam is just as opposed to a Protestant breach of that "wall of separation" between church and state as he is to a Catholic breach.

It might be well for Mrs. R. D. to ponder the vast difference between a protest meeting against moves to unite church and state, and the applying of pressure through propaganda campaigns in behalf of legislation aimed at breaching that bastion of religious liberty, complete church and state separation.

Being a real libertarian, I also oppose those small but vociferous Protestant organizations which hold the same position as the American Catholic hierarchy on the subject of religion in the laws and public schools of our land.

Washington Calling

Duggan's Work

THE GOOD that men do is not always, in the Shakespearean phrase, interred with their bones. It does often live after them and the light of it shines far beyond the little span allotted to each man.

The late Laurence Duggan gave himself in selfless devotion in many ways. But his chief interest after he left the Department of State was the Institute of International Education, of which he was president as his father, Stephen Duggan, had been before him.

At the time that tragedy overtook him and cut off his life at the age of 43, Larry Duggan was starting to raise additional money for the institute. Now his friends have formed a committee to contribute a fund in his name to carry on the work in which he so deeply believed. As Archibald MacLeish, chairman of the committee, puts it:

"It was not in Larry's nature to leave a job unfinished . . . Such a fund will enable all of us acting together to achieve for him some, at least, of the tasks he would have accomplished had he lived."

The Institute of International Education is a private organization that serves as a bridge, not between government and government, but between the peoples of one country and the peoples of another country. It does this by providing funds for American students to go abroad and for foreign students and teachers to come to our colleges and universities.

THE LAST is especially important. There is no way of measuring the profound and far-reaching influence of American education and American experience on the thousands of foreign students who have come to our shores in recent decades. One young man who returns to his native land to take a position of leadership with a favorable impression of American educational standards is worth no one can gauge how many millions of words of propaganda by Government.

After the Boxer rebellion in China, the Government in Washington wisely decreed that the indemnity to be paid by China to the United States should go to finance Chinese students in this country. Several thousand Chinese availed themselves of the fund before it was exhausted.

Incidentally, Chinese students in this country now find themselves in a difficult plight as one consequence of the tragedy in their homeland. It has been difficult or impossible for them to get American dollars through their government, and under United States immigration laws they are not permitted to earn any money. A ship is now being fitted out to send back to China those who have completed some phase of their education.

BESIDES the foreign students who have come here, other thousands have been educated in American schools abroad. That is true particularly in the Near East, where several institutions have done pioneering work.

One of them is Athens College, headed by the redoubtable Homer Davis. At the end of the war Davis returned to Athens, and in the face of seemingly insuperable obstacles he got the college started again and repaired at least part of the damage done by the Germans. Davis is now in this country to persuade donors to continue their support for the college.

The comfortable assumption, of course, is that the Government is taking care of everything over there. Billions are being sent abroad and surely that relieves the individual citizen of any responsibility.

But if it is all left to Government, then we shall lose something of infinite value; something that has grown out of American idealism and American character. Expressions like the Friendship Train to Europe and now, in reciprocation, the French Thank-You Train shows how deep is the impulse of the individual to reach across the limitations and formalities of government.

This impulse must be encouraged and not stifled. It was the goal to which Larry Duggan had intended to devote his life. At the time of his death he was working on plans to extend and enlarge the work of the institute.

Larry will be long remembered for what he did and what he stood for. Those who slurred him after he was dead dishonored only themselves. That slur will quickly be forgotten. if indeed it has not already been forgotten. And the job that Larry Duggan started will be carried on.

Transit Radios

I feel that those expressing their views on transit radios have been misinformed.

The radios will not be loud, they will not broadcast long commercials, and they will play good, sweet music, not "rebop."

As for the claim that they will hinder the operators or distract their attention, Cincinnati, Ohio, has installed radios on its buses and they have not prevented operators from operating their vehicles safely, or have they hindered the operators from making change. (Cincinnati also has a 13-cent fare.)

Wherever transit radios have been installed, they have met with extensive public approval. Therefore, they should be installed in the buses and streetcars in Washington, and I am sure they will meet with extensive public approval immediately. RUDOLPH VOLIN.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

As Certain Others See Us

A WELL-KNOWN FRENCH writer, Mr. Andre Siegfried, has just published an article in Figaro saying: "Should we not warn our American friends? . . . When we consider the anti-colonial policy of the United States . . . we are sometimes tempted to ask whether America, so genuinely anti-Communist, is not a revolutionary force in the world that is no less effective than the Soviet Union."

Lippmann

Mr. Siegfried feels that in Asia and Africa we are propagating "a certain materialistic vision of the world that expresses itself in the will towards industrialization, which means also a claim to independence—the revolt of the colored races against the white race and the Occident." We seem never to ask ourselves, he says, what will be the repercussion of our "apostleship, whether it is a question of democracy, liberation, or the sale of automobiles or vacuum cleaners."

THE QUESTION which Mr. Siegfried has raised is of special interest at the present time. For within the Atlantic community, to which we are preparing to give the legal framework of a pact, our European partners have colonial and imperial interests outside the natural frontiers of the Atlantic community. It will not be possible, as Mr. Siegfried seems to wish it, for the United States to abandon the traditions and precedents of its whole history and to adopt his unmaterialistic views about independence, democracy, liberation, vacuum cleaners and automobiles for the "extra-European communities."

The best we can do is to be patient, moderate, and sympathetic in trying to reconcile the differences which do indeed divide most but not all Americans from many but not all Europeans on colonial and imperial questions. That will be easier to do if Mr. Siegfried and others will omit the suggestion that we are responsible "for the revolt of the colored races," or that our attitude towards this revolt is, as compared say with his own attitude, materialistic and thoughtless.

For though our attitude is different, it is not true that Americans "never seem to ask themselves what will the repercussion of their apostleship" in sympathizing with the aspiration of Asiatic peoples for independence, self-government, and their liberation from their immemorial squalor and destitution. A great many Americans have thought a great deal about that—from the earliest days of the Republic to President Truman's inaugural address. It will be useful—indeed it is imperative—to have the American view understood by the foreign offices and by the colonial offices of our partners in the Atlantic community.

MR. SIEGFRIED says that he is tempted "to ask whether America, so genuinely anti-Communist, it not a revolutionary force in the world that is no less effective than the Soviet Union."

Our answer is that we hope we may prove to be a far more effective force than the Soviet Union. For we think that the liberal revolution, which began here in 1776 and spread over much of Europe and South America in the next 75 years, is the only true rival of the totalitarian revolutions of this epoch. We do not believe that the pre-liberal regimes—feudalism, warlordism, depotism, or colonial proprietorship, even the humane enlightened forms of them, can withstand the rising tide of nationalism or the impact of revolutionary communism.

That is why we welcome the achievements of Mr. Attlee in India, Pakistan, and Ceylon. That is why we deplore the fiasco of Mr. Bevin in the Arab world. That is why we regret the failure of France to deal with Indo-China before the national movement fell into Communist hands. That is why we are disheartened by what the Dutch have done recently in Indonesia. That is why we wish the Republicans in the Eightieth Congress had not thought they understood the Chinese question better than did General Marshall.

WE DO NOT think we have caused the revolt of the masses of Asia. We think, however, that intuitively we anticipated the revolt of Asia, and in so far as we had power and influence in the Philippines and in China, we have sought to establish ties between the Occident and the New Orient. We do not think, except in our less admirable moods, that we are better than our friends who have inherited the burdens of empire.

But we do think that it was easier for us to see what destiny has prepared because we are ourselves a Nation formed of a revolution against foreign rule. And we feel that if we have much to learn, say from Mr. Siegfried, about the practical difficulties and dangers of a too-rapid emancipation of the "extra-European communities," Mr. Siegfried has something to learn from us about the impossibility of waiting too long, and of sitting complacently on the safety valve.

IF MR. SIEGFRIED understood this country better, he would hesitate a good while before trying to do away with the deep American instinct which he calls "the anticolonial policy of the United States." For without it the Western world would be morally disarmed in the great turbulence of Asia. There would be nowhere east of Suez an effective Western rival to the Soviet campaign against colonialism and empire.

Moreover, if the American people ceased to feel as they do that alien rule is in principle wrong and in practice transitory, the spirit which animates their relations to the rest of the world would be radically transformed. They would be then only a very powerful and a very rich Nation, making such arrangements with other powers as for the time being seemed expedient and profitable. Without the inner impulse that comes from the American past there would be no program to reconstruct western Europe and to liberate eastern Europe, but only a series of hard bargains dictated by immediate self-interest.

Truman May Vacation At Key West in March

By The Associated Press

President Truman is considering a flight to Key West in early March for a vacation.

While there has been no White House announcement, persons close to the President say he wants to get away for a rest. They add that it will not be possible for him to leave for the naval submarine station at Key West until sometime in early March.

Supreme Court Denies Appeal Of Lawyer in Contempt Case

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

How far can a lawyer go in disagreeing with a judge on the bench without becoming in contempt of court?

And, if the judge uses harsh language in reprimanding the attorney, does that relieve the lawyer of being in contempt?

Justice Stanley F. Reed, speaking for a bare majority of the United States Supreme Court in a contempt case involving a Texas lawyer in a State court, said the historic power of courts to punish for contempt "without further proof of facts . . . is not open to question."

Even though the trial judge used "mildly provocative language," said Justice Reed, this does not place "a constitutional protection around an attorney" to show contempt for the court, and furthermore, he said, the Texas lawyer exceeded the bounds of Texas law.

Four Disagree Sharply

Four members of the high court sharply disagreed, and wrote three dissenting opinions to explain why.

Strongest of these was a dissent by Justice Douglas, with which Justice Black concurred, in which Douglas declared:

"The power to punish for contempt committed in open court was recognized long ago as a means of vindicating the dignity and authority of the court . . . But its exercise must be narrowly confined lest it become an instrument of tyranny."

The contempt case involved Joe J. Fisher, Jasper, Tex., fined $100 and sentenced to three days in jail in June, 1947, while arguing a compensation suit before Judge F. P. Adams of Jasper County.

Fisher contended that two factors in his contempt conviction may have been that his client, a laborer whose foot was injured, was a Negro, and that one of three opposing lawyers, T. Gilbert Adams, was a son of a trial judge.

Court Exchange Given

Before the trial, it was stipulated that the laborer, Anderson Godfrey, earned $30 a week and that compensation would be at the rate of $18 a week.

Fisher, the record shows, stressed that compensation would be limited to 124 weeks, and tried to get the compensation into the record, but the trial judge said the issue of dollars and cents was not before the jury. Fisher objected, but rephrased his remark, repeating the length of compensation, with the following results:

"Court: I will declare a mistrial if you mess with me two minutes and a half, and fine you besides.

"Fisher: That is all right. We take exception to the conduct of the court.

"Court: That is all right; I will fine you $25.

"Fisher: If that will give you any satisfaction.

"Court: That is $50; that is $25 more. Mr. Sheriff come get it. Pay the clerk $50.

"Fisher: You mean for trying to represent my client?

Sent to Jail for Three Days

"Fisher: I am making no effort to commit contempt, but merely trying to represent the plaintiff and stating in argument . . .

"Court: Don't tell me. Mr. Sheriff, take him out of the courtroom. Go on out of the courtroom. I fine you three days in jail.

"Fisher: If that will give you any satisfaction; you know you have all the advantage of you being on the bench.

"Court: That will be a $100 fine and three days in jail. Take him out."

Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Frankfurter, Burton and Jackson joined in Reed's opinion upholding Fisher's conviction, previously upheld by the Texas Supreme Court on an 8-1 vote.

Other Opinions

The Supreme Court, in other actions:

Ruled 8-to-1 that Louisiana and the City of New Orleans may tax Mississippi River tugboats and barges owned by out-of-State firms which operate in the State. Justice Douglas, writing the majority opinion, said this follows earlier decisions that interstate commerce can be made to pay a nondiscriminatory share of tax burdens. Justice Jackson dissented.

By a 7-to-2 vote, with Chief Justice Vinson writing the majority opinion, said that a Georgia State Court can intervene in reorganization proceedings under the Federal Bankruptcy Act, by which the Central of Georgia Railway is attempting to acquire property of the South Western Railroad, which was under lease to Central. Justices Douglas and Rutledge dissented.

Agreed to review a ruling by the United States Court of Appeals in Philadelphia, calling for the release from jail of Army Private Bernard W. Smith, convicted by Army court-martial of raping an English girl in 1944. Smith is serving a 16-year sentence at Lewisburg, Pa.

By a split 4-4 vote, refused for the second time to intervene in the death sentence of Samuel Taylor, Alabama Negro convicted on a charge of raping a 14-year-old white girl. Taylor says a confession was forced from him. Justice Black took no part in the case.

Budget Action Delay to May 1 Passed by House

The House voted yesterday to dodge until May 1 a guess on Federal receipts and spending for fiscal 1950.

Under present law, Congress must decide by February 15 each year how much the government will receive and spend during the next fiscal year so it will have an idea what to do about taxes, economy, etc.

The House passed, on a roll-call vote of 230 to 142 and sent to the Senate a bill to postpone the date until May 1.

The 75-day delay was asked by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee. He argued that May 1 was the "earliest possible date" for a sound estimate on President Truman's $41,900,000,000 budget.

European Union

By Sumner Welles

Shadow Instead Of Substance

I WONDER if there is much justification for the enthusiastic reception which public opinion in the United States has given the announcement that the five Brussels pact countries have agreed upon a project for a Council of Europe.

The present plan is unquestionably a weak compromise. It rejects the French contention that a powerful European parliament should be constituted. It accepts the British thesis that nothing should now be done beyond the creation of machinery to facilitate inter-governmental cooperation between the western European countries.

So far nothing in fact has been settled except for an agreement that a constitution is to be drafted which will provide for "a ministerial committee meeting in private," in which every country will have a veto power, and "a consultative body meeting in public," which will be given no authority whatever. The British suggest that the council should hold its first meeting in Strasbourg before 1950 and the five Brussels pact countries have also agreed that Italy and other European countries are to be asked to join as founding members.

The project makes no provision for the limitation of national sovereignties. It possesses no real vitality. It responds to no overwhelming popular demand for a peoples' union. It ignores the eloquent and urgent warnings of the handful of statesmen that Europe still possesses, such as Churchill, Herriot, Reynaud, Blum and Sforza, that Europe's only hope of salvation lies in political and economic federation.

OUTSIDE of the cooperative measures required by the European Recovery Program the only practical steps that have so far been taken to lay the foundation for such a federation are the economic agreements between Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, and the agreement between France and Italy for a customs union.

There are several reasons for Britain's obstinate refusal to acquiesce in the demands of the continental countries for the establishment of a European parliament possessing wide powers.

The British delegate on the permanent commission, Hugh Dalton, alleged that Britain opposed a European parliament which could override national governments.

The continental governments have now learned that the British Labor Party is determined to reject any plan for European union which might hamper its ability to carry out its own internal policies or limit its capacity to impose economic controls and pursue its present course of rigid bilateral trading.

The British government also differs radically with France and with Germany's other western neighbors concerning the kind of Germany we are to see in the future.

THE BASIC British viewpoint is succinctly expressed in The Economist's recent complaint that the French "strain at the gnat of German nationalism but are willing to swallow the camel of European instability." In other words, the British feel that the French should acquiesce in the resurrection of German power as a bulwark against Soviet Russia.

It is the viewpoint of the 1920s all over again. The fact that France, after the first World War, was so tragically right in her fear of German nationalism and the English-speaking powers so tragically wrong in their insistence that there was no cause for apprehension seems to count for nothing in Downing Street.

It is also a strange anomaly that the cartels and vested interests in the continental countries that are out to sabotage any kind of European union which could deprive them of the benefits they have so long derived from customs barriers and exchange controls should now be joining hands with Britain's Socialist government in impeding, if not permanently blocking, the creation of that form of European union which Clement Attlee himself only two years ago officially proclaimed to be Europe's one chance for survival.

The United States until now has limited itself to a few platitudinous expressions of pleasure that plans for a European union should be under way. Yet is such a shadow of a European union as that now projected likely to be of any practical benefit to the United States or to become a regional bloc capable of strengthening the foundations of the United Nations?

IT IS generally admitted here in Washington that western Europe will still be a long way from recovery when the European Recovery Program ends in 1952. It is also believed that only a far-reaching political and economic union can make western Europe self-supporting. The negotiations for the North Atlantic defense pact have clearly shown that in many parts of western Europe there is already a trend toward regional isolation rather than toward a pooling of sovereign rights in the common interest. It would certainly seem to be plain that only a real and vital European federation, such as that envisaged by Mr. Churchill, could prevent a return to such a fractionized western Europe as that which made possible the catastrophe of 1939.

The State Department has properly refused to use the European Recovery Program as a means of influencing the national policies of the Marshall Plan countries. But is there any valid reason why the countries which are receiving help under the European Recovery Program and which will obtain arms for self-defense as a result of the North Atlantic defense pact should not be frankly told that one of the principal ends sought by the American people in returnr for their sacrifices on behalf of western Europe is a real federation of the western European countries?

Might it not be the better part of wisdom for us to adopt before it is too late a less-negative attitude with regard to this vital issue?

Anacostia Net In Year Drops To $13 a Share

By S. Oliver Goodman

Anacostia National Bank experienced a satisfactory year in 1948, although net earnings were not as high as in 1947, President W. L. Koontz reported to stockholders.

Koontz

Net earnings, he said, were equal to $13 a share on capital stock, compared with $18 a share in the previous year. He pointed out that there were nonrecurring expenses last year in connection with the opening of a branch at 4019 South Capitol st.

The new branch now has more than 1800 savings accounts and its deposits exceed $500,000. This was attained in about eight months, Koontz pointed out. Opening of the South Capitol st. bridge, probably late this year, is expected to lend impetus to the rapidly growing Congress Heights section where the branch is located.

The bank's total deposits of $10,555,308 showed an increase of about $50,000 for the year; loans were off about $150,000; investment in Government securities rose slightly to $4,309,000 at year-end.

ACTIVE ISSUES: Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock accounted for nearly half of the January turnover on the Washington Stock Exchange. Of the 20,246 shares traded in the month, Pepco showed a volume of 9816 shares. Other leaders in activity for January; Virginia Electric & Power common, 3147 shares; American Telephone & Telegraph, 1786 shares; Washington Gas Light Co. common, 1774 shares and Garfinckel common, 1225 shares.

PRESIDES AT FETE: Floyd D. Akers, president of the Capitol Cadillac Co. here and a director of the Washington Board of Trade, presided in New York last night at a dinner honoring Alfred P. Sloan, jr., General Motors dealers from throughout the Nation assembled to present the GM board chairman with a large fund for the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Research Institute recently established. Akers said the fund was raised to show appreciation of the dealers for the leadership of Sloan for the past 25 years. Akers delivered the welcoming address and introduced Sloan, Dr. Charles F. Kettering and other speakers.

TALKFEST: More than 20 students of the public speaking class of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will test their new found powers tonight. Each is scheduled for a brief "after-dinner speech" at the annual class banquet. Instructor of the class is Roland T. Carr, assistant vice president of Riggs National Bank, who will preside.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: H. B. Heberling, assistant general sales manager of Plymouth Motor Corp. in charge of advertising, will address Washington area dealers on merchandising plans at a meeting Friday in the Statler . . . David L. Herson, founder of Manhattan Auto & Radio Co., is celebrating his thirty-fifth anniversary in the automotive business here . . . John A. Hartford has been made board chairman and David T. Bofinger president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

SAVINGS BONDS: The Treasury Department reported that $7,295,000,000 in savings bonds was sold in 1948, a gain of 9 per cent over 1947 marketings. Excess of cash sales over redemptions of Series E, F and G was $2,727,000,000, a gain of 33 per cent over 1947. Thomas J. Groom, chairman of the District of Columbia Savings Bond Division, recently reported that total savings bond holdings of local residents exceeded 578 million dollars on December 31, 1948.

ODD LOTS: Martin R. West was reelected president of the Interstate Building Association and all other officers also were renamed. The annual statement disclosed that assets now stand in excess of $13,700,000 . . . North American Co. announced a plan for divestment of its 100 per cent stock interest in West Kentucky Coal Co. as required by the SEC . . . Safeway Stores, Inc., reported sales of $93,371,778 for four weeks ended January 29, a decrease of 2.3 per cent as compared with same 1948 period . . . Pan American-Grace Airways reduced sleeper berth rates on its overnight express between Miami and Lima, Peru, to $45 from $125.

EARNINGS: Johns - Manville Corp. reported net income of $15,440,475 for 1948, equal to $5.22 a common share, compared with $9,486,633 or $3.23 a share in 1947. Other earnings reports:

S. Africa to Sell Gold at Premium

Capetown, South Africa, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Finance Minister N. C. Havenga announced today that South Africa will sell a small amount of gold in London "experimentally" over the next eight weeks above the world price of $35 a fine ounce.

Specifically, Havenga said, this country will sell each week to "a prominent, long-established London house of bullion brokers" 12,500 ounces of alloyed gold 22 carats fine at $38,20 an ounce.

"After eight weeks there will be negotiations about the position," Havenga said. "The government intends to use the amount realized, after deduction of expenses, for the benefit of the gold-mining industry."

Twenty-two carats fine means 93.5 fine. Gold 99.9 per cent pure realizes in New York only $35 per troy ounce.

London Brokers Deny Part in Gold Deal

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The financial district was astonished by the South African government's announcement.

In Bank of England quarters it was stated nothing is known officially and that "the position is unchanged."

This cryptic statement was taken by informed bankers to mean that the Bank of England will not license a London firm to buy gold in South Africa at 19 per cent above the world market price. To do so, it was pointed out, would be to flout the repeated requests of the International Monetary Fund that no gold be fed to the "black markets" of the world.

None of the four "prominent, old-established London firms of bullion brokers" would admit it was to be the purchaser.

The best opinion in the gold market was that some London broker has arranged to bring together a Continental buyer and the government of South Africa.

Some bullion traders believe the 12,500 ounces of South African gold will not come to London, but go directly to the Continent.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 7 (AP).—Grains went into a late tail-spin today after flying along steadily, if a bit nervously, during most of the day.

There was nothing which looked like the panicky selling which characterized the market at this time last year, but there was enough liquidation and a lack of buying support to send many contracts into new seasonal lows. Prices of everything are far under a year ago.

In the new seasonal low territory before the day was out were all soybeans and lard. September wheat, May, July and December corn and May rye. May oats reached its seasonal low, but did not go through it. In general, oats showed more resistance to the selling than anything else.

Wheat closed 1½ to 2¼ lower, corn was 2 to 3 lower, oats were ½-⅞ lower, rye was 1⅛ to 2 lower, soybeans were 4¾ to 5 lower and lard was 45 to 65 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Transamerica Broke Bank-Buying Pledge, Eccles Says

By The Associated Press

Marriner S. Eccles testified yesterday that the Transamerica Corp. made—and broke—an "agreement" that it would not buy up any more banks after 1940 without prior Federal Reserve Board approval.

Eccles, a member and former chairman of the board, was accused in turn by Transamerica's chairman, Albert P. Gianhini of "trying to put the Bank of America out of business."

These developments marked the start of the second week of the Reserve Board's trial of Transamerica, which it alleges "controls" some 600 banks and monopolizes credit in five Western States.

The Giannini accusation came during a recess in the hearing, when Eccles, on his way back to the witness stand, stopped to shake hands with Giannini and say that he intended "nothing personal" by his testimony."

"You're trying to put the Bank of America out of business and you can't do it," the 78-year-old Giannini snapped. "None of your gang can."

Eccles, 58, continued back to the witness chair without making any rejoinder.

His testimony before and after that exchange was that he had helped Transamerica and the Bank of America, Transamerica's chief interest, solve some troubles they had had with the Treasury and the comptroller of the currency in 1940.

For that, Eccles said, he received a letter from L. M. Giannini, a chairman of the Bank of America and son of A. P., thanking him for his aid and "thoughtfulness," and commending him for not letting "personalities" influence his actions.

Eccles sad one cause of the 1940 trouble was that the Bank of America, now the country's biggest bank, "needed capital—their capital, surplus and reserves were inadequate in the view of all the banking authorities."

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Cotton futures declines sharply today on recurrent flurries of liquidation and hedging, influenced by nervousness over the trend in the commodity price structure as a whole. Also disturbing to traders was an ECA order suspending further shipments of cotton recently purchased by China to the extent of about 95,000 bales. Although shippers expected to be reimbursed by the ECA for the sales, traders felt that it meant that a good part of the potentially large China market for United States cotton will be lost. China import needs have been estimated at more than 100,000 bales a month.

Final prices in futures were $1.20 to $1.85 a bale under Saturday's close.

SETTING A NEW WORLD STANDARD IN LOW-COST MOTORING

CHEVROLET
is the most Beautiful BUY of all

...in all these features and in all these ways!

Have you noticed how every eye follows this new Chevrolet as it sweeps past on street or highway . . . and how men and women everywhere are saying it's the most beautiful buy of all for this new motor car year?

That people regard this new Chevrolet as the most beautiful buy for styling is obvious. But their preference is based on something even deeper and stronger than admiration for the smarter appearance of its new Beauty-Leader Bodies by Fisher. You'll find they're also agreed it's the most beautiful buy for comfort, for driving ease and riding ease, for performance and safety—and for all-round value—because it alone gives so many features of the most expensive cars at the lowest prices and with the substantial savings on gas, oil and upkeep which owners have always enjoyed in Chevrolet!

Come, see this newest of all new cars; weigh its many exclusive features and advantages; and you'll agree it's the most beautiful buy of all, from every point of view and on every point of value!

First for Quality at Lowest Cost

CHEVROLET is the only car bringing you all these fine-car advantages at lowest cost!

The Most Beautiful BUY for STYLING

Chevrolet's new Leader-Line Styling is lower, wider, racier . . . the most beautiful development of the new "functional form" for motor cars . . . with new Beauty-Leader Bodies by Fisher that are true masterpieces by the master builder of fine coachcraft, in styling, in fixtures and fabrics, and in alluring color harmonies.

The Most Beautiful BUY for COMFORT

The new Chevrolets have Super-Size Interiors with plenty of head, leg and elbowroom; new Panoramic Visibility with wider curved windshield and more window area all around, permitting you to see all and enjoy all; extra-restful, extra-comfortable "Five-Foot Seats"; and giant luggage space in the rear decks. Moreover, these are "cars that breathe," for a highly-efficient heating* and ventilating system inhales outside air, exhales stale air and keeps glass clear in all weather. *(Heater and defroster units optional at extra cost.)

The Most Beautiful BUY for RIDING and DRIVING EASE with NEW CENTER-POINT DESIGN

New Center-Point Design, a vital 4-way engineering advance exclusive to Chevrolet in its field, and consisting of Center-Point Steering—Center-Point Seating—Lower Center of Gravity and Center-Point Rear Suspension gives the new Chevrolet riding and driving results without precedent or parallel in low-cost motoring. In addition, a new, even finer Unitized Knee-Action Ride with direct-acting airplane type shock absorbers and extra-low pressure tires—imparts a new kind of riding ease and a new kind of driving ease heretofore reserved for owners of more expensive cars. Remember—only new Center-Point Design can give you these finer motoring results; and only the new Chevrolet brings you Center-Point Design at lowest cost!

The Most Beautiful BUY for PERFORMANCE with ECONOMY

The famous Chevrolet Valve-in-Head Engine gives a world of power, acceleration, smoothness and dependability . . . together with all of Chevrolet's remarkable economy of operation and upkeep . . . and this is the world's champion engine, mind you, for it has delivered more miles of satisfaction, to more owners, over a longer period, than any other power-plant built today.

The Most Beautiful BUY for ALL-ROUND SAFETY

Here's fivefold safety protection found in no other low-priced car: (1) New Certi-Safe Hydraulic Brakes providing even faster stops with safety; (2) Extra-Strong Fisher Unisteel Body Construction; (3) New Panoramic Visibility. (4) Safety Plate Glass in windshield and all windows, and (5) the extra-smooth, extra-safe Unitized Knee-Action Ride. Yes, only the new Chevrolet brings you all these advantages at lowest cost; and that's why it's the most beautiful buy of all, from every point of view and on every point of value.

Plea for Job By Divorced Teacher Heard

Suspension from a job for more than a year is "punishment enough" for a teacher who lost in a divorce case on grounds of adultery, the Board of Education was told yesterday.

George McNeil, attorney for Mrs. Edith P. Thomas, 4912 Ames st. ne., a teacher at the Carver Elementary School, made the plea.

The board is sitting to determine whether Mrs. Thomas, a teacher for more than 16 years, should be discharged. She was suspended in December, 1947, after her husband won a divorce decree. She was charged with conduct unbecoming a teacher.

"Even if you find her guilty, discharge from the school system would be too harsh a punishment," McNeil said. "She already has been punished by suspension of a year."

McNeil argued that the school board is not bound by the District Court decision, since adultery in the civil action was not proven "beyond reasonable doubt."

The attorney submitted 21 letters attesting Mrs. Thomas' good moral character.

Milton Korman and Hubert B. Pair, assistant corporation counsels, argued that the board must fire Mrs. Thomas to protect the welfare of school children and the standards of the teaching profession.

"An example must be made in this case, so it will be clear that offenses of this kind will not be tolerated," Pair declared.

Arlington Gets Nearly 800 First Graders

Arlington County got even more elementary pupils than it bargained for this semester as 784 new first-graders registered during the semester's first day yesterday.

The county school board had expected "more than 600" new students, with 100 leaving elementary for junior high. But it didn't expect so many "more than 600."

To carry the additional pupil load, the board set up 10 emergency classrooms, using old playrooms, offices and other space in existing school buildings for class space.

Yesterday's registration brought the total elementary school enrollment to about 8450. Figures for junior and senior high school registration were not immediately available.

Heaviest influx of new first graders was at Fairlington School, which registered 86 new pupils. Two former ground floor storage rooms have been converted to help handle the load there.

At Walter Reed School, 69 new pupils registered; at Patrick Henry School, 52, and at Kate Waller Barrett School, 51.

Unified Race Action Urged

Individual attitudes on race relations can accomplish little without practical, political organization driving toward corrective legislation, Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), asserted last night.

Speaking before 150 persons attending the monthly dinner of the Interchurch Fellowship at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., Dr. Davies said there were, however, several ways in which persons acting individually, can contribute toward better racial understanding.

Speaking on "What the Individual Can Do to Better Race Relations," Dr. Davies suggested:

1. All persons interested in racial justice should first ascertain the purity of their own motives. "Racial justice must be insisted upon because it is just" and for no other reason, he said.

2. Negroes should not be obsessed with feelings of persecution.

3. Interracial dealings should be carried on in other fields besides that for the advancement of civil rights.

4. Don't insist on attainment of all objectives at once, and above all, use "peaceful, judicious" methods.

5. "Keep an attitude of dignity, forbearance and patience" in arguing with opponents of racial justice.

6. Accept limited cooperation from persons who are otherwise opposed to your objectives.

7. Like-minded persons of all races should meet in churches and in social agencies again and again "until there is no longer any shadow of constraint between us."

Play Tournament Fast Shaping Up

By Richard L. Coe

THIS IS THE FINAL day on which the town's 34-odd amateur drama groups may enter their "intent to file" application to take part in the twenty-first annual One-Act Play Tournament.

This annual event is sponsored by the City-Wide Division of the District of Columbia Recreation Department. By March 1, final applications to enter the tournament must be in.

Robert E. Colvin, long active with the St. Paul Players, was recently elected chairman of this year's tournament by the executive committee, made up of one representative from each adult dramatic group interested in the competition.

As in past years, several plays will be given each night in a preliminary series. Three or four of these will be selected by the judges to compete in the finals, which generally are judged by the town's dramatic reviewers. Following tradition, too, will be the award of the Maud Howell Smith Medal for the best individual performance in these preliminaries. The series will get under way March 21, with the finales set for April 9.

Serving with Mr. Colvin on the committee are a group of names well-known in the city's theatrical circles: Byron C. Sarvis, last year's tournament chairman; Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Dennis E. Connell and Father Gilbert V. Hartke.

As for the fact that there are at least 34 amateur dramatic groups in this theaterless city, I have to thank Mrs. Mabelle M. Clark, of the Recreation Department, and her associates for a fine compilation job. Without listing the officers, here are the groups. If you know of some adult amateur dramatic society not in this list, Mrs. Clark would be happy to hear from you at Adams 2050:

Academy of the Theater, Agriculture Players, Alexandria Little Theater, Alexandria Playhouse, Arlington Little Theater, Arlington Farms Little Theater, Arts Club of Washington.

The Calvary Players, Catholic University Speech and Drama School, Falls Church Community Theater, F. B. I. Recreation Association, Footlight Club of Maryland University, Foundry Players, Jewish Community Center Drama Club, Interior Department Recreation Association, Latter Day Saints Church Dramatic Club, Montgomery Players, Mount Vernon Players, National City Christian Church Drama Club, The Masquers of Roosevelt Center.

The Pepconians Dramatic Club, the Readers Club of Washington Dramatic Club, Sacred Heart Players, Shakespeare Society of Washington, Southeast Dramatic Association, Takterian Players, Wilson Teachers College Club Drama Club.

The Wigs and Cues Dramatic Club, the Women's Club of Chevy Chase Drama Club, the Washington Players, the YMCA Mid-Town Players, the Fairlington Players, St. Peters Social Club and the Guild Hall Players.

That, and the fact that all the performances are held in the Roosevelt High School Auditorium, seems to be about the works on the tournament, so far as I know them. If you've any questions, try calling June Blair, at Adams 2050.

THEATER PEOPLE are linking forces for another public welfare drive . . . Yesterday saw the start of fund collections by the Washington Heart Association, an affiliate of the American Heart Association to battle heart disease . . . Irene Dunne is chairman of the national women's committee, with Loew's Carter Barron and Warner's George Crouch as cochairmen of the local entertainment division . . . Other local showfolk on the committee include Jack Foxe, Frank Boucher, Louise Noonan Miller, J. Raymond Bell and Mildred Dougherty . . . Behind their participation lies the death by heart disease of the Capitol's longtime manager, Gene Ford.

OPENING DAYS this week don't follow custom, which is getting to be a tradition all by itself . . . The Warner today will bring in a highly regarded melodrama, "The Accused," in which Loretta Young plays a college professor who's forced to murder one of her students, Douglas Dick; Robert Cummings and Wendell Corey ferret her out . . . The Pix introduces the first Soviet film here in some time, "Symphony of Life," a story, in color, of a Siberian musician . . . To these add the Playhouse opening Friday night of "Symphonie Pastorale," aiding the drive for the National Symphony Orchestra, and you know why drama editors have to be, well, eccentric . . . And next Wednesday night the Palace will be having the Air Force top brass on hand for the flood-lighted premiere of "Command Decision," which, to make matter more complex, opens its regular run at the Capitol the next day . . . Got it straight?

Heavy-Truck Road Damage, Waste Cited

The Nation's three million miles of roads are being seriously damaged by overloaded trucks, Thomas H. MacDonald, U. S. Commissioner of Public Roads, warned yesterday. The result, he added, has been a "disgraceful and extravagant waste" of funds.

MacDonald addressed the Road Builders Conference and forty-sixth annual meeting of the American Road Builders Association in the Mayflower Hotel yesterday afternoon.

"Axle loads in excess of 18,000 pounds should not be authorized," he said in support of such recommendation by the American Association of State Highway Officials. Many State legislatures are now studying bills which would increase the limits, he said, and "further compound the damage." Many States already have limits above 18,000 pounds, he said.

In earlier sessions yesterday of the three-day conference, Senator Hubert H. Humphery (D., Minn.) urged that money appropriated for highways be distributed on the basis of where the roads are most traveled rather than where the roads are located.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio), however, stressed the need of secondary or "farm to market" road improvement and construction.

The association's outgoing president, J. T. Callaway of Chicago, delivered his annual report. His successor, Col. Enoch Needles of New York, will be installed at the concluding session Wednesday.

The convention is being held simultaneously in the Statler, Willard and Mayflower hotels. Approximately 2000 highway constructors, engineers and officials are attending.

'Hill' Gets Request For $11,500,000 Census Building

Congress yesterday received a proposal for a new $11,500,000 Government building at Suitland, Md., in which to process the seventeenth decennial census being taken in 1950.

The proposal was submitted by Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator. He said the building would be needed for about 3½ years for the census work starting June, 1949. No space is now available in the Washington area for the project, he said.

By Citizen Group

After-Hours License Fees Advocated

The Stanton Park Citizens Association last night asked the Corporation Counsel's office to draft legislation to require after-hours clubs to pay a "substantial" license fee.

The resolution, to be mailed to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and the District Commissioners, recommended that such legislation also bring the clubs under the ABC regulations.

The 25 association members at the meeting in the Peabody School, 5th and C sts. ne., also opposed any legalized sale of liquors "during any hours on Sunday."

The association voted to recommend Ninth Precinct Station Officer Joseph Junghans for the District Lions Club Award of the Month.

Leave Paving to CTC, Kenilworth Unit Asks

The Kenilworth Citizens Association last night went on record as opposed to the use of money from the District Appropriations Fund to pave along streetcar tracks on Benning rd.

The Association recommended that Capital Transit Co. bear the expense.

Meeting at Community Hall, Kenilworth and Ord sts. ne., the Association indorsed the extension of the Rent Control Act here until June 30, 1951.

The group, in other action, approved a District sales tax with exemptions for food, drugs, fuel and fuel oil, and concurred in the Federation of Citizens Association's Monday reply on the controversial report on Segregation in the Nation's Capital.

Manor Park Hears Report on Underpass

L. M. Hedgecok of the District Highway Department, last night told a meeting of the Manor Park Citizens Association that construction on the proposed Kansas ave. underpass will begin in October and will cost approximately $500,000.

Amendment Sought In Federation Rules

A recommendation that the Federation of Citizens Associations amend its constitution to permit member associations to appoint alternates for their delegates was made last night by the Minnesota Center Citizens Association.

Meeting at the Benning School, Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. ne., the group also recommended appointment of either Mrs. E. M. Nelson or Wilbur S. Finch, a past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, to the District Board of Education.

Committee to Study Segregation Report

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown last night appointed a committee to decide whether the group will concure in Monday's reply of the Federation of Citizens Associations on the report of the National Committee on Segregation.

The action came last night after John L. Burling censured the Georgetown group's delegate to the federation, Maj. Gen. Howard G. Davidson, USA, for voting in favor of the report without being given authority to do so. The vote to appointe the committee was 45 to 44.

Southwest Citizens Hear Rep. Bryson

More than 90 persons attended last night's meeting of the Southwest Citizens Association to hear Representative Joseph R. Bryson (D., S. C.) describe his recent trip to Europe. The association met at the Southwest Branch Library, 7th and H sts. sw. The association also voted to contribute $10 to the National Symphony Orchestra's sustaining fund drive.

Free Cancer Clinic to Be Kept Going

The District Cancer Detection Clinic at Gallinger Hospital, slated to close due to lack of personnel and funds, will continue indefinitely, Commissioner Guy Mason said last night.

Dr. Jay McLean, chief of the Health Department's Cancer Division, who had been supervising the facility for indigent patients of the District, said Saturday that his clinic would be forced to close June 30 because the city heads had denied funds for personnel in the 1949-50 budget request.

After checking with budget and Health Department officials yesterday, Mason disclosed that Gallinger Hospital would absorb the operation of the clinic, using its own nurses and medical staff. It now appears certain, he said, that the clinic can continue serving the District indefintely.

The clinic, only such facility for persons unable to pay, opened last February 7.

Greenbelt Indecent Book Sales Under Control

The sale of "indecent and salacious" literature in Greenbelt is under control, the Town Council decided last night.

A suggestion by Town Manager Charles T. McDonald that a "censorship" committee be set up was vetoed by the council as "not a function of government."

Laws already in the Maryland Code, the council decided, are sufficient to control such matters.

The council took under study a petition by a Greenbelt resident seeking an ordinance making parents of children under 18 years responsible for their acts.

The petition, submitted by T. G. Davidson, asked that parents found guilty of permitting their children to become "dependents or delinquents" should be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned for 90 days, or both.

In other action, the council delegated Mrs. Harrington to represent it in school financing matters.

The council also accepted on first reading a resolution by Mrs. Harrington urging the Prince Georges County delegation to the State Legislature to back an increase in the incentive fund.

Regular meeting of the council, slated for February 21, was moved up to next Monday, at which time projected charter changes will be considered.

Rosenberg Heads Alexandria Chest

Maurice D. Rosenberg, Alexandria attorney and former member of the Virginia House of Delegates, last night was elected president of the Alexandria Community Chest. He succeeds William F. Raugust.

Other officers chosen at a meeting at the Virginia Public Service Auditorium, Prince and Washington sts., Alexandria, include Mrs. William Zimmerman 3d, reelected vice president, and Luther H. Dudley, Alexandria banker, treasurer.

You're in Clover when Dynaflow takes over

Oil does it all in DYNAFLOW DRIVE
There's no clutch pedal in Dynaflow Drive. And no gears that shift. Instead, the engine makes oil whirl in a drum. And it whirls in such a unique and special way that whatever kind of power you need—for starting, climbing, accelerating, cruising—is instantly delivered to the rear wheels. You just set a lever, press the gas treadle—and the power plant does the rest.

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

IT'S something, really, you almost have to sample firsthand, for yourself.

For the plain fact is, there's only one Dynaflow—only one car in all America with a drive so completely and utterly smooth, so entirely unbroken in stride from standstill to cruising speed.

You just set a lever—and step on the accelerator.

In one swift and single surge, you move off smoothly on signal, slide in one unbroken flow of growing power into the settled easy stride of full-pace highway travel.

Where others break stride to shift, you swing smoothly by them.

Where some "automatic" transmissions call for a lift of the foot to let gears change, you flow steadily, smoothly forward in one unbroken sweep.

Stop signs? You simply brake to a stop—then go again with a treadle pressure when the green shows.

Hills? You take them in stride, with no thought of shifting on your part, no jar or jerk as automatic mechanisms shift gears for you.

In traffic you have no thought but watching for openings, taking prompt advantage of every one with a surge of power from your treadle's foot pressure.

Happy as a bee in clover, you just sit there, steer, and go fast or slow at the touch of a toe!

Small wonder this is called the greatest thing in cars since the self-starter. Small wonder that Buick, to offer it to still more people right now, has made it available as optional equipment on all SUPERS.

A lot of your neighbors are going to be quick to go for that idea of the SUPER plus Dynaflow. Better see your Buick dealer pronto—and get your order in, whether or not you have a car to trade.

DiMaggio Signs With Yanks, May Make $90,000

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BASEBALL'S alliance with television got the full satirical treatment the other night by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers Association in their annual play-acting at the Waldorf that has come to be known to the legitimate stage as Murder at The Waldorf.

If Lunt and Olivier and Maurice Evans winced somewhat at the feeble histrionics of the actors for a night, it is true also that the major league club-owners at the head table probably blanched a bit, but not for the same reason. It was the script of the writers' show, not the staging or the execution, that must have caught the conscience of the baseball kings.

POVICH

They titled it "Video, Wherefore Art Thou, Video," or "What Became of Baseball?" and spread their skit out across the Waldorf stage with an introductory chorus by one-time game goers now taking their baseball by television.

They portrayed modern baseball fans, home-loving characters dressed in lounging robes, smoking jackets, carpet slippers and other hearth-side trappings, ready for an evening of baseball via Channel 5. Everybody the guests of El Roperdora Cigars.

THEY PUT IT to the tune of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," and their whimsy certainly wasn't lost on the clubowners when the cast commenced:

Take us home to the ball game.
Take us home to the wife.
Get us our slippers; they're just the style,
Plug in the gadget and spin the old dial.
Then we'll root for plenty of action.
If a tube blows out, it's a shame.
But no matter what happens, we'll never go out
To the old ball game.

There it was for the clubowners to ponder, what with their greed for television sponsors and the threat of empty parks as suggested by the play-acting writers. It was all good fun, but where the fun stopped and the drop in customers began they didn't bother to make clear.

THAT WASN'T THE ONLY harpoon tossed at video by the cast. Another skit pretended to show the Yankees' Yogi Berra barred from baseball for life because he wasn't photogenic. Umpire Babe Pinelli finds himself fired because he ad-libbed a decision at second base instead of reading it from the script. There were other barbs at television.

The skits revealed that the highest paid outfielder in baseball is Milton Berle, new star of the Boston Red Sox. He can't field, hit or run, but he's a natural on the television screen. And with an eye to the Sunday night competition, the upshot is that the television companies who now control all the major league franchises, issue orders that no-hit games are to be pitched only on Sunday nights to compete with the Fred Allen and Jack Benny shows.

That's overdrawing the picture somewhat, of course, but the clubowners themselves have admitted that while television at this point is a profitable problem, they don't know where it is leading them; don't know if the sale of video rights will fetch enough to offset what may be a drop in attendance.

RIGHT NOW THE clubowners are flirting with the old merchandising sin of giving their product away. Perhaps, though, it will be justified. As yet, video hasn't affected attendance in the major league cities, at least not enough to offset the sale price of the video rights. But with television sets in the homes multiplying faster than locusts, attendance could drop fast, to be offset only by higher prices from sponsors for the rights.

So far, though, the owners haven't betrayed any great fears. They're proceeding on their experience with radio, which helped make fans in addition to producing revenue. But radio piqued the interest of the fans and tempted them to go to the games. The difference may be that the visual accounts of the game may satisfy the baseball interest of television fans, not merely pique it.

There is a safety valve, though, and it's in the control of the clubowners. As one of them is fond of saying, "We won't let television run away with baseball. Right now baseball television is no good. It's fuzzy, and can't cover the action. The ball is too small. If they ever perfect television to the point where it's too interesting at home, we'll throw it out of our parks."

GW Frolics 81-51, Nears Conference Playoff Spot

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington's Colonials moved to within a game of a certain Southern Conference tournament berth last night as they trampled South Carolina, 81-51, before 800 at the armory.

The Gamecocks, who had won five of their six previous Conference outings, simply had no defense for the slick passing and sharpshooting Colonials, who notched their seventh win in 12 loop games.

Johnny Moffatt and Lenny Small paced the G. W. attack with 16 and 15 points, but equal contributors in the victory were 5-foot, 9-inch Gene Witkin, who set up the plays, and Ray Adler, who shut out the Gamecocks' scoring star, Jim Slaughter.

The 6-foot, 9-inch Slaughter did flip in a basket and two foul shots when Adler was taking a rest, but the Southern boy's 19.1 league scoring average took a serious nose dive.

Score 24 Straight

The red-hot Colonials led from the second minute, and reached the boiling point in the fifth minute. Leading by 10-9, G. W. scored 24 straight points before a desperate half-court basket by Carolina's Harry Parone broke the spell.

Ahead by 41-12 six minutes before the half, the G. W. first team was yanked and second-stringers carried off a 47-21 advantage at intermission. In that torrid first half, the Colonials sank 17 out of 28 shots from the floor for a phenomenal 61 per cent average.

The halftime rest apparently had no cooling effects on the Colonials, who widened their lead to 67-32, after 8 more minutes. Then mercifully, G. W. Coach George Garber called off his first-stringers, and let the scrubs finish the slaughter.

Henry Martin, a 6-foot 1-inch forward, saved some face for the losers by copping scoring laurels with 22 points.

In a preliminary University of Maryland frosh rang up a 50-40 victory over Colonial yearlings.

Joe's Basic $60,000 and Bonus Will Equal Ruth

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio signed a contract approximately equal to Babe Ruth's best today in a setting slightly less gaudy than those in which the Babe usually concluded his salary negotiations.

Neither the Yankee officials nor their star centerfielder would give the terms of the document, other than to say it was for one year only.

The best guesses, based on what is known about DiMaggio's previous rates of pay, were that the contract called for a base salary of more than $60,000, plus a series of bonuses, based upon the club's home attendance.

The bonuses could bring Joe's total income up around the $90,000 figure or even higher if the Yankees had an unusually good year.

The Yankee Clipper, emerging from a picture-shooting session which followed his third conference with President Dan Topping and General Manager George Weiss, termed it: "By far the best contract I ever had."

Topping confirmed that DiMaggio had received a raise over last year's pay, which brought him approximately $70,000, and that this year's contract was on similar terms.

It has been generally understood that DiMaggio received a base pay of $50.000 last season and attendance bonuses estimated at from $18,000 to $22,000. The exact figure never has been established, due to the Yankees' reticence to talk about salaries.

Ruth, in his heyday, received a top pay of $80,000 under a two-year contract in 1930 and 1931. In addition he received a percentage of the gate receipts for the Yankees' exhibition games which brought his total baseball income above the $90.000 mark.

DiMaggio said he was on his way to Acapulco, Mexico, for a couple of weeks of fishing;

"I haven't tried running on it but I've done a lot of walking and it hasn't bothered me," Joe said. "The other one bothered me all last season. I weigh about 193 pounds, a couple under my playing weight."

Asked if he expected to have a better season than last year, when he batted .320 hit 39 home runs and drove in 155 runs, Joe flashed a white-toothed smile and replied:

"I don't think I could have a much better season. I might be able to do better in the field and I expect to have a higher batting average because of my running, but maybe I won't have so many runs batted in."

Later Patterson produced a set of "published" salary figures, ranging from $7500 in 1936 to $70,000 in 1948, and World Series cuts DiMaggio has received in 10 seasons. These added up to a total income of $386,559.20 from baseball in 10 seasons and didn't include the approximate $60 a month Joe earned while he was in the Army.

Feller Signs Today At Cut of $10,000

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, and Bob Feller returned to Cleveland today to go through the formalities of signing Feller's 1949 contract.

They settled the details here last night, with Feller agreeing to take a $10,000 cut, but postponed the actual signing until 4 p. m. (EST) tomorrow so that it could take place in Cleveland.

"I'm satisfied. I deserve to take a cut," said Bob. "We drew over two and a half million last year, but 25 other fellows on the club had good years and deserved a raise more than I did."

He will receive the same base pay as last year, $40,000. A different bonus arrangement figures to produce a smaller total, however, probably $72,500 at tops.

Prendergast, Battles New Hoya Coaches

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Bob Margarita, a transplanted Ivy Leaguer himself, reached into his old bailiwick yesterday and plucked two assistant coaches to help him rebuild Georgetown's football team.

From Yale, where he was an assistant coach two weeks ago, Margarita chose John Prendergast to be the Hoya end coach. From Dartmouth, Margarita selected Bill Battles to be his line coach.

Prendergast, former Colgate end, has already signed a Hoya contract. Battles, while he has assepted terms, is waiting to contact Tuss McLaughry, Dartmouth head coach, before moving into his new Georgetown job.

McLaughry is somewhere between San Francisco and Hanover, N. H., driving home from the California coaches meeting and Battles has been unable to reach him since deciding to join Margarita at the Hilltop.

Prendergast is 33 years old and was head coach at Blair Academy in New Jersey before stepping up to Yale last season.

Battles is 34 years old, six years older than Margarita.

Battles, no kin to the illustrious Cliff, played tackle for McLaughry at Brown, had two seasons with the Chicago Bears and then became an assistant coach at Dartmouth.

Prendergast succeeds George Murtaugh as Hoya end coach. Murtaugh is now coach of the Georgetown 150-pounders. Battles relieves Mush Dubofsky, one of the three coaches let out when the Hoyas made a clean sweepdown of their football coaching staff.

Margarita has to select only one more assistant and his staff will be complete.

Where to Buy College Tickets

Tickets for the Duke-George Washington game at the Armory Wednesday night, starting at 8:45, may be purchased at the G. W. athletic offices and at the Armory tomorrow.

For the season's final collegiate double-header Saturday, involving G. W. and North Carolina and Seton Hall and Georgetown, tickets may be obtained at either of the local schools or at The Fairway, 1328 G st. nw.

Most of Writers Think Kentucky Best in Nation

By Gayle Talbot

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Kentucky's wondrous Wildcats poured it on four more rivals last week, and just about convinced the Nation's basketball experts that they are the best of the college fives.

Of 72 writers and broadcasters who participated in the Associated Press' fourth weekly poll, 47 voted Kentucky the No. 1 team, while only 13 stuck to the St. Louis Billikens and another eight cast their ballots for the Oklahoma Aggies.

A week ago, when Kentucky vaulted to the top over St. Louis, the firstplace votes were fairly close—39 to 25. The experts apparently weakened on the Billikens when they were forced to go overtime to defeat Long Island University, 43-37.

Kentucky, meantime, was plastering Vanderbilt 72-50, Alabama 56-40, Mississippi 74-45 and Bradley, one of the better teams, 62-52.

The "Big Three"—Kentucky, St. Louis and Oklahoma Aggies—remained far in front of the pack with total points of 670, 605 and 575, respectively. Illinois did not receive a single vote for No. 1.

Hamline, the Nation's only undefeated major team, jumped from eighth to fifth place in the concensus as the authorities, not quite sure what to make of the Pied Pipers, placed them everywhere from No. 1 to No. 10.

The top teams figured on a point basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 (first place votes and won-lost records in parentheses):

1. Kentucky (47) (17-1)	670
2. St. Louis (13) (15-1)	605
3. Oklahoma A. and M. (8) (13-2)	575
4. Illinois (14-2)	373
5. Hamline (2) (15-0)	292
6. W. Kentucky (17-2)	245
7. Minnesota (14-2)	216
8. Tulane (18-2)	159
9. San Francisco (18-3)	115
10. Stanford (17-3)	103
The Second 10
11. Loyola (Chicago) (1) (16-3)	92
12. Utah (16-4)	49
13. Villanova (13-3)	47
14. Bowling Green (12-6)	44
15 Holy Cross (12-5)	34
16. Butler (1) (13-3)	27
17. Washington State (18-2)	26
18. Ohio State (9-4)	24
19. Wyoming (17-6)	23
20. Duquesne (13-2)	20

Others receiving votes: Texas, 17; Bradley 16; North Carolina State, 13; La Salle, 12; Yale, 11; Louisville, 10; Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee, each 8; Long Island U. and C. C. C. N. Y., each 7; U. S. C. and West Virginia, each 6; Baylor, Temple, N. Y. U. and Michigan, each 5; De Paul, 3; Arizona, 2; West Texas Niagara and Cincinnati, each 1.

Pro Grid Merger or Accord Impossible Now, Says Bell

Philadelphia, Feb. 7 (AP).—A merger between the National Football League and the All-America Conference is impossibe under present conditions, NFL Commissioner Bert Bell said today.

Bell said "meetings between the two groups have demonstrated that obstacles to a merger can not be overcome." And, he told reporters, "there will be no common draft, no exhibition games and no world series of football between the two leagues."

At a press conference called to give the NFL's official version of negotiations between the two factions, Bell said:

"The stronger All-America Conference teams wanted to come to an agreement with the National Football League, but the other teams in the conference organization would not permit this.

"They had a binding agreement which prohibited such a move without the consent of all its members."

Bell denied emphatically charges by Owner Jim Breuil of the AAC's Buffalo Bils that peace between the two leagues was blocked by Tim Mar, New York Giants owner, and George Marshall, of the Washington Redskins.

"That is not correct," said the NFL commissioner.

"Peace was not the subject of our meetings.

"Only once, at the first meeting on December 20, was the suggestion made that the All-America Conference retain its identity. That suggestion was quickly dropped and thereafter the owners from both leagues discussed how many conference teams could join the National Football League.

Bell said at no time did the NFL leave AAC owners under any delusion that they were interested in two leagues.

"When Ben Lindheimer of the AAC's Los Angeles Dons called me prior to the December 20 meeting I told him our owners were interested in only two teams in the conference, San Francisco and Cleveland. I told him we would consider merging the two Los Angeles teams and desired Dan Topping to lease Yankee Stadium to the Boston Yanks. I suggested that Breuil attempt to buy in with Ted Collins' Boston franchise." Collins has transferred his team to New York as the New York Bulldogs and will play at the Polo Grounds.

Bell said Lindheimer informed him the AAC would like to come to Philadelphia and discuss the situation providing the NFL owners would keep an open mind on four conference teams.

"I promised no such thing but the AAC representatives came anyway," the commissioner said.

"We never wavered in our original demands and every action taken was by the 10 owners of the NFL. Neither Mara nor Marshall made efforts at the meeting to block anything. In fact, Tim wasn't even there. The Giants were represented by Jack Mara, Tim's son.

Tiger Walton Shuffled Out Of 'Skin Plans

Frank (Tiger) Walton, last year's coach of the Redskins' linemen, yesterday handed in his "resignation" after being informed he didn't fit into the Washington pros' plans under Rear Admiral John Esten (Billick) Whelchel, U. S. N., their new coach.

From his home in Beaver Falls, Pa., Walton said he was sorry to leave the Redskins, for whom he had also played during 1944-45, after a mere one-year tryout.

"But there's little doubt," Walton said, "that my line coaching job was needed for Turk Edwards, who'll be eased back into the spot from his executive vice presidency. It's just too bad, though, I had to be dealt out this way."

Walton is the second 1948 Redskin coach to "resign." End Coach Wayne Millner recently quit with the announcement that he wished to be free to accept one of several offers.

Millner is still considering his offers, but Walton frankly admits he is without a very solid prospect.

"This leaves me sort of up in the air," the Tiger said yesterday. "I've got to let people know I'm available."

Bullets Lose To Celts, 95-83

Boston, Feb. 7 (AP).—George Kaftan and Dermie O'Connell, the Boston Celtics' "KO" kids, applied the punch tonight as the locals smashed the Baltimore Bullets, 95-83, in a Basketball Association of America game.

A 4329 Garden crowd saw the former Holy Cross stars collect 37 points between them.

Jets Romp by 90-73

Indianapolis, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Indianapolis Jets couldn't stop Joe Fulks tonight but they upset the Philadelphia Warriors anyway, 90-73, in a Basketball Association of American game that drew only 2026 fans.

Fulks collected 28 points

Vinci Kayoed In 1:55 of 1st

Joe Blackwood, lethal punching Paterson (N. J.) middleweight, knocked out Chet Vinci, of Utica, N. Y., in the first round of their scheduled 10-round main attraction at Turner's Arena last night.

Blackwood, who now makes Washington his headquarters, lashed out against the former Marine from the opening bell and had completed his work 1 minute and 55 seconds after the fight started.

A jolting right to the jaw dropped Vinci for a 9-count and Blackwood followed this with a two-fisted offensive against Vinci's unprotected chin and it paid off in the quick knockout.

The paunchy Vinci was face down on the canvas while Referee Eddie Lond counted him out. Vinci landed only a few ineffective punches which Blackwood shook off easily and then proceeded to almost decapitate Vinci with his powerful blows to the head.

Blackwood weighed 164, one pound more than Vinci. It was Blackward's third straight Washington victory, two of which were knockouts.

Only 715 fans turned out for the card, paying $1,521 to witness the action.

Julian Keene, local middle weight, won a five-round decision over Kid Wolfe in the featured preliminary.

High, Prep Stars To Tangle Mar. 12

The third annual All-High, All-Prep basketball game sponsored by the Big Brothers Club of Georgetown Branch, Boys Club of Washington, will be held at Uline Arena on March 12, it was announced last night.

The All-Preps won last year's renewal, 50-46.

Smug Hursey Is Suspended

Smuggy Hursey, Washington's top middleweight less than two years ago, yesterday was indefinitely suspended by the D. C. Boxing Commission.

The commission advised the 21-year-old fighter to take a rest from fighting and told him he would not be licensed to fight again until a board of three doctors had approved his physical condition.

Hursey lost a 10-round decision to Ken Stribling at Turner's arena last week. He appeared feeble and spent in the bout.

Ez Charles Kayoes Haynes

Charles weighed 179, Haynes 214.

The Cincinnati hopeful was not an impressive fighter tonight and the windup was greeted by a mass chorus of boos as Haynes sat on the canvas and took the full count.

Haynes had staggered Charles in a bitter exchange when Charles suddenly unleashed a right uppercut that sent Haynes sprawling.

West Decisions Williams in 10

Baltimore, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Sonny Boy West, 137½ of Washington, tonight decisioned Johnny Williams, 138¾, of Montgomery, Ala., in a bloody 10-round bout.

Heavy Champ of Far East Comes to Army Tourney, Lands in Fort Myer Guard House

AS SOON AS Sergt. Howard Williams arrived from Japan yesterday, the Fort Myer brass slapped him in the guardhouse.

That's rare hospitality for a conscientious 238-pound heavyweight, who fought his way across the Pacific to get into the World-Wide Army championships at Fort Myer February 21-26.

In Williams' case, it's no disgrace. Fort Myer simply shipped out all of its jailbirds, and converted the gray lockup with its barred windows into a billet for the visiting fighters. The place has been dolled up, of course.

Williams is the first overseas boxed to arrive for the big tournament, and his ring record is spectacular.

He picked up his first glove in the Army three years ago, when he was "past 30," and won 29 out of 30 bouts, 28 by knockouts.

He won't quite admit how old he is now, except to say, "I aint 40 yet."

He's been the heavyweight king of the Army's forces in Japan since September, 1947. To earn a place in the worldwides, he had to win the Far East Ground Forces title on Guam January 5, and the Far East service crown January 23, also on Guam.

He hasn't fought since then, having exercised only his thumb, hitc-hiking East by Army plane. From Hamilton, Calif., to Washington, he made five stops, and almost froze in 23-below temperature over Utah.

The rest of the eight-man Far Eastern contingent is still stuck on the West Coast, grounded by the haylift air operation over the snow covered Western plains.

Before he joined the Army six years ago, Williams lost two out of three amateur bouts in his native San Francisco. He saw plenty of fighting, however, as soon as he got into the Army.

His service record in Germany qualifies him as something of a hero. When Negro Army ranks were rifled for front-line volunteers, Williams asked to be "busted" from technical sergeant, and served 130 consecutive days in the Cologne sector, practically nose-to-nose with the Nazis. He earned a Bronze Star for that.

Does he plan to turn professional when he gets out of the Army? "Heck no, I'd be kinda old", says Williams. 'I'll be in the Army for 24 more years, and by then, I might be a little tired of fighting."

DiMag Paid Strictly as 'Old Pro'

By Red Smith

Copyright, 1949, N. Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, FEB. 7.—The invitation to a press conference in the Yankees Fifth Avenue seraglio could and perhaps should have specified, "dress optional."

Red Smith

It was the morning after the annual Baseball Writers' dinner and at 11 o'clock a good many members of the literary set around town still wore their party frocks.

Moreover, the social and financial tone of the occasion practically demanded formal attire. The Yankees, it seemed, had accepted terms with Joe DiMaggio.

"The contract," Jackie Farrell reported, "was signed with a gold-tipped pen, 24 carat."

"Joe got a raise," Arthur Patterson said. "It is the best contract of the 11 he has signed with the Yankees.

"Is it the biggest salary ever paid to a ballplayer?"

"We have not said that," Patterson said.

"Are you saying it is not the biggest ever?"

"We don't say that, either."

The cheese cake customarily served at the Yankees' press conferences was missing. Even a wealthy club like this one has its limits. However, several hours after DiMaggio departed to make ready for an attack upon the sailfish off Acapulco, Mexico, the office furniture was still in place and no efforts had been made to hock the water carafes or filing cabinets.

DiMAGGIO was asked what was the smallest salary he ever earned. He said he once received $3.50 a day for peeling oranges for a California citrus firm, and quit after his first day on the job. He seemed to feel that peeling baseballs with a stick was a better racket.

At any rate, the all-time Yankee standard set by Babe Ruth has been attained by DiMaggio, give or take $10,000. Comparisons between baseball salaries of today and those of twenty years ago are almost as misleading as comparisons of the earnings of Stymie and Sun Beau.

It is interesting to consider the separate reasons why Ruth and DiMaggio could command such wages.

The Babe didn't get $80,000 merely because he could hit more home runs farther than anybody else. He didn't get it simply because he was a great ball player, accomplished in all departments of play.

He got it because of his personality. His "color," that is. He was the greatest single box-office attraction baseball ever knew.

DIMAGGIO is being paid for professional performances alone. He is a gracious and charming man, an altogether attractive personality to those who knew him, but the fans do not know him as they knew Ruth.

Except for the period between May 15 and July 16, 1941, when Joe hit safely in 56 consecutive games, not many people have laid their money on the barrel just to see him play.

His drawing power stems from his ability to make the team a winner and thus enjoy the business which a winning team creates. He does not play a featured role, like a pitcher; he never struts or clowns or consciously plays up to the crowd; he is not a physical freak or a zany character. He is simply a superb craftsman.

In this sense he is the most highly paid ball player of all time. That is, nobody else ever got so much money just for playing baseball well.

It is difficult to say whether he would draw the top salary if, say, Ty Cobb and Ruth and Honus Wagner were at their best today.

But he'd be right up there with the rest. He'd always be up there, in any era, in any company.

Underdogs Face Wilson And Coolidge

Western and McKinley Tech, two of the early front-runners in the cently shoved out of contending positions, get thei rchance to move up again on this afternoon's 3:30 p. m. double-header at the Armory.

To be sure, their chances aren't too bright. Western, in sixth place with a 2-3 record, runs into undefeated Wilson, the only team which has already clinched its playoff berth. And Tech, in fifth position, with 4-2, collides with Coolidge, which has a 4-1 record, and is tied for second place with Eastern.

A third Interhigh game is also slated, with eighth-place Anacostia playing tenth-place Bell Vocational at 3:30 p. m. at the Anacostia High gym.

The twin bill highlights a 16-game scholastic basketball program today, the second busiest on this week's 61-game slate. Twenty-two games are listed for Friday.

The Western-Wilson tiff should be the most interesting. The two schools are natural rivals, competing annually for the best boys' club in the northwestern area.

Bucky Poston, Western's followers confidently expect, will provide the "equalizer" to Wilson's highly successful two-team system. Bucky, whose quick set shots come practically from the hip, has a 15.8 scoring average, best in the league.

Wilson has only chubby Leo Speros among the top five scorers with a 10.0 average. But in spot games, when Speros has needed help in the point-making department, Jim Young and Don Scott and Rommey Linney have come through admirably. Wilson's team is one of the youngest in the league, and if the Tigers can come through with the championship this year, they're likely to keep it for another year or two.

Capitol Heights Wins Pair of Cage Games

The Capitol Heights Senior basketball team last night romped to a 79-11 victory over District Heights in a Prince Georges County League game. David Simms' 26 points were high in the Capitols third straight win at Maryland Park.

In the junior division ,Capitol Heights defeated East Riverdale, 59-8. Henry Schoen paced the winners with 27 points.

Vandy Sees Hardin-Simmons Coach Today; Quemadito, at 141-1, Pays $285 at Hialeah

He is Warren Woodson, coach of Hardin-Simmons College at Abilene.

Woodson, former coach at Arkansas State Teachers College and Texarkana High School, was recommended for the Vanderbilt coaching post by John Holman and Jack Jenkins, alumni now living in Texarkana.

The Vanderbilt committee already has interviewed two Texans, Coach Jess Neely of Rice Institute and his assistant, Joe Davis. It is due to talk to H. N. (Rusty) Russell, backfield coach at S. M. U., Wednesday.

Hialeah Horse Pays $285

Miami, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP).—A 141½-to-1 shot won the seventh race at Hialeah race track today, paying the longest odds thus far in the Florida season.

H. W. Fincher's Quemadito, the 7-year-old Chilean-bred son of disarmament-Quemazon, won the mile and furlong event and returned $285.20, $68.60 and $10.60 across the board for a $2 wager.

Shoemaker Gets Fla. Job

Gainesville, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP).—Perron Shoemaker, assistant coach at the University of Idaho for the past two seasons, has been named varsity end coach at the University of Florida. Shoemaker played end at the University of Alabama, 1936-38.

Mathews to Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 7 (AP).—Ned Mathews, backfield coach at U. C. L. A., has been named to the University of Arizona football coaching staff.

The university executive committee of the board of regents meeting here today approved the appointment of Bob Winslow, University of California chief assistant, as new head coach, made the appointment.

THE LIE

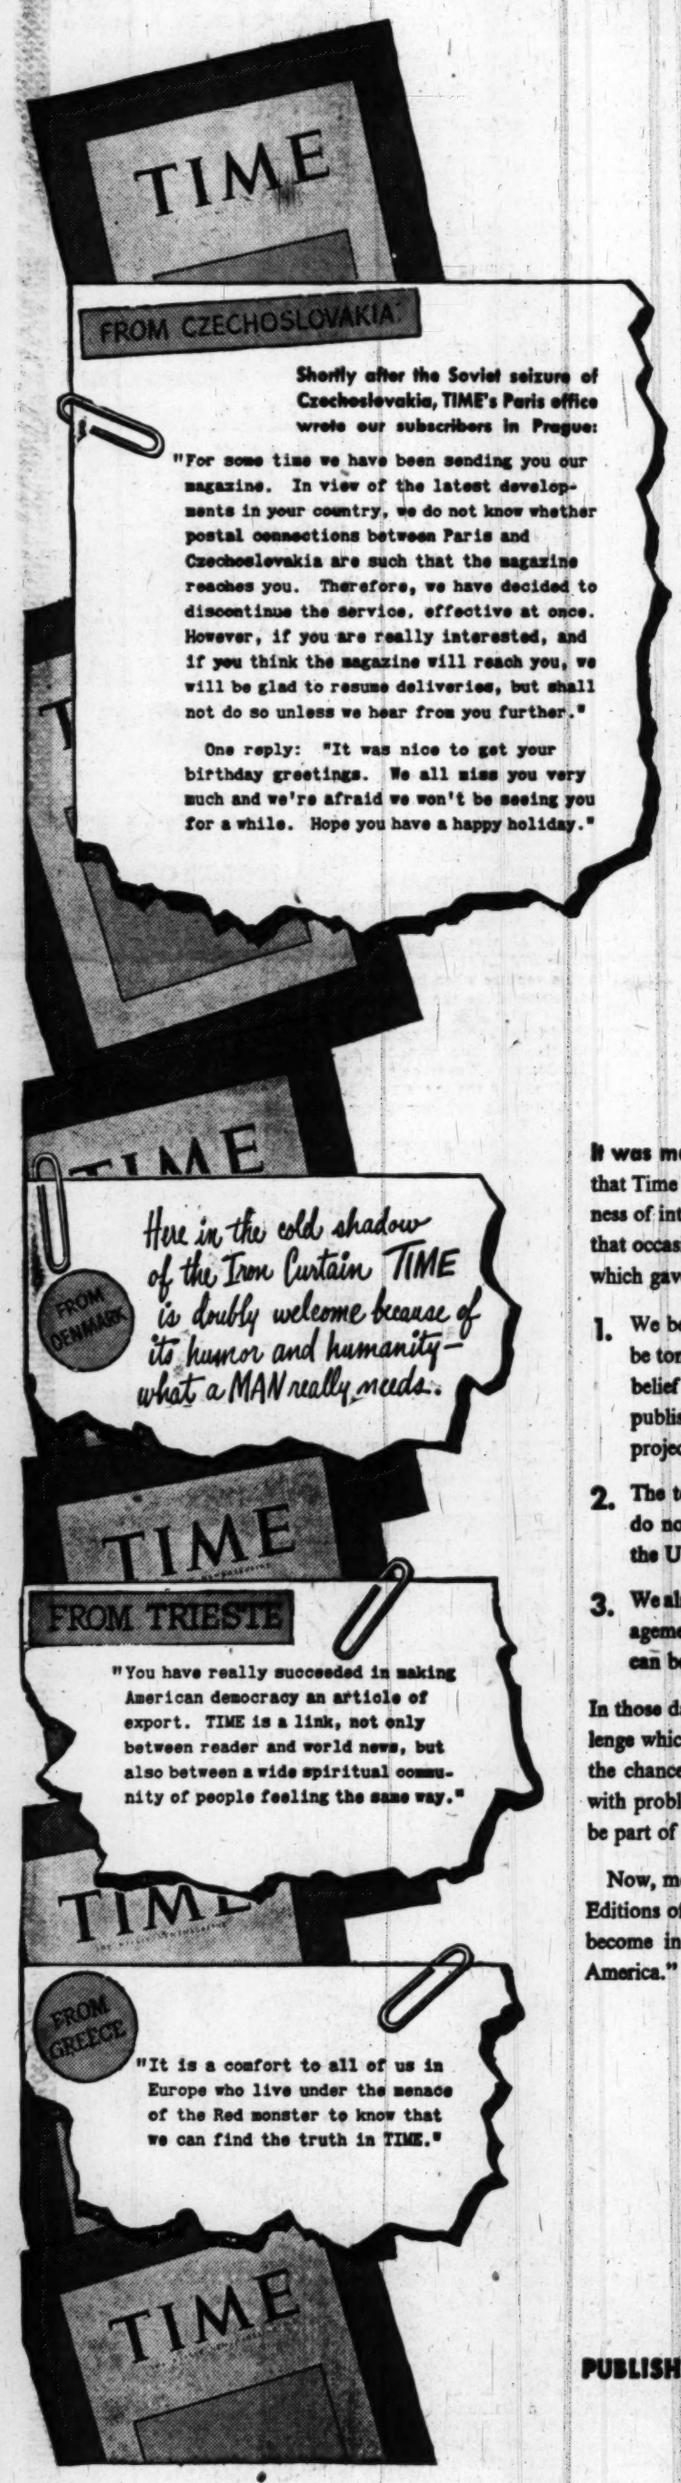
THE KREMLIN did not go unchallenged last year in its war of words to warp and win the minds of men abroad.

As part of America's counteroffensive, millions of U. S. magazines and newspapers were speeded across our borders and over the oceans to report the truth of the world's events, week after marching week.

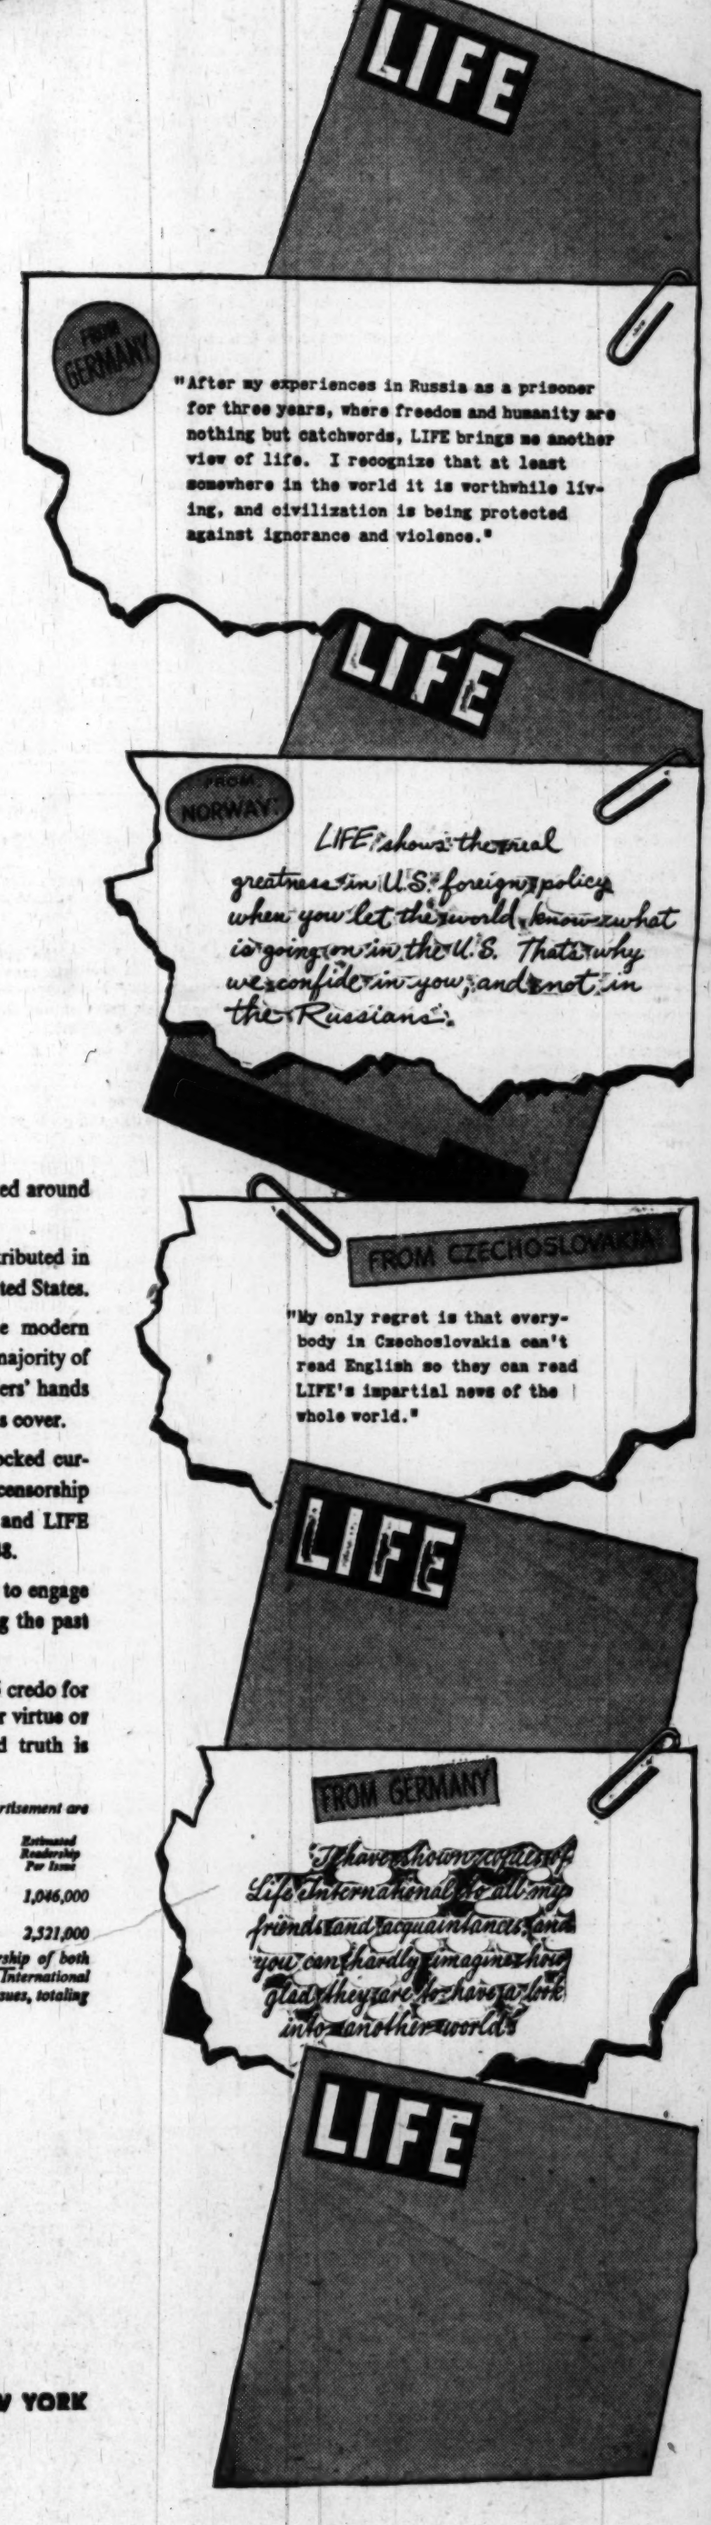
All along the fringe of the Iron Curtain (and sometimes behind it), these publications found their readers.

Men in trouble, men sorely puzzled, men and women whose inner convictions wavered—found the strength to resist Soviet propaganda in these clear, true chronicles from America—in these daily, weekly, fortnightly, and monthly accounts of what was being done, said, thought, written, painted, built, and destroyed in and around their world.

TIME and LIFE have shared, with many other members of America's press, the privilege of rendering this service to the free world—for twenty million copies of TIME's and LIFE's International Editions went out of the United States in 1948.* Now, therefore, at the beginning of what may well be the most critical year of all, the Publishers of these magazines make the following report of their stewardship . . .



TIME
FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA:
Shortly after the Soviet seizure of Czechoslovakia, TIME's Paris office wrote our subscribers in Prague:
"For some time we have been sending you our magazine. In view of the latest developments in your country, we do not know whether postal connections between Paris and Czechoslovakia are such that the magazine reaches you. Therefore, we have decided to discontinue the service, effective at once. However, if you are really interested, and if you think the magazine will reach you, we will be glad to resume deliveries, but shall not do so unless we hear from you further."
One reply: "It was nice to get your birthday greetings. We all miss you very much and we're afraid we won't be seeing you for a while. Hope you have a happy holiday."
TIME
FROM DENMARK
Here in the cold shadow of the Iron Curtain TIME is doubly welcome because of its humor and humanity—what a MAN really needs.
TIME
FROM TRIESTE
"You have really succeeded in making American democracy an article of export. TIME is a link, not only between reader and world news, but also between a wide spiritual community of people feeling the same way."
TIME
FROM GREECE
"It is a comfort to all of us in Europe who live under the menace of the Red monster to know that we can find the truth in TIME."
TIME



LIFE
FROM GERMANY
"After my experiences in Russia as a prisoner for three years, where freedom and humanity are nothing but catchwords, LIFE brings me another view of life. I recognize that at least somewhere in the world it is worthwhile living, and civilization is being protected against ignorance and violence."
LIFE
FROM NORWAY:
LIFE shows the real greatness in U.S. foreign policy when you let the world know what is going on in the U.S. That's why we confide in you, and not in the Russians.
FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA:
"My only regret is that everybody in Czechoslovakia can't read English so they can read LIFE's impartial news of the whole world."
LIFE
FROM GERMANY
"I have shown copies of Life International to all my friends and acquaintances and you can hardly imagine how glad they are to have a look into another world."
LIFE

It was more than three years ago, in September, 1945, that Time Incorporated made its decision to enter the business of international publishing on a world-wide scale. On that occasion, it circulated to its employees a memorandum which gave the following reasons for doing so . . .

1. We believe that the U.S. is today, and will continue to be tomorrow, a dynamic part of the world, and in that belief we consider that our journalistic techniques and publishing capacities can be a significant facet of the projection of America.
2. The technological circumstances of the modern world do not permit us to bottle up TIME and LIFE inside the U.S.
3. We also believe that, with energetic and intelligent management, our overseas activities, which have been costly, can become a profitable part of this company.

In those days the world presented exactly the kind of challenge which is most stimulating to Americans. It asked for the chance to rebuild itself—it offered opportunity along with problems and rewards. Time Incorporated wanted to be part of that great rebuilding.

Now, more than three years later, the four International Editions of TIME and world-wide LIFE International have become indeed "a significant facet of the projection of America." For evidence in part, read the statements (a very few of many thousands received) which are printed around the margins of this advertisement.

What is more, these magazines are being distributed in more than 100 countries beyond continental United States.

And "the technological circumstances of the modern world" have been so harnessed that in the great majority of these countries TIME gets its news into the readers' hands no later than the Monday issue date printed on its cover.

And, finally—despite dollar shortages and blocked currencies, despite restrictions and quotas, despite censorship and bans—the International Editions of TIME and LIFE turned the corner as a business operation in 1948.

Time Incorporated is proud to have been able to engage in these international publishing activities during the past thirty-nine pivotal months in world history.

And it here states its conviction that if its 1945 credo for TIME and LIFE International had any meaning or virtue or truth four years ago—that meaning, virtue and truth is multiplied a hundred-fold for the future.

The circulation and readership figures in this advertisement are based on the following table:

	Circulation	Readers Per Copy	Estimated Readership Per Issue
TIME International Weekly	261,346	4	1,046,000
LIFE International Fortnightly	252,083	10	2,521,000

The headline expresses the total monthly readership of both these publications in 1948—during which Time International distributed 52 issues and Life International 26 issues, totaling about 20 million copies.

Hoover Plan Would Increase Scope of Civil Service Chief

The president of the Civil Service Commission would be a far more influential figure if a proposal made yesterday by the Hoover Commission is adopted by the President.

He would also be the director of a proposed office of personnel in the White House and the President's principal staff adviser on the problems of Federal workers. The plan, now official, was first revealed here December 28. The report explains the work of the proposed personnel director as follows:

"The director should advise the President on ways and means of identifying exceptional talent within the Federal Civil Service in professional, scientific and executive positions and of making sure that this talent is being utilized in the most effective possible manner. He will be in a position to advise the President as to the steps which need to be taken to put the Government where it will be looked upon as one of the most progressive employers in the Nation."

Another part of the report recommends the development of a "much greater number of capable administrators, and to prepare them for promotion to any bureau or department in the Government where their services will be most effectively used."

The proposed White House personnel director, obviously, would have a big voice in the assignment and promotion of the executives.

President Truman could put this suggestion into effect without legislation by Congress. A number of people have suggested that this Government's No. 1 personnel job go to Donald S. Dawson, the President's administrative assistant for personnel. Dawson, however, has been cool to the idea.

SALARIES: The Hoover task force report on departmental management touches on Federal salaries in this sentence:

"We believe that the compensation of department heads and of Government employes generally must be increased to a level which not only permits decent family maintenance but also provides some attraction."

POWER: The same report strongly recommends that department heads be given the power to hire and fire bureau chiefs. Many of these officials are appointed by the President.

The report advocates selection on a merit basis. But it adds: "The merit system should not be used to perpetuate in major departmental positions individuals who are unwilling to accept the general direction of, or unable to satisfy the responsible political official of a department. Under present circumstances there is too often a disposition on the part of bureau chiefs to intrigue against department heads."

CAREER: The task force report also recommends that a single individual of career status be appointed as the top administrative official of a department. This career civil servant would be in charge of both budget and personnel and he wouldn't lose his job in a change of Administration. It's an attempt to give Government continuity in its top management.

DCE'S: A meeting of DCE's (displaced career employes) and career employes will be held from 5:30 to 7 p. m. today in the Interior Auditorium. The session is sponsored by the Federal Career Employe Association.

To be discussed will be a plan for the training and placement of DCE's by Civil Service. Also, a bill to be introduced in Congress which would scale down preference to veterans in layoffs and which would give longtime nonveteran career employes a better break.

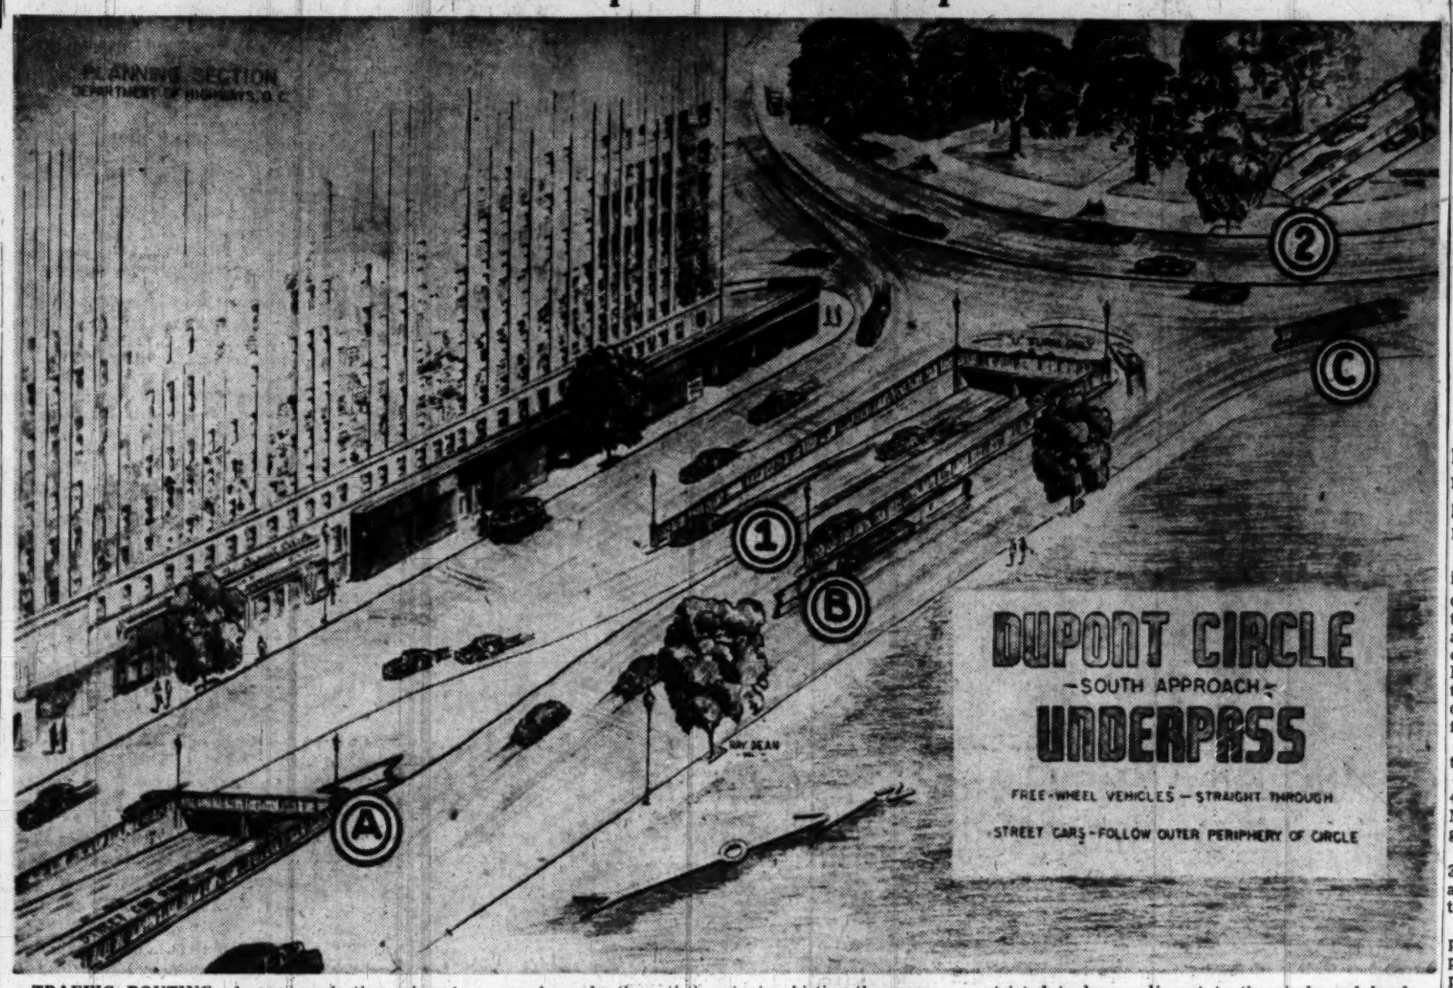
RETIREMENT: The Davis bill referred to here Sunday would allow employes who have up to 20 years of Federal service and who left Government before April 1, 1948, to withdraw their money from the Civil Service retirement system. It would not apply to present employes. Sorry.

NEWSLETTER: The first issue of our Federal Employe Newsletter will be out a week from today. Subscriptions are now being accepted at $8 a year. If you know Government workers outside of this city who might be interested in this every-other-week service please send in their names and addresses to this column.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service has open an exam for engineer-trainee to fill Reclamation Bureau jobs in the West. The jobs pay $2498 to $2724 to start . . . An industrial hygienist exam is open to fill vacancies in the Navy Department. The jobs pay $3727 to $6235 . . . Exams open at St. Elizabeths Hospital here: firefighter, $2799 to $3024; seamstress, $2152, and boiler fireman, $2573 . . . At the Naval Air Station, Patuxent River, Md., an exam is open for motor vehicle instructor to pay $2974 to $3351 to start . . . At Fort Belvoir, Va., tests are open for modelmaker, $1.31 to $2.27, and patternmaker, $1.53 to $1.87.

CLERICAL EXAM: The 37,000 persons here who applied for that test will be examined the week of March 5. Civil Service will mail out the admission cards as soon as final arrangements are completed. The jobs pay $2086, $2284 and $2498 to start . . . Civil Service hasn't a sufficient number of people who passed the recent telephone operator exam so it has postponed the firing of nonstatus operators . . .

Pre-Christmas Preview of the Dupont Circle Underpass



TRAFFIC ROUTING—A new projection, viewed from Connecticut ave., shows the south approach to Dupont Circle underpass as it will look when completed by next Christmas. Separate tunnels channel free-wheel vehicles straight through beneath the circle, while streetcars swing around the outer periphery underground. From the entrance of the first tunnel (A), streetcars proceed as shown by the artist's cutouts, skirting the ramp to the auto tunnel at B and traveling around the edge of the circle (C). Cars entering the tunnel designated as No. 1, will follow a straight route beneath the circle as shown by the cutout (No. 2). Above the subterranean passages, street traffic around the circle is separated by curving islands, with through traffic on Massachusetts ave. restricted to lanes adjacent to the circle and local traffic on the outside. Northbound cars on Connecticut ave. will be permitted to make U-turns at the bridge above the auto tunnel entrance. The $3,950,000 project, started in January, 1948, and now 44½ per cent finished, is scheduled for completion this December. The drawing was prepared by the Planning Section, D. C. Highway Department

Indictment of 4 Tells of $50,000 D. C. Dice Game

Threat With Pistol Alleged by Man Who Complained Over Heavy Losses

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Four men were indicted here yesterday on charges of running a $50,000-a-night dice game in a Woodley pl. basement.

The District grand jury true bill is based on a businessman's affidavit of $7500 lost over the crap table in four months, and ending at dawn January 6 in a near-murder. The complainant is Robert E. Ricker, who gave his address as the Hotel 2400 but who checked out three weeks ago and left no forwarding address.

Indicted, all on charges of setting up a gaming table, were:

Joseph H. (Big Joe) Scheve, 52, 4515 Longfellow st., Hyattsville, Md., said to be the banker of the game with an alias of Henderson.

Theodore J. (Little Joe) Scheve, 30, 2521 34th pl. se., Big Joe's son and alleged stickman at the crap table.

Herman (The Judge) Kadan, 46, proprietor of the 2730 Woodley pl. nw., row house where the reported game was run, and its alleged lookout and doorkeeper, who is said to operate a grocery on the side.

Hyman Rosen, 40, 1616 Isherwood st. ne., charged as a stickman and described as a flashily dressed New Yorker with a big diamond ring.

In addition, Big Joe Scheve was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to kill Ricker with a .32-caliber automatic pistol which jammed when the trigger was pulled.

Witnesses to the pistol incident were Mrs. Ricker, who had come to plead with the alleged gamblers to return her husband's losses, a cab driver, and two next-door neighbors.

Ricker's affidavit said he came back to this country from Hawaii and last summer became a frequenter of area racetracks. He said he was losing perhaps $30,000 in this venture when he was given the password to the Woodley pl. establishment. It was the letter "Q" followed by a number, he said, that got him admittance.

In October, Ricker said, he began attending the place regularly. The games, he said, were held between 10:30 p. m. and dawn on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights.

He said that in the basement of the residence an ordinary pool table had been converted into a crap table.

$100 Bet to Begin Roll

As many as 40 people would be in and out of the game in the evening, with as many as 25 pushing the table at one time. Silver coin was forbidden and each roll began with a maximum bet limit of $100. As much as $50,000 was handled on a game night, it was said.

Ricker said that at no time did he ever leave the night's game a winner and never saw anyone else leave a heavy winner, nor was any woman ever allowed to play.

One pair of dice—belonging to the house—were used and were rolled from a cup.

The night of the alleged pistol incident, Ricker's wife, said to weigh 98 pounds, came to get her husband.

She told how Ricker had hocked his watch, sold two automobiles and his real estate in an attempt to put more money into the game to get even. Ricker said he left in the early hours of the night but that at dawn he became worried and returned to the establishment.

His wife was still arguing when he arrived, the affidavit stated. Scheve began to leave but Mrs. Ricker blocked the door. Ricker said Scheve pushed her and knocked her to the floor.

Ricker rose to defend her but was slugged with the side of the automatic, and blood spurted from a head wound, it was said. Then, according to the affidavit, Scheve stood above Ricker and pulled the trigger, but the gun was jammed.

Ricker said he rose and Scheve backed to the door, working the gun-slide mechanism to eject the bullet. On the porch, Scheve turned, it was said, and twice more pulled the trigger but the clip had fallen to the floor. Scheve then fled into his automobile.

Ricker then went with the clip to United States Attorney George Morris Fay, who presented the evidence to the grand jury.

In other indictments, James T. Gibson, jr., 32, of 5001 Sheriff rd. ne., was charged with manslaughter in a traffic death. The victim was Mrs. Victoria Jones, 64, 330 McLean ave. sw., who was knocked down by Gibson's car November 25 in the 5200 block of Central avc. se.

Harold Hallums, 27, 2231 Bancroft pl. nw., was charged with trying to bribe policemen here. According to the indictment, Hallums approached Officers John C. Ostrom and John A. Duquette as they walked their beat on 14th st. nw. January 18 and gave them $10 each to neglect to arrest "his prostitutes."

In another count he is charged with offering Ostrom $500 to forget pressing the charge. At the time of this alleged offer, Hallums was in the cell block at the Second Precinct station house.

Senator Pose Cited in Bad Check Charge

A 54-year-old man was charged yesterday with cashing a bad $500 check by posing as Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.)

He is Harold S. Russell, of 1109 N. Illinois st., Arlington. Police say he is also wanted for passing bad checks in Atlantic City, N. J., and at Allentown, Pa.

Judge Walter J. Casey set bond at $500 and continued the case until today in Municipal Court.

The complainant is Philip S. Helig, who operates a store at 3207 M st. nw. According to Sergt. David Higgins of the Police Check Squad, Russell had been a customer at the Helig store for several months when on December 1, 1947, he said he was short of cash and obtained $500 for a check given Helig.

Russell is described as an employe of a checkwriter machine company.

2 Boys Admit Theft of 3 Automobiles

Two boys, 15 and 16 years old, have admitted to Fairfax County police the theft Sunday of three automobiles in Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

The boys, both of Arlington County, were taken into custody Sunday night. They admitted stealing a car in Arlington and driving to the Fairfax Theater on Route 211 near Fairfax, police said. On the way back toward Arlington, police said, the car became stuck in the mud near Fairfax Circle and they abandoned it.

According to their story, they then pushed onto the highway another parked car which they couldn't start, and were making off in a third car when police stopped them.

Police said the boys also admitted stealing a car in Arlington a week ago, ransacking about 20 others in the past two weeks and breaking into two houses.

Both boys are on probation, police said. The 15-year-old will be turned over to the probation officer of the U. S. District Court in Alexandria. The other will be turned over to juvenile authorities in Arlington.

Laborer, 36, Held For Grand Jury on Sex Act Charge

A 36-year-old laborer was held for the District grand jury yesterday under $10,000 bond on a charge of indecently molesting his 11-year-old daughter.

He was among three men held in Municipal Court on sex offenses in hearings before Judge Walter J. Casey.

The laborer charged is James Taylor, 36, 3620 N st. nw. His daughter took the stand and tearfully testified about the alleged act.

George McBride, 24, 1432 Simms dr. se., was held under $1000 bond on an assault with intent to rape charge. The victim is a 30-year-old woman assaulted in the 700 block of E st. se.

Walter Boston, 28, no fixed address, was charged with attempting to rape a 25-year-old mother of four children here in her home. Bond was set at $5000 for grand jury action.

Bridge Luncheon

The Women's Auxiliary of the Church of St. Clement, 1701 Seminary rd., Alexandria, will sponsor a bridge luncheon at the parish hall at 1 p. m., Thursday.

'Gag' Rejected By District House Group

Committee Adopts Rules of Operation, Fixes Meeting Time

The House District Committee yesterday adopted its rules of operation after turning thumbs down on a proposal to "gag" its membership.

The proposed "gag" rule would have barred subcommittees from disclosing their actions on bills until the full House District Committee had acted. It also would have required approval of the committee chairman to release publicity in advance of full committee actions.

Chairman John L. McMillan, (D., S. C.) took the lead in recommending that the committee delete any of the proposed rules to which any members had an objection Representative A. L. Miller, (R., Nebr.) had questioned adoption of the "gag" rule at an earlier meeting, so the proposal was dropped from the rules.

The committee also fixed 10 a.m. the first Monday of each month as its regular meeting day, and approved other rules of committee procedure.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), veteran of many years in House and Senate, attended his first meeting as a District Committee member. He has been assigned to the subcommittees on Public Service, Streets and Traffic, and on Public Utilities, Insurance and Banking.

Plan to Incorporate Silver Spring to Be Aired

The Silver Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce will push an investigation on the feasibility of incorporating Silver Spring, it was learned yesterday.

The junior chamber has invited Dr. Joseph Ray, of the Institute of Government of the University of Maryland, to give highlights on the proposed survey at a dinner at 6:30 p. m. next Monday in Stone House Inn, Four Corners, Md.

Laws Asked Against Starlings, Weeds, Dangerous Weapons

Washington's Commissioners yesterday asked Congress to make the town more livable by passing new laws against such things as starlings, weeds and dangerous weapons.

It seems, the present law protects starlings together with most other birds, and generally makes fair game only of English sparrows in the District.

Of course, the law written in 1906 does permit landowners or tenants to shoot or kill crows, copper hawks, sharp shinned hawks and great horned owls found destroying crops or poultry on their premises—but only if they obtain a special written permit from the Superintendent of Metropolitan Police to do so. (Police Superintendent is Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Municipal Building, 3d and Indiana ave. nw.)

Liable to $5 Fine

For any other kind of bird hunting in the District, the present law makes the individual liable to a $5 fine or six months in the workhouse or both for each bird killed and for each attempt to kill a bird.

In twin letters to House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) and to Senate District Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) the Commissioners yesterday declared, in part, that starlings have for some time been "a growing nuisance" in the District.

"No definite method of eliminating the starling nuisance has yet been determined the most practical, although experiments along this line have been and are being carried on.

"However, it is now apparent that if cleaner and more sanitary conditions are to prevail in the District, dispersion of starlings alone will not accomplish the objective, but authority for the decimation of the present large population of the bird is required."

Sidetracked Bill 2 Years Ago

Congress got the same bill two years ago and didn't pass it. Four other measures submitted by the Commissioners yesterday were similarly sidetracked in the last Congress. The bills:

1. Weeds. At present when a property owner has weeds growing more than 4 inches high, the Health Department can notify him to clean up. If he fails, he may become liable for a $10-a-day fine. If weeds grow on unoccupied land and the owner can't be found, the District has to advertise before moving in and cleaning out the weeds, and the charges for all this are assessed against the property.

The new bill cuts out all the business of notices and advertising. It declares weeds more than 4 inches high are a "nuisance injurious to health." It gives property owners the duty to keep their land free and clear, and sets a $25 fine for failure. It also would let the District move in where it had to and spray the weeds.

Estimated cost of keeping unoccupied land weed-free would be $10,000 a year. The Commissioners said the public should pay it because the public would benefit from control of ragweed and pollen, and anyway, the cost would be less than the cost of sending notices to property owners, and recording and collecting assessments.

2. Weapons. The Commissioners asked enactment of a bill which passed the Senate but not the House last year, to let police destroy weapons seized from persons who own or carry them unlawfully. Lawful owners of weapons picked up by police could get them back after a hearing. A person arrested while carrying a weapon unlawfully can now get the weapon back unless he has been convicted of a crime of violence or unless the district attorney orders the weapon held for evidence.

The Commissioners also asked for a law to have children committed to the Board of Public Welfare instead of directly to the Training School, at MacArthur Blvd. and Loughborough rd. nw Purpose is to let the board make increased use of the school for giving Negro girls industrial home school training.

Falls Church To Buy Yard For Storage

Falls Church City Council agreed last night that the city urgently needs a property yard in which to store equipment.

Action to purchase one of two sites offered to the city was deferred until Monday pending study of the cost of developing the sites.

One two-acre tract on W. Broad st., near the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad, was offered to the council by William Stempil for $25,000.

A three-acre tract near Gordons road and the railroad track has been offered to the city by Basil DeLashmutt, Arlington surveyor, for $75,000.

City Manager Roy F. Dunn said the city is storing its property "all over Falls Church," some of it where it's subject to theft.

The council appointed Judge J. Warren Madden to its board of zoning appeal. Madden, 300 E. Broad st., is a judge of the United States Court of Claims.

Man, 26, Is Held For Jury Action in Laurel Rape Case

A 26-year-old Deacontown, Md., man yesterday was held for action of the Prince Georges County grand jury after pleading guilty to assaulting with attempt to rape a Laurel, Md., woman last month.

Walter G. Tillghman, who has been held since January 29 without bond, was bound to the grand jury by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens of Hyattsville police court. The alleged offense occurred about 8:30 p. m. January 28, near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad station at Laurel, it was said.

The woman, a widowed 39-year-old mother of two, told police her assailant had fled after she screamed.

Board Backs Dr. Corning on Cardozo High

New Building Needed, Majority Says; Strayer Cost Figures Doubted

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The Board of Education yesterday differed with a major recommendation of the Strayer survey on District school building needs and criticized a section of the report dealing with costs.

A majority of board members, meeting as a committee to study the Strayer report, upheld the view of Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning that a new building is needed to replace the Negro Cardozo High School.

Dr. George D. Strayer, in his report to Congress, recommended that the present Cardozo building be closed and its students transferred to the proposed new Armstrong and Spingarn High Schools.

Fear Greater Cost

Board members expressed a fear that the 38-million-dollar building program recommended by Dr. Strayer may cost substantially more.

Dr. Corning said that improvements to the Bell Vocational High Building, Hiatt Place and Lamont st. nw., which Dr. Strayer estimated at a cost of $100,000 will cost $285,000.

Dr. Corning said that his figure is based on actual costs while Dr. Strayer's is a "rough estimate."

School officers who visited Dr. Strayer in an effort to justify the difference in costs were told by the survey director that the low estimate was made by "a man from California" who based the cost on the "shell type" schools built in California, Dr. Corning said.

Will Delay Construction

The committee, adopting a report submitted by Dr. Corning, declared that the transfer of Cardozo students to the two Negro high schools will delay the construction of the badly needed new buildings.

The Strayer report said that both Armstrong and Spingarn should be enlarged from 1200 to 2000 capacity buildings.

Authorization to construct larger buildings would have to be secured from Congress and new plans drawn, Dr. Corning said.

The school head criticized the Strayer proposal for centering Negro high school accommodations in the northeast section.

The new Armstrong High School is to be built in Brentwood Park near 6th st. and Florida ave. ne., and Spingarn at 24th st. and Benning rd. ne. The Board of Education proposes to build the new Cardozo south of the Banneker Recreation Center at Barry pl. and Georgia ave. nw.

Location of the high school which specializes in commercial training should be near downtown businesses to permit on-the-job training programs, Dr. Corning said.

Correction

Official opening ceremonies will be held at 4 p. m. today for the Washington World Affairs Center at 1712 H st. nw., with an exhibit of arts and crafts from European displaced persons camps on view.

The Washington Post incorrectly stated yesterday that the ceremonies would be held at 2:30 p. m. The group describes itself as a non-political and non-profit service center for information on international affairs.

Pneumonia Patient

Sick Baby's Leg Is Found To Be Broken

The condition of an 18-month-old baby, admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday night with pneumonia and a fractured leg, brought a two-pronged investigation by Montgomery County officials yesterday to determine how the child was injured.

The child, Billy W. Keith, jr., was brought to the hospital by its parents because of the pneumonia condition. The leg fracture was discovered in an ensuing examination, police said.

The parents, who live at 12114 Selfridge rd., Viers Mills Village, told police the injured leg had been examined earlier at Washington Sanitarium, but the fracture was not discovered. They could give no explanation as to how the leg was broken.

A routine police investigation, launched early yesterday on receipt of a report from the hospital, was followed by an announcement that the Montgomery County Juvenile Court also is investigating. Both police and a court spokesman said the investigations were continuing.

Dealer Fined For Beer Sale To Boy, 14

Conviction on a charge of selling beer to a minor cost the proprietor of a Mount Rainier liquor store $100 yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

The fine was slapped on Max Kay, 33, who with his wife, Miriam, owns Kaywood Liquor, 2205 Varnum st., Mount Rainier.

Kay was charged with selling three cans of beer to a 14-year-old boy on December 7.

Testimony before Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens brought out that the boy, accompanied by Detestive Earl J. Huber of Prince Georges County police, and County Parole Officer Roy Bright, purchased the beer with a marked dollar bill.

According to police, the boy had been questioned earlier with two other youngsters on suspicion of a bicycle theft. During the questioning, police said, one of the boys said he had bought beer at Kay's establishment some time earlier.

Landlady Asks Police to Seek Missing Clerk

Police yesterday were asked to look for Arthur Pickren, 28, Veterans' Administration clerk, who has been reported missing from 1535 New Hampshire ave. nw., since Saturday.

Police said his landlady, Mrs. Laura Polick, reported she last saw Pickren Saturday afternoon, and that she found a note in his room yesterday morning in which he said he no longer wanted to live. The note ended, "What's the use. Goodby," Mrs. Polick told police.

Pickren, who is an Army veteran, came here from Oklahoma City, Okla. He is described of thin build, with light hair, and was wearing a tan topcoat, dark hat and glasses when last seen.

Area News in Brief

Auto Crash Drives 20 From Building

About 20 persons were forced to leave an apartment building at 300 I st. nw., yesterday morning after an automobile collided with another car at the intersection of 3d and I sts., and swerved over the sidewalk into the building.

The car broke a large plate glass window in a beauty shop on the first floor and struck the north wall of the building next to the entrance.

Miss Zinnie Bell Perry, 20, of 3616 Rock Creek Church rd, nw., was alone in the beauty shop at the time, but neither she nor the drivers of the two cars involved were injured.

Police listed the driver of the car which went out of control as Joseph Daly, 76, of Fairhaven, Md. The other car, police said, was operated by James J. Mays, 39, of Lorton, Va.

Discovery of a 30-foot crack in the wall of the building resulted in the residents in the front of the building being asked to leave pending repairs. Repairs will be made immediately, according to a spokesman for Second Baptist Church, 816 3d st. nw., owner of the building.

Minor Traffic Snarl

The switch in Dupont Circle area traffic regulations which went into effect yesterday caused a minor snarl there during last night's rush hour.

Westbound traffic, accustomed to crossing Connecticut ave. on R st., had to move another block northward to S st., the new through lane. At S st., however, the homegoing traffic ran into the heavily used intersection of Florida, Connecticut aves., and 21st st. where a crew of five traffic policemen were required to keep the cars flowing.

Eye Specialist Named

Dr. J. Leon Helfgott has been appointed eye specialist for the public schools filling a post vacant for two years.

The Health Department said yesterday he will be on duty at the eye clinic, 16 D st. nw., on a part-time basis on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Dr. Helfgott will give eye examinations to children sent to the clinic by public-school teachers. Since the clinic is for diagnosis only, he will refer children needing special eye care to private opthalmologists. The eye specialist also will direct children with poor sight to the special sight-saving classes conducted at the Adams, Douglass-Simmons and Langley Schools.

A native of Baltimore, Dr. Helfgott attended the University of Maryland and was graduated from George Washington University medical school in 1942.

Fined as Drunken Driver

A 26-year-old Navy noncommissioned officer was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor in Bethesda Police Court yesterday, largely on the strength of his admission that he had consumed seven drinks of liquor prior to a minor traffic accident.

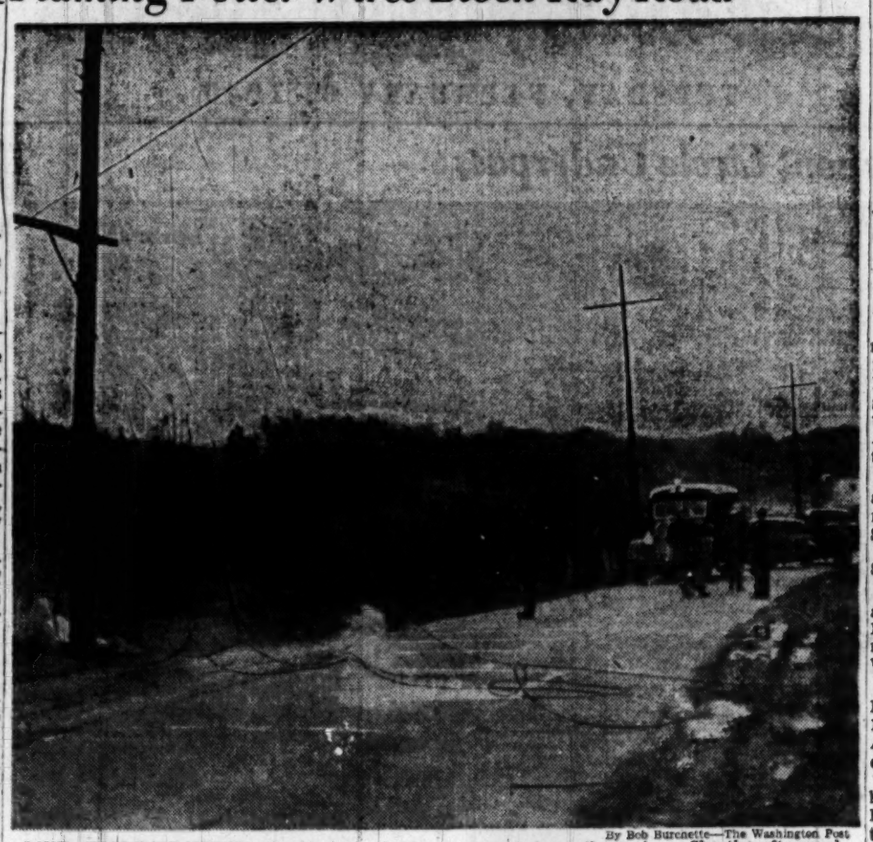
Chief Petty Officer Howard Price, attached to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, was fined $100 on the driving charge by Judge Warren Browning, who expressed surprise that "any defendant would admit to taking that many drinks in a drunken driving case." Judge Browning also found Price guilty of reckless driving but suspended imposition of sentence.

Held in Assault

Walter T. Briggs, 33, 309 S. Patrick st., Alexandria, was held for the grand jury yesterday in Alexandria Police Court, charged with attempted felonious assault with an ax.

Callie Lenard, 425 S. Columbus st., Alexandria, claimed Briggs threatened her with an ax Saturday afternoon during an argument. Briggs a cement finisher pleaded innocent, said he had picked up the ax to go out and split some wood. He was held under $500 bond.

Flaming Power Wires Block Ray Road



By Bob Burnette—The Washington Post

LINE SHORT-CIRCUITED—Sputtering wires keep firemen at a safe distance after a 4000-volt power line, crossing Ray rd. in Hampshire Knolls, was short-circuited late yesterday, burning out two other wires. Shortly afterward, Takoma Park firemen cut the wires from the pole and quelled a grass fire ignited 400 yards along the roadway

100 Million Maryland Bonus Proposed in Assembly Bill

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7.—The 100-million-dollar bonus for Maryland's World War II veterans was dropped into the lap of the General Assembly tonight.

A bill calling for payments ranging from $100 to $500 to each veteran, depending on length of service, was introduced by Senator Robert B. Kimble (R., Allegany County).

The estimated 100 million dollars in bonds required to finance the payments would be amortized principally by revenues from the State's 2 per cent retail sales tax, Kimble said.

The bill, the Senator told reporters, calls for at least 90 days' service. Payments would be made on the basis of $10 for each month of domestic service, and $15 for overseas duty.

Kimble has turned over to the Senate petitions bearing about 4500 signatures asking the bonus. Among them, Kimble said, is that of the only living Marylander who won the Congressional Medal of Honor, Paul J. Wiedorfer, Baltimore.

The measure is expected to meet stiff opposition from the State administration. Kimble declared the proposal is backed by all veterans' groups in the State except the American Veterans Committee.

"Frisking" Bill Attack

As the Assembly reconvened following a weekend recess, Senator Henry H. Balch (D., Talbot) renewed his objections to what he termed the "frisking" bill which has aroused his ire in the past.

Senators from Calvert, Frederick, St. Mary's, Talbot, and Allegany Counties who opposed the measure on constitutional grounds, however, succeeded in having their counties exempted.

The bill would, in effect, allow evidence of concealed gun-carrying to be admitted in court even though such evidence was obtained without a search warrant.

Senator Balch launched a filibuster against the bill in the waning moments of the November, 1947, special session, claiming the measure would be a violation of personal rights.

Short Circuit Darkens Md. Area for Hour

Homes in the Hampshire Knolls and Chillum Md., area were without electricity about an hour last night after boys in the 800 block of Ray rd., reportedly short-circuited a power line from the Takoma Park Power Station.

A Potomac Electric Power Co. troubleshooter said the company's service desk was told at 5:30 p. m. that a 4000-volt line crossing Ray rd. in Hampshire Knolls, had been short-circuited and burned out two other 2300-volt primary lines.

The short-circuited wire, flaming brightly, ignited grass for about 400 yards on either side of the road and halted traffic on Ray rd. about 45 minutes.

The Takoma Volunteer Fire Department put out the fire after a Pepco lineman cut the spitting wires from a pole. Pepco reported an emergency line was put up about 6:30 p. m.

Linemen said boys apparently started the short-circuits by throwing bailing wire on them.

Bulgarian Legation Blaze Put Out Fast

The fire department did its bit for international good will last night.

Ten pieces of apparatus responded to a call at the Bulgarian Legation, 2344 California st. nw., at 6:12 p. m. In 12 minutes, a fire that started in a second-floor bathroom had been extinguished. Damage was estimated at $5. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

State Wide 'Home Rule' Bill Being Prepared in Maryland

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7.—A State-wide "home rule" bill for Maryland counties was being prepared here today for introduction in the State's General Assembly.

Sponsored by Senator Edward D. Storm (D., Frederick), the bill is aimed at enabling counties to obtain home rule without having to undergo the "complicated" procedure of adopting a charter under the State Constitution.

Montgomery County last fall, after a 6-year controversy, became the first Maryland county to adopt home rule as authorized by the Constitution.

Storm said he favors the legislation because the State Legislature at present is loaded down with local legislation which, he said, hampers "efficient consideration of State-wide matters."

Under the terms of the bill being prepared, county commissioners throughout the State could enact any law not in conflict with general or local public laws already passed by the Legislature.

Authority would be granted, he said, to issue bonds up to 7 per cent of the county's assessable base, provided that bonds issued in any one year do not exceed one fourth of 1 per cent of the tax base without a referendum.

County commissioners, he said, could spend funds for any purpose deemed necessary for the public health, safety and welfare of local residents, set up pension and retirement systems, establish county libraries, establish a merit system and make street and road improvements.

Maryland Tobacco Taste In Cigarettes Stressed

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Maryland Tobacco Authority wants to let the world know that Free State leaf tastes good in a cigarette.

The Authority today urged the General Assembly to give it more money to publicize the tobacco and the University of Maryland more to help improve it.

The requests were made in the first report of the eight-month-old agency. E. A. Miller of Calvert County is chairman of the seven-member commission which was authorized last June after being created by the special 1947 Legislature.

B. S. Killmaster Dies; Retired Navy Captain

Capt. Benjamin Stacy Killmaster, USN (retired), representative for the Secretary of the Navy at Selective Service headquarters here during World War II, died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Medical Center. He was 55.

Captain Killmaster was born in Killmaster, Mich., and was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1914.

Capt. Killmaster

During World War I he served as commanding officer of submarines, USS O-5, USS I-11 and USS S-8.

He retired from his Selective Service post in 1947.

Captain Kilmaster had been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and an Army Letter of Commendation for his work during World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Killmaster, who lives at 1230 South Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington, Va. They had no children.

Funeral services will be held at his home at 11 a. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Roughing Up Case Dropped By Cameraman

No disciplinary action will be taken against a Second Precinct patrolman who was accused Sunday of roughing up a photographer for Ebony magazine and ruining a roll of exposed film.

After a conference yesterday morning with Second Precinct Capt. Clyde M. Strange, Joe Covello, 27, a photographer employed by the Black Star Publishing Co. of New York and assigned to do a piece for Ebony magazine, withdrew the complaint against Private Lewis R. Screen.

The incident allegedly took place Sunday afternoon at 7th and P nw., where Covell and Allan Morrison, 32, an associate editor of Ebony, were gathering material for a piece on "Washington's Negro Community and How It Lives."

Covello had planned a street scene shot with Private Screen in it when the policeman grabbed him, Covello said. After a short scuffle, Covello offered the film which Screen unrolled and threw away.

Although Covello claimed that he had not been asked for credentials nor for what reason he had been taking pictures before the roll was inspected, Captain Strange said yesterday that Screen thought Covello might have been a commercial photographer and that it was against the law to take commercial street pictures without a license.

Covello and Morrison withdrew the charges because they said they understood that Private Screen had a good record and because Captain Strange had satisfied them about their right to take street pictures.

Mrs. Maggie M. Leigh

Mrs. Maggie M. Leigh, 84, widow of Dr. Alfred M. Leigh, for many years one of Fairfax County's outstanding physicians, died at her home in Colvin Run, Va., early yesterday morning.

The former Maggie Oliver, she had lived most of her life in Virginia.

Mrs. Leigh is survived by a sister, Mrs. Victoria Cornwell; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Alfred Williams; two sons, Lewis Cass Leigh of Chevy Chase, Md., and Hassell B. Leigh; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m., Wednesday at Andrew Chapel on the Leesburg Highway. Burial will be in the family plot adjoining the chapel.

Mrs. Moore, 83, Succumbs In Home Here

Mrs. Imogene S. Moore, 83, wife of William H. Moore, retired attorney for the Veterans' Administration, and an active member of several church and charitable groups here, died Sunday of pneumonia at her home, 1315 13th st. nw.

A native of Culpeper, Va., Mrs. Moore resided in Greater Washington most of her life, having come to Hyattsville, Md., in 1890 after her marriage to Truman C. Evarts of Burlingtoh, Vt. Following his death, she married Mr. Moore in November, 1908.

Mrs. Moore was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church and was active in the Sunday School there. A life member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, she was also a member of the board of lady managers of the Baptist Home for Elderly Ladies and of the St. John Chapter, Order of Eastern Star. She was formerly active on the board of managers of the Bruen Home for Children.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., with Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Truman C. Evarts, jr., of Ridgewood, N. J., and a granddaughter, Mrs. Ray W. Fillbach of Schenectady, N. Y.

Gen. Richard Donovan Dies At Convention

San Francisco, Feb. 7 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan, U.S.A., (retired) of Dallas, Tex., died of a heart attack today in his room at the Fairmont Hotel. He was 63.

General Donovan was attending the convention of the American Warehousemen's Association. After his retirement in 1947, he joined the Alford Refrigerated Warehouses at Dallas as vice president and director of research. He was a native of Paducah, Ky., and a graduate of the United States Military Academy in 1908.

He was promoted to major general in April, 1941. During World War II he served as commanding general of the Eighth Service Command with headquarters at Dallas.

Survivors include his wife, Marguerite, who was here with him; a son, Richard, jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas J. Sharpe, both of Dallas.

The body will be sent to San Antonio for burial in the National Cemetery.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Anne Lawler called this morning about next week's church supper. She wanted each of us on the committee to call a list of people so we'll know how many to expect.

After I'd finished the breakfast dishes, I sat down at the telephone and started calling one person right after another. I was down to the fourth name on my list before I stopped to think of the other folks on my party line. Here I'd tied up the line for fifteen minutes without a break. Supposing someone else on the line wanted to make a call!

Needless to say, I ended my "calling marathon" right then and there. I'll make the rest of those calls later on in the day, one by one and spaced several minutes apart.

At Social Legislation Conference

Tobin, Keyserling Tell Administration Aims for Raising Economic Levels

By Genevieve Reynolds

LEON H. KEYSERLING, vice chairman, President's Council of Economic Advisers, last night estimated that another depression would cost this country eight hundred billion dollars. He issued his warning in a speech before some 600 delegates attending the second national Conference on Unfinished Business in Social Legislation, held in the Interdepartmental Auditorium.

The speaker said that one-tenth of this amount would be enough to clear all slums; another fraction of a depression cost would be sufficient to finance adequate medical care, and another minor fraction would be adequate to assure complete social security coverage for all groups.

"If on the other hand we can maintain full employment and full prosperity, we can avoid a recession or depression," he explained. "And by keeping full employment and prosperity and increasing the national income we can have an additional 8 to 12 billion national income," adding this "would be enough to do a great deal of good."

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin predicted, before an afternoon session of the conference, that the Eighty-First Congress would enact legislation franting a 75-cent minimum wage to industrial workers.

The conference is being sponsored by some 13 national organizations including the Young Women's Christian Association, National Council of Jewish Women, American Association of Social Workers, National Council of Negro Women and the Consumers League.

He told the audience that the 75 cents wage minimum proposed in the President's program now has the purchasing power of about 38 or 40 cents. Inflation was the reason he gave for the low value.

Controversial provision of the proposed bill, he said, hinged around the right of raising the 75-cent minimum to $1 or reducing the minimum wage scale if it becomes too burdensome to the employer. Under the Administration's bill, he pointed out, reduction would take place on recommendation from the Labor Department. "Such a law would protect the country against future depressions," declared Secretary Tobin.

Moral Issue

"Economy in the United States now is a moral issue," Keyserling told the conference. "It now is a problem of distributing what we have to raise the standard of people not only in this country but in other sections of the world."

He said that in countries decimated by war, handicapped by lack of industrial development, and in others retarded by state controlled systems, the economic issue is not entirely a moral one." In state controlled countries progress cannot be made because of the denial of individual initiative," he said.

Immoral Prosperity

"Inflation is nothing but immoral prosperity," said the economist. But despite the high prices and some inflation, we are much better off than we were before the war—our output is up, we're eating better than ever before. Housing is the one exception."

He went on to explain that while a consumer might not be able to buy as much now with his pay check, he is better off with a pay check than being unemployed.

Keyserling said that the consequences of inflation, however, are double fold, viz., it fails to provide comforts and a decent standard of living for all segments of the population, and threatens maintenance of prosperity."

For Selective Control

The speaker said that he still thinks "selective price control" is needed . . . that it would be far preferable to "general price control" which would become necessary in event of another depression.

Contending that he believed our economy needs some planning and managing, Keyserling declared, "I wouldn't be for a complete planned economy even if it were more efficient than the type we have. I'd prefer freedom to efficient planning."

Tigh E. Woods, housing expediter, speaking at the afternoon session, revealed that he had recommended a two-year extension of rent control "because the acute housing shortage would not be alleviated in less time."

In his address before the conference delegates and earlier in testimony before the House Banking and Currency Committee, Woods said that his department had requested Congress to establish rent controls in areas where none now exist. He gave his reason "plans of the armed services."

The housing expediter said that a survey of military establishments definitely established that 55 per cent of tenants paying over ceiling prices refused to file a complaint and that 60 per cent of these gave "fear of eviction as the reason."

Asserting that there is a "growing very nasty black market" in over-ceiling rents, he said that surveys showed that over-charges in some instances were 34 per cent above the legal rent.

Woods maintained that black markets in rents cannot be combated without eviction control, hence his office had requested this power.

"While the present acts permit tenants to bring suits for overcharges and to defend themselves in local courts against illegal evictions," he explained, "these provisions have proven totally inadequate to secure reasonable compliance with the law. It is evident that tenants are paying overcharges without resort to court actions because of fear of eviction."

Woods pointed out that in asking that the housing expediter be given authority to regulate evictions, "I am in no way reflecting on the integrity of the local courts. Under any regulation issued by me the final responsibility will be with the local courts."

No protection will be given to undesirable tenants refusing to pay their rent but there will be an opportunity to evaluate the landlord's motives for evictions, he said.

Defends Health Program

Social Security Commissioner Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Federal Security Agency yesterday defended the President's program to extend Social Security coverage and benefits, national health insurance and Federal aid to education.

He denied that the President's health program would bring about socialized medicine. "The Administration's program would be a unified, comprehensive, Government insurance—not socialized medicine," he said.

"Thirty countries have adopted national health insurance systems and none have abandoned them," he continued. "Only one country—Soviet Russia—has socialized or state-controlled medicine."

Miss Helen Hall, president, National Association of Consumers and conference chairman, presided. Mrs. Oris G. Robinson, advisory committee, women's division of the Methodist Church, introduced Secretary of Labor Tobin. Mrs. B. Birdsall Calkins, president, national board Young Women's Christian Associations of America, and Mrs. Joseph M. Welt, president, National Council of Jewish Women, took turns presiding during question-answer periods following the speaker's talks. Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, one of the scheduled speakers on housing and rent control, was unable to keep the appointment due to Senate hearings.

First Lady Accepts First Copy Of Bess Furman's New Book

AT A PUBLICATION DAY TEA at the Arts Club yesterday, Mrs. Truman was presented with a copy of "Washington By-Line" by the author, Bess Furman. Miss Furman, who, in private life is Mrs. Robert Armstrong, jr., received over 200 at the tea. She was introduced to guests by the president of the club, Robert LeFevre.

On the arrival of Mrs. Truman at the tea, it was announced by Mr. LeFevre that a copy would be presented to the First Lady by Miss Furman. "With a bit of low-down doggeral," added the author. Then she read aloud:

"First copy to
First Lady who Helped win the last election.
East to West her vim and zest
Won Nation-wide affection."

Mrs. Truman smilingly accepted the book and seemed to enjoy the hub-bub which arose as cameras clicked and flash bulbs popped. The First Lady was smartly dressed for spring weather in trim grey suit with small navy blue hat and fur piece. Later, she went into the dining room where a cup of coffee was poured for her by Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

Before Mrs. Truman could take a sip, she was surrounded. From then on, popular Mrs. Truman was busy shaking hands with acquaintances and friends, and she seemed to have a cordial word with each and every one.

Meanwhile, Miss Furman continued to greet a large number of colleagues who came from the Women's National Press Club, the Arts Club, and the New York Times staff and Associated Press. Her husband, Mr. Armstrong, who is on the staff of St. Louis Globe-Democrat, stood near-by with their twin children, Robert Furman Armstrong and Ruth Eleanor Armstrong. Special guests of the twins were their good friends, the McCloskey triplets, children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCloskey.

While Mrs. Gann poured coffee, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, dressed in navy blue, poured tea. Refreshments included cakes and rum balls and small assorted sandwiches, Mrs. Seymour Jeselsohn was in charge of arrangements for the party, assisted by James Hartshorne and James Window.

Among the many guests were Mrs. Nelson Houff, Mme. Dias, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Anna Lord Strauss, Mrs. Harold H. Burton, and Harold Strauss, editor-in-chief of the Alfred Knopf firm, Miss Furman's publishers.

Colby College Alumni Feted At Reception

Alumni and friends of Colby College were guest yesterday of Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Dr. Don S. Knowlton, Washington physician, at a reception at the Army Navy Club. The reception was held on the occasion of the official opening of the college's Mayflower Hill Development Campaign, and was high-lighted by a talk by Dr. Julius Sellye Bixler, president of Colby College.

President Bixler spoke mainly about the role of liberal arts colleges and the importance maintaining them. "This country is going to lose the heart of its heritage," he said "if it loses the small New England college."

Senator Smith, who is an honorary graduate of Colby, spoke briefly on the importance of New England college life.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Who Describes Herself as That Most Horrible Creature, a Jealous Wife, Asks How to Adjust to Husband's Philandering

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am that most horrible of creatures, a jealous wife. My common sense tells me that I am lucky to have a comfortable home, three children who love and respect me, an adequate social and church life and several good friends.

But my emotions tell me that my husband is having an affair with his lovely blonde secretary, that my heart is broken and my ego crumbling. It was a real blow to discover that he had removed my picture from his office desk and tucked it away. I had it made for him while he was overseas.

I know my cue is to be calm, serene and gentle. If I could do that, with the drawing power of our children I can keep my husband, and I do want to keep him. But I am becoming bitter and shrewish, my facial expression is changing, and I have done some bad things.

Husband Rages at Her Spying

I WATCHED outside his office building for three afternoons, after a friend had dropped a hint. Ken and his secretary lingered on in his office for about an hour after all others had left. I told him about that and pointed to lipstick on his shirt collar. He was utterly furious, said he wouldn't be spied on, and has forbidden my coming to his office again or calling him by telephone.

Despite all this I love him. I loved him the first day I saw him and shall love him 'til I die. I want to keep him. I want to take care of him when he is sick, soothe him when he is weary, cook his favorite dishes, tell him the cute things our young son says, hold his hand while we are laughing over the antics of our darling baby granddaughter in the "home movies" her daddy makes. I thrill to my husband's caresses as much as when we were young.

I can't make him discharge the girl. There will be others, I know, before he gets too old, and I can't keep them all away from him. I must adjust myself to the most hateful role any wife can experience, in the hope of having the leavings when the others are through. Can you tell me how to do this; or recommend a helpfull book? V. N.

Woman's Being Unfair to Self

DEAR V. N.: In describing yourself as that most horrible of creatures, a jealous wife, methinks you damn yourself too much. Ugly jealousy is that which imagines treachery where none exists; and it seems that Ken is defiantly guilty of philandering with his secretary; also, that such behavior is routine with him—to judge by your mournful remark that there will be other girls in future, and you can't keep them all away from him.

You can't help feeling heartsore, perhaps; but there is no cause for your ego to crumble. It is Ken, not you, who is proved shoddy in this situation; and his so-called lovely blonde is a brash simpleton with no more soul quality than a green apple, in her present phase,—as witness the fact that propinquity is the prime factor fueling their intrigue.

Your love of Ken is real, mature; tested and true; steadfast and inextinguishable. It issues from the soul sufficient to give him wondrous content if he himself would love reciprocally; but he holds back from this ultimate sharing.

Remove Husband From a Pedestal

INVARIABLY the adult-age person who pursues "satisfaction" in the form of varietist dalliance is one who, not willing to experience the self-surrender of love, dabbles in erotic thrills with almost-strangers, in quest of perennial evidence (persuasive to his surface mind) that he's better suited for love than most. Yet fundamentally the opposite is true. On the score of treasure to give, emotionally, his personality is a locked (or empty) cupboard.

To put up with Ken in some degree of comfort, you must take him off a pedestal in your imagination, and recognize that he is childish, and needs your devotion as sanctuary,—something he knows, too, unconsciously; and would feel more keenly if you realized your strength in relation to him, and weren't so anxious and clinging.

Lastly, it should help to know that always, at best, you'll be lonely and hungered, somewhat, in wifehood to Ken. Much of the heartache you feel in this crisis is residual,—that is, cumulative; accrued in long-time marriage to him, due to his poor-provider showing in love. And now, for an inspirational book, I recommend "Make Your Life Worthwhile," by Emmet Fox (Harper & Brothers, publishers). M. H.

Swing Into Streamliners

By Ida Jean Kain

Hips are streamlined when they measure not more than 10 inches over the waistline . . . taking for granted the waist is elegantly slender.

To get the bustle of muscles—the gluteus maximus which spreads across the back of the hips, the gluteus medium which flanks the sides of the hips, and the gluteus minimus bulging beneath, swing to a right angle.

Movement: Swing right leg forward to right angles with the body, touching toe to floor. Then swing leg as far backward as possible. Keep swinging vigorously, backward and forward for 12 counts. Change sides and repeat with other leg.

For double streamlining action . . .

Position: Same as in preceding exercise, lying on side.

Movement: Swing right leg forward, bending knee and contracting abdominal muscles. Then swing the leg backward, straightening the knee. Hold leg in that position for a second . . . now swing forward again, bending knee. Repeat with left leg, 6 to 10 counts with each leg. Keeping girdle muscles firmly contracted as knee is bent toward chest, makes this a middle-muscle toner, too.

Saris Steal Fashion Spotlight

Dimitri Wolkonsky

THE graceful charm of the sari is demonstrated by these two young Indian women who modeled in yesterday's fashion show at the Statler. Miss. Kamala Gogate, left, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Gogate, wears a black Benares sari, the border embroidered in gold and red metallic threads Mrs. Pamila Wagle, daughter of the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, wears a white ensemble with choli, or bodice of satin, embroidered with silk threads and circles of colored glass. Her sari, of silk chiffon, has a wide border of intricate design. Both wear antique jewelry of India

Wives of Diplomats Model Charming Old World Costumes

By Peggy Preston

SOMETHING ANCIENT in fashion—the sari of India—took the spotlight away from modern modes at yesterday's weekly "Fashion Fair" at the Statler Hotel.

The story of the exquisite native costume of the Indian woman was unfolded to the audience by Lady Rama Rau, wife of the Ambassador of India. Wearing a sari of midnight blue and silver, she served as commentator for that part of the program which was devoted to fashions of her homeland. Her models were wives and daughters of members of the embassy staff, including her own beautiful daughter, Mrs. Premila Wagle.

Moving with a grace and poise that few American women achieve without intensive training, the amateur mannequins of India paced the runway in their trailing, filmy robes. Made of the sheerest of pure silk chiffons and georgettes, the saris are tinted in every imaginable hue and bordered in sparkling designs of metallic threads. When seen against the brilliant, dark beauty of the Indian women they have a charm that tends to make western clothes seem dull and drab.

The Indian costume consists of three parts, according to Lady Rama Rau. There is the silk underskirt and a separate choli, or bodice. Over this the sari, 6 yards in length, is draped and folded to form a variety of effects. The women of north India use one end to form a drape covering the head; in southern India the same section is allowed to flow down over one shoulder.

But the sari, fashion of the old world that it is, has a place in the new world as well. This was demonstrated when Mrs. Wagle draped a richly embroidered sari over a modern black evening dress. She showed how it may be worn in several different ways, each lending new beauty to a basic western dress.

This will come as good news to lucky Washington women whose husbands brought them saris from India during the war years. No doubt the beautiful lengths of cloth have remained packed in tissue paper, while their owners wondered what to do with them. But hey need wonder no longer. Just unwrap it and experiment a bit. You'll be amazed at what it will accomplish.

The Embassy Room was filled with luncheon guests for the event. Among those seated at the celebrity table were Mrs. Clinton Anderson and Mrs. James P. Kem, wives of the Senators from New Mexico and Missouri respectively.

Also in the audience were Mrs. Charles Brannan, Senora de Dillon, wife of the Ecuadorian Ambassador; Senora Ala, wife of the Iranian Ambassador; Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Tom Clark, and Mrs. Robert Taft.

Shorter Skirts, Softer Lines Shown in Paris

The average woman's wardrobe apparently won't be upset this year by the newest designs coming out of the Paris fashion houses.

Press dispatches from the "Queen City of Fashion" reveal that no radical changes in the silhouette have turned up so far at the highly touted Paris openings. Begun last week, the shows will continue for the next fortnight, with most of the important designers showing during the first 10 days.

Openings viewed by the press and buyers so far include those of Balmain, Schiaparelli, Molyneux, Jacques Heim, Raphael, Desses, Balanciaga and Paquin.

In almost every instance a trend to shorter skirts has been noted, the recommended hemline being 14 to 13 inches from the floor for daytime wear. Both Balanciaga and Paquin showed suits and day dresses at 15 inches.

For the most part the bulky ballet skirts, tight waists and flat-heeled shoes have disappeared. Reporters claim that suppleness and femininity set the keynote in the showings, with round shoulders and slimmer skirts being the rule.

An eighteenth century influence is apparent in many of the collections. Outstanding exponent of this is Balmain, youngest and one of the most prominent of the French designers. He is making afternoon and evening dresses with skirt fullness heavily massed at each side giving a puffed look to the hips.

Another Balmain innovation, according to the Associated Press:

"He introduced a new way of acquiring the super-narrow look without making the wearer take mincing steps. A perfecting straight skirt, slit to the thigh at the back is set over another straight skirt, slit to the thigh in front.

Society to Hear Miss Tallon

Miss Ninon Tallon, who translated "The Mad Woman of Chaillot" from the French and helped bring about its Broadway production, will be one of the two speakers on this afternoon's program of the Washington Chapter of the National Society of Arts and Letters.

The other speaker, Miss Mary Gould Davis, is juvenile editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, and is an authority on folklore. Miss Tallon will discuss the current theater; Miss Davis will speak on the subject of children's literature.

The meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. Andre Visson, will begin with a short business session at 2 p. m. which will include a report from Mrs. W. Ridgley Chapline who heads the committee devising new scholarship awards to be given this spring in addition to the usual music and art awards.

Mrs. Joseph Horgan, president, will preside.

The program has been arranged by Mrs. William Waller Edwards. Tea will be served following the discussions.

Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae To Hear Talk on Logopedics

A talk illustrated with colored slides on the work of the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kans., will be given tonight at 8 before the combined sections of the Washington Alumnae of Kappa Alpha Theta.

The institute, a nonprofit organization for the study and treatment of speech disorders, is a national project of the Kappa Alpha Thetas.

Mrs. Edward T. Cook and Mrs. Paul E. Shorb will show the slides and give the descriptive talk.

MRS. JOSEPH FARRINGTON, president of the District of Columbia League of Republican Women, (left) greets Representative Carroll D. Kearns, who spoke at the league yesterday. Representative Kearns discussed Federal Aid to Education at the luncheon meeting held in the Mayflower Hotel

But Fears Federal Education Control

Kearns Proposes $500 Raise For Teachers From U. S. Funds

A proposal to give a flat $500 a year pay increase to teachers out of Federal funds will be put into the House hopper later this week by Representative Carroll D. Kearns. The Congressman said that he would propose this system of aid to help avoid the danger of Federal control over education which he sees latent in present Federal aid to education proposals now before Congress.

Speaking before the District of Columbia League of Republican Women at a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower yesterday, Representative Kearns said that under his bill, the money would be paid directly by the Secretary of the Treasury to all classroom teachers declared eligible by local schools superintendents.

This would eliminate the United States Commissioner of Education from any part in the Federal aid program, and thereby avoid the danger of any control by that department over schools which Kearns believes might develop under the other systems.

The Right People

Kearns also predicted that under proposed Federal aid to education bills, "the 300 to 400 million dollars now estimated for yearly aid will grow into a billion and a half dollars per year expenditure inside of three years if we start in."

Commenting on the dangers of Federal control, Kearns said the bills now in Congress "have no stigma of control about them the way they are written" but that other interpretations could be read into them.

Emphasizing that the teachers are the important part of the education system, Kearns said that the idea of using a third of the federal aid money for teachers, a third for plant improvement and equipment, and a third for paying off debts, as is proposed in bills now before Congress, did not seem satisfactory to him. "I don't know where the teacher comes in on that," he said.

One of the big problems in the Federal aid plan as it is now being considered in Congress, Kearns claims, is that teachers may be dissatisfied. The high-revenue producing States will not receive as much back as they give—Pennsylvania, for example, would give about 32 million and receive only eight million—and consequently will not be able to do as much for their own teachers as they otherwise might, he claimed.

"They will just have to be good Christians and sacrifice so that children in the South may get a good education," he said, pointing out that "the child is the greatest vehicle for interstate traffic there is.

"A child raised in a State with poor educational facilities may become a leader in Washington," Kearns reminded his audience.

"There's not one community that couldn't have better schools if it wanted them, without coming to Washington for money," Representative Kearns stated, "but communities have deserted their obligations."

In Farrell, Pa., where Congressman Kearns was superintendent of schools during the war, "we were lucky if one person bothered to look at the budget for schools during the three weeks it was available for inspection every year," he said, by way of illustration.

Returning to the problem of Federal control of education, Representative Kearns said he had to admit that the Federal Government did not interfere with the way he spent a Federal grant of $20,000 for training of women war-workers or for the machine work his school did for the Federal Government during the war. Nor did the Government interfere with the way money was spent for the school lunch program.

Dangers of Control

"If we could be sure the right people would handle it in the Government it would be all right," he said. "But we have to worry if the right people aren't handling it."

If Federal control leads to men teaching an "ill-advised philosophy such as communism to the adolescent minds which reach out and accept all information, it would be the greatest disaster we could ever experience," Kearns declared.

Mrs. Nelson to Talk On Chinese Coins

"Chinese Coins Through Thirty-Five Centuries" will be discussed by Mrs. Nels H. Nelson at the dinner meeting tonight of the Washington alumnae chapter of Gamma Phi Beta. The meeting will be held at 6:30 p. m. at the Fairfax Hotel.

Mrs. Nelson gathered one of the largest collections of valuable old coins in the world during the many years she spent in China when her husband, a colonel in the Marine Corps, was stationed there. She will bring some coins—a few of which date back more than 40 centuries—to the meeting.

Ask Anne About Removing Spots From Rug

Moisten the spots with water and work corn meal or corn starch into the rug to absorb the ink as it is dissolved so that it will not spread further over the rug. When the meal or starch has absorbed as much ink as possible, remove with a vacuum sweeper and repeat as long as the meal or starch becomes stained. When no more ink can be removed this way, pour glycerine or liquid shampoo onto the stain, work it into a lather and remove it as it becomes discolored. Continue this until no more ink can be removed. If this has not lightened the spot so it doesn't show, it will be necessary to use a bleach. Be sure to test the effect of the bleach on the color of the rug on an underside area before applying it to the stain.

Is there a Washington furniture store that will take the furniture one has in part payment for the new furniture purchased? There is such a store, and a fine one, in St. Louis, Mo. G. W.

I have not been able to find a store in Washington which makes a specialty of this kind of business. Some of the furniture stores which sell used as well as new furniture will buy the used pieces which have resale value and, of course, this could be used toward new furniture at that or any other store.

The finish on the top of the buffet of my limed oak dinette set is completely worn off in spots. Is it possible to refinish this at home? P. R.

If your limed oak finish is the kind where white paint is brushed onto the raw wood and then wiped off almost immediately, leaving only the pores filled with paint, then you can probably restore it by repeating the above method. Before you brush on the paint, sand the entire top so that the paint will penetrate more readily. After a few days for thorough drying of the paint, sand smooth and wax the surface with a paste wax.

Perhaps your reader who recently inquired about a list of summer camps would be interested in the section on camps to be found in Porter Sargent's "A Handbook of Private Schools." J. B.

This is the "original' German sweet chocolate recipe requested by R. L. in the Ask Anne column of January 31. It is ultra-delicious and no longer appears on the wrapper of the chocolate package.

Chocolate Ice Box Cake

Melt 1 cake (¼ pound) German sweet chocolate in double boiler. Add 2½ tablespoons water. Blend. Remove from fire. Add 1 egg yolk, beating until blended. Add 1 tablespoon confectioner's sugar and ¼ cup chopped walnut meats. (The latter is optional). Blend. Fold in 1 stiffly beaten egg white and ½ cup whipped cream. Line pan with halves of lady fingers. Pour in mixture and cover with lady finger halves. (Use 9 to 12 lady fingers). Chill in refrigerator for 12 to 24 hours. Unmold. Serve with additional ½ cup cream whipped. Serves six large portions. (Sponge cake slices may be substituted for lady fingers). H. M. B., G. F. and E. H. S.

This February we will celebrate our twenty-fifth anniversary. I would like to know if serving a buffet supper at 7 o'clock and playing cards afterward is in order? If you can suggest any other entertainment which would be in order, let me know. Is silver the only gifts that are to be given? If not, what can be given? W. O. B.

If the number of guests is small enough for you to entertain them at supper followed by cards, that would be a good way to celebrate the anniversary. Frequently, an anniversary party takes the form of a reception or "at home" because the guests to be invited are too numerous to be entertained in any other way. At a reception, no entertainment is provided with the exception of background music or an appropriate musical selection by a talented friend or relative.

Silver gifts are the most usual type for this anniversary, but gifts for the home are equally proper and appropriate. Sometimes several close friends or relatives get together and give a sum of money. In this way, the honored couple can buy a truly handsome remembrance of the occasion. Here is a different way to present a money gift: When the sum of money has been collected, the close relative or friend arranging the gift takes the sum to the bank and changes it for crisp new dollar bills. The bills are then made into perky bows by tying around the center of each with a string. These bows are then tied to the branches of a small tree which has been silvered and placed in a silver pot. The money-tree makes a most attractive gift. The gift should be accompanied with a card bearing the names of all of the participants in the gift.

Regarding R. V.'s letter in your column about a fat-free salad dressing, if she or her mother cares to make a salad dressing, they might find the following useful (unless eggs are prohibited on her diet):

Fat-Free Salad Dressing

½ cup pineapple juice (or ¼ cup each pineapple and orange juice)
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs

BEAT EGGS slightly. Add juices and sugar. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. This recipe makes 1 cup. (The amount of lemon juice and sugar may be varied to suit the taste.) This is excellent on fruit salads.

For vegetable salads, she could use any good recipe for boiled dressing and omit the butter or oil. Or she might like either of the following, though she might have to reduce amounts of spices or omit them:

Condensed Milk Mayonnaise

¼ cup vinegar or lemon juice
1 egg yolk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
1 teaspoon dry mustard

PLACE ingredients in jar, cover tightly and shake vigorously two minutes. Or place in mixing bowl and beat with rotary beater. If thicker consistency is desired, chill before serving.

Cottage Cheese Salad Dressing

2/3 cups sweetened condensed milk
½ cup vinegar (or lemon juice)
½ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
½ cup cottage cheese

MIX MILK, vinegar, or lemon juice, salt, mustard, and paprika thoroughly. Force cream cheese through sieve. Add to mixture, beating until smooth. If thicker consistency is desired, chill before serving. Good on fruit salads or salad greens.

PETUNIA!

Papering the bedroom

HOW DR. EDWARDS' HELPED ME LICK CONSTIPATION the clogging, TRANSIENT kind!

"Whenever undigested food clogs my intestines and causes constipation with its bad breath, lack of pep, sallow skin—I rely on Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They always work so gently yet thoroughly giving such complete, more natural-like bowel movements!"

For years, Dr. F. M. Edwards, a noted Ohio Doctor, successfully relieved his constipated patients with his famous Olive Tablets—now sold by druggists. Olive Tablets are a strictly all vegetable formula. They act on BOTH upper and lower bowels and clean waste from entire intestinal tract. Follow directions. 15¢, 30¢

Outdoor Brass

Brass that is exposed to the elements is always hard to keep shining and bright. It will stay bright longer if rubbed with paraffin after cleaning then polished with a clean cloth.

Marble Steps

Mix a quantity of quicklime with a half pint of skim-milk and use this as a whitener for the marble doorstep after it has been scrubbed. It will keep it in beautiful condition.

Homemaking Hints

Wash silk handkerchiefs in tepid water containing borax. Use little or no soap. Wrap in a towel and iron when properly dampened.

Wash the little girl's beret in lukewarm sudsy water, rinsing carefully in the same temperature water. Dry over a china plate the same size the beret was originally.

This New Coffee Flavor Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Dears... it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

A steaming, fragrant cup of this heavenly new Chase & Sanborn Coffee will bring out the "angel" in any man! "What's in it?" people ask!

The answer is Selecciones (pronounced seleck-see-o-nays). That's the Spanish for selected... some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body... others selected mainly for perfecting flavor. Yes, the flavor coffees in this mouth-watering new blend are hand-selected 1,—2,—three times!

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
3. Hand-selected before and after curing.

No wonder it's so delicious. Try it! If you don't think it's the best coffee you ever tasted, just send us the unused portion and we'll give you double your money back. Get your pound today! (It's vacuum-packed, of course.) And long live your houseful of early morning angels!

Important Notice to All Transit Riders

Few other cities enjoy transfer privileges as liberal as your Nation's Capital. It is important to everyone that the regulations concerning transfers be understood and complied with. The proper use of these privileges will speed your ride and enable us to serve more people faster and better.

To avoid confusion, we urge you to read carefully the following Public Utilities Commission regulations:

With respect to the issuance of free transfers... within the District of Columbia it is hereinafter ordered that such transfers shall be limited... by the following factors:

First, the period of time in which they may be used.

Second, that they may not be used for a return trip.

Third, that they must be presented at transfer points.

With the use of such a transfer arrangement within the District of Columbia... it will be possible for patrons... to select, without additional cost, a more direct route between their homes or places of business and various parts of the District of Columbia.

Free Transfers: Transfers will be issued for a continuation of a ride, in accordance with the following regulations:

The transfer will be issued only upon request made when the initial fare is paid.

The transfer will be good for continuation of ride, but will not be good for return passage, either on the line on which it was issued or on an adjacent parallel line.

The time limit established on each transfer issued will be not less than 1 hour, nor more than 1 hour and 30 minutes, from the time the transfer is issued. The transfer will not be accepted as fare if presented after the time limit shown thereon has expired.

Transfers will be good for passage only if presented at an established transfer point, or within one stop on either side thereof. The nearest stop to the point of intersection or divergence of two lines, or point of turn-back of any line, constitutes a transfer point. Transfers will also be good for passage at established walking transfer points. If, in order to continue a ride to destination, a passenger desires or is required to change vehicles more than once, the additional transfer privilege will be given him on request at the time transfer is presented for payment of fare. This will be accomplished by the passenger presenting the transfer to the... operator of the intermediate line who will... return it to the passenger for further use.

Stuttering

Does your child stutter? One of our twins did for a short time. And many a youngster does. But why? Is there something wrong with the formation of their mouths?

In most cases there is nothing wrong physically. Other speech difficulties may well be related to mouth structure or other physical factors. But stuttering usually develops because the child is under some sort of emotional pressure.

One youngster I taught in the sixth grade had a father who demanded a great deal from him. If Bobby didn't immediately answer a question that he was asked, he was "jumped all over" by the impatient father. Fear of such scolding and sarcasm soon set up a kind of emotional block that caused Bob to start a word but to have real difficulty in finishing it. Our own daughter was being expected to operate at a level for which she wasn't ready, and slight stuttering followed. Fortunately we realized quickly that we were pressuring her and let up. Within an amazingly short time the stuttering began to pass away.

So if your youngster is starting to stutter, take a careful look at what is being expected of him. It may very well be that "taking it easy" will meet the problem.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

The Story Was Wrong; We Missed One

I got a big kick out of Police Superintendent Bob Barrett's reaction to my recent item about him and Commissioner John Russell Young.

The item said that there were rumors that Barrett might resign, or be replaced if Young is not reappointed, and that four police inspectors had recently been up on the Hill to mend their political fences. Any one of the four, I pointed out, might be eligible to succeed Barrett.

The major said it wasn't so, and that all his inspectors were loyal to him. Then, as an afterthought, he added that I forgot to mention that one other eligible police officer had been up on Capitol Hill.

I'm truly sorry for the oversight.

I regret, also, that I can't take advantage of the major's offer to bet 3 to 1 that Commissioner Young will be reappointed.

I wouldn't want Lieutenant Blick's vice squad to throw us both in the pokey for violating the gambling laws.

So I guess I'll just have to grin and Barrett.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Is there a female in town who does not own a green coat this season?

MARSHAL PLAN

Bill Domdera of 706 S. Barton st., Arlington, Va., is amused by a story from Baltimore.

It seems a Federal marshal let a prisoner out of his cell to make a phone call, and at nightfall the culprit had failed to return to jail.

This gives rise to speculation as to what might have happened to him.

It may be that he's been listening to his wife all this time, and merely saying "Yes, dear" at periodic intervals.

Or perhaps he hasn't even gotten his number yet. Maybe his wife has been talking to a girl friend, and the line has been busy.

On the other hand, he might have called some switchboard and been greeted with: "One moe-munt, plee-uz." Those moe-munts seem to be running rather long this season.

Of course there's also the possibility that the prisoner was just stringing the marshal along with that story about a phone call—handing him a telephone line, so to speak.

Maybe the rascal has escaped.

T-FORMATION

Having just put in a night of struggling with my income tax return, I can attest that Hugh Glassberg of 1121 New Hampshire ave. nw. knows whereof he speaks.

Hugh points out that there is a typographical error in Form 1040 (ugh!) of which tens of millions of copies have been circulated.

Maybe it's the "t" that was dumped overboard by a rebellious District resident who didn't believe in taxation without representation.

HE'S A BAD INFLUENCE

Ruth R. Albert of 1355 Peabody st. nw. writes:

"If Nate Leiderman can get away with atrocious puns, I can be just as corny.

"Have you heard the California wine song? It's: 'You Ferment For Me.'"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Settle a family argument for us. What's the difference between a mechanic and a machinist? In my dictionary they are synonymous.

Mrs. D. B. McFadden
4700 Rittenhouse st.
Riverdale, Md.

Dear Mrs. McFadden:

I ought to know better than to get into a family argument, but here goes anyhow.

I checked three dictionaries and found that all three gave similar and overlapping definitions. But I wouldn't call them synonymous.

The consensus of Webster, American College Dictionary and Funk & Wagnalls seems to be:

Machinist: A person who operates machinery, especially a highly skilled operator of machine tools, or one who makes and repairs machinery.

Mechanic: An artisan; a skilled worker with tools or machinery, or one who repairs machinery.

My own curbstone conception is that a machinist is a fellow who works with machine tools, whereas a mechanic is anybody who (unlike me) can drive a nail without hitting his thumb.

Bill.

"THE CHILDREN'S HOUR" IN MODERN DRESS

With a deep bow to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Jean Broulik of 3850 39th st. nw. takes note of the current controversy about Congressmen who spend too much time at parties:

Between the dark and the daylight,
When the Senate's beginning to glower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations
That is known as "the cocktail hour."

ART OF STORY TELLING

Cartoonist Zang was cranking up to tell an anecdote the other night, when he slid this one past his arty colleagues:

"I was just a little shaver then. In fact, I hadn't even started to shave yet."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Silvio Hein, the song writer and general manager of ASCAP, died in Saranac more than 20 years ago. Jerome Kern then proposed to John Golden, the producer who was treasurer of ASCAP, that a Hein Memorial be established, and donated $1000 for such purpose. Similar contributions came from Golden, Otto Harbach, Gene Buck and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, who constituted themselves the Hein Memorial Committee and raised $14,700. It wasn't enough to erect a building, and so the money was placed in a vault, earmarked for a memorial . . . Golden recently saw Mrs. Hein, who had taken excellent care of her husband during his illness. He phoned the rest of the committee, and they agreed to present the $14,700 to the widow, as a living memorial to Silvio Hein.

Joe Louis will fight Ezzard Charles in June. Those who are closest to the champ insist not only that Charles will be the opponent selected, but also that the Twentieth Century Sporting Club will promote the fight.

Eleanor Roosevelt leaves shortly for a lecture tour of Canada, during which she'll make more than 60 speeches.

When Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford sailed from Jersey City for California, it was Mrs. Ford's first glimpse of the Statue of Liberty.

Before Danny Kaye left Hollywood for his current appearance at the Roxy Theater, he was given a party by William Geetz, head of Universal-International. It was an expensive party, attended by the foremost men in the film industry. All of them made speeches. The final speech was made by the host. He pointed to the rare food and wine, the decorations, the orchestra and said: "My wife operates on the curious notion that if she spends anything which is tax-deductible, somehow it adds to my capital."

Gene Fowler was invited to attend a dinner party for Somerset Maugham the other night. The men were asked to wear black tie. Fowler, who had brought no dinner jacket from Hollywood, was assured by the hostess that he would be welcome in a business suit. He sent her a batch of smoked eyeglasses to distribute to her other guests. "Tell them to put these on," he suggested, "and it'll make me seem properly dressed."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U.S. Seeks to Attract Red Satellites

By Drew Pearson

In a private, dramatic session with the Senate Armed Services Committee, State Department officials revealed that the chief goal of American foreign policy is to push the iron curtain back to the Russian borders. By economic and political pressure, the United States hopes to pull the Soviet satellites out of the Communist orbit.

Gen. Gruenther

Attending the hush-hush military briefing were George Kennan, the State Department's Russian expert; Maj. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, secretary to the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Secretary of Defense Forrestal, General Eisenhower and Secretary of Air Symington.

General Gruenther, who planned much of the United States Army's strategy in Italy, compared the size of Russian and American forces in western Germany, and outlined American battle plans in case of attack. The details he gave cannot be printed, but it is no secret that Russia holds an overwhelming edge in manpower. Gruenther remarked that America's hope lay in air power.

Speaking for the State Department, Kennan interpreted Stalin's offer to talk peace with Truman as a sign of weakness. The Kremlin had to appear to seek peace abroad, Kennan explained, in order to keep peace at home. He pointed out that all is not rosy in Russia—that steel production is low, that transportation is inadequate and that Red army deserters are giving trouble.

No War Expected

Russia is better equipped for barking than biting, just now, Kennan said, so the experts don't expect war—unless it is precipitated accidentally. He warned, however, that Americans may as well make up their minds to a long siege of the cold war—a constant battle of nerves with a power that can't be trusted.

Meanwhile, Kennan reported, democracy is gaining ground against communism in western Europe. The Marshall Plan is feeding new life into the battered European economy, and the proposed Atlantic Pact is giving new confidence to the struggling European democracies. The State Department was heartened by Norway's move to join the alliance, though Sweden has managed to keep out of two world wars by walking the fence, and is relying upon strict neutrality to keep her out of the cold war, too.

Eisenhower had nothing to say at the meeting. At lunch later, he remarked that he was not worried about war with Russia.

Probe of RFC Urged

It looks as if the Reconstruction Finance Corporation could stand a long-overdue investigation by Congress. If the Democrats are smart, they'll start one before someone else beats them to it.

For years the all-powerful Jesse Jones kept Congress out of his hair, even had his account books exempt from inspection by thorough-going Comptroller General Lindsay Warren. Jesse had too many Congressmen under obligation to him through loans to constituents.

But now even a little surface scratching shows that the boys at the top don't entirely know what the RFC is doing.

Take, for instance, the fees collected by former Congressman Frank Hancock in connection with loans to North Carolina firms, which pass through the hands of Ernest Howard, chief of the RFC Business Loans Division and Hancock's brother-in-law.

When this column queried RFC Director Harvey Gunderson about the matter, he expressed surprise and ignorance. Gunderson, who gives the appearance of wanting to do right, said he had complete confidence in Ernest Howard and was certain he was not being used by his brother-in-law to push loans through the RFC.

After considerable hesitation, however, Gunderson consented to send for the North Carolina loans of $100,000 or over and see whether Hancock was the attorney for the loan to the Strickland Furniture Co., of High Point, N. C. It was for lobbying on this loan that Hancock received a lush fee, after Strickland hitherto had been unable to get the loan past Hancock's brother-in-law.

Hancock's Manager

Pushing a buzzer, the RFC director called William Devin and asked him to dig up the North Carolina loans. When Devin brought them back, Hancock's name was not listed as attorney for the Strickland Furniture Co.

"Did you know," Gunderson was asked later, that Devin, the man you asked to dig up the information on Hancock, was formerly Hancock's campaign manager?"

"No, I didn't," replied Gunderson.

"Well, he was. Devin managed Hancock's campaign for the Senate against Senator Bob Reynolds in 1938. And he's the man whom you had digging up facts about Hancock."

Gunderson was also reminded that though Hancock's name was not listed as attorney for Strickland, nevertheless his fee was ok'd by the RFC. Furthermore the official RFC loan contract lists a standby agreement between Strickland and Hancock, showing that Hancock was owed money by Strickland.

Gunderson also admitted that the average time it takes the RFC to grant a loan is one month. In contrast, Strickland got the runaround from the RFC for about a year—until he hired Hancock, brother-in-law of the Business Loan Section chief. Then all his troubles vanished.

This is just one sample of the runaround that can be given by a Government agency.
